South Boulevard, Old Donation swept from plan

By LEE CAHILL

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

Heeding the wishes of residents, Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon erased Old Donation Parkway and South Boulevard from the Master Street and Highway Plan dated Dec. 16, 1974.

Council's action left the question of whether the city can legally retain title to the right of way for Old Donation Parkway, 90 percent of which has been acquired.

City attorney Dale Bimson was directed to study the legal ramifications of the council action.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing, who supported the action, said that he did so expecting the city to keep the right of way already acquired for any future easements needed by the city. The ownership of the right of way also gives future Beach citizens the option to build the road if it is considered necessary.

Council actions deleted from the Master Plan the four lane construction of Old Donation Parkway from Great Neck Road to Independence Boulevard and South Boulevard from Rosemont Road to Palace Green Boulevard.

With the removal of the projects from the Master Plan, the city will not have the power to require future developers to dedicate or improve the right of way.

City Manager George L. Hanbury accordingly asked that the Parkway be retained on the plan but that funding for the bridges over the eastern and western branches of the Lynnhaven River be deleted. Without the bridges, he pointed out, there is no possibility of Old Donation becoming a parkway.

Hanbury suggested the right of way would remain and be used as a very vital connector between subdivisions within the area.

Council voted 8-3 delete Old Donation from the plan. Voting for deletion were Mayor Standing, Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy, Councilwomen Meyera Oberndorf and Barbara Henley, and Councilmen Donald Merrick, J. Curtis Payne, R.L. Riggs and Reid Ervin. Voting against deletion were Councilmen John A. Baum, George R.

Rock Church known world-wide

By PAM VANDEVEER

Virginia Beach Sun Editor

On Sunday mornings the church is packed. The parking lot is jammed. The people appear happy, joyous. They flock by the hundreds, by the thousands, not only from Virginia Beach, but from across the country. They come to participate in the Sunday celebration at Rock Church.

Ten years ago it began in a tiny rented church in Norfolk. Today Rock Church sprawls across acreage off Kempsville Road in Virginia Beach.

But there is more there than what immediately meets the eye. Sunday's 10:30 a.m. service is broadcast nationwide weekly across the CBN television network. And there are no less than 25 Rock Churches now established in the mainland United States, in Hawaii and even India.

Successful from the start

The church was a success from the beginning, say founders and co-pastors John and Ann Gimenez. "It started off with a bang," explains Ann.

The husband and wife team came to Virginia Beach as evangelists. John had been invited to CBN. "We had been married about a year," recalls Ann. "The idea of starting a church just sort of evolved."

"We rented a church in Norfolk. Within six months it was jammed. People would sit on the floor. We stayed there for two years, then the Lord spoke to our hearts to build."

With $5,000 in a building fund, the couple located the church's present property in Kempsville.

"At that time most members of our congregation were 25 and under," says Ann. "We would bring the bills and present them on Sunday. They were always paid by the 1st of the month by the congregation. In six months we moved into the first building — debt free."

Five years passed. An educational facility went up. "Then the Lord spoke to our hearts to build for the thousands," she said. "We went about building the present church in the same manner and moved in debt free."

A hub of activity

The church's present facilities are a hub of activity, not only on Sundays, but every day of the week. There is a Christian school which teaches kindergarten through twelfth grade and a three-year daily Bible college.

Monday and Tuesday nights offer evening Bible school, Wednesday mornings and nights feature church services. Thursday is choir night, Friday is youth day. Special events are held on Saturdays and Sunday services take place at 8 a.m., 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

It's hard to say exactly how many are members of the Rock Church congregation.

"We have lots of visitors," explains Ann. "It's partly due to the fact that the 10:30 service is televised nationally. People all over are familiar with the church. TV has opened the doors to the sanctuary."

"We rarely have a service where there are no newcomers. Almost always there are people who come up afterwards and make a personal commitment."

Individuals of all ages come to the church from every walk of life, from every level of society. What is the appeal?

"People are looking for reality, not just a good sermon or discussion," Ann says. "They want to feel good in spirit."

"We are very exuberant during our services. We're lively. We clap. People feel the presence of God. They see it in other people. People here are happy."

"Church here is central of life," the minister continues. "It should offer something on every level to every age."

"We encourage Christ-centered activities and offer the atmosphere and environment for these activities to take place. For many youth, even their social life revolves around the church."

"That's why we have a nice gymnasium and offer basketball, softball, skating, skiing and other social activities, although the social aspects are not our main thrust by far."

Teaching the basics

The Rock Church teachings are very basic and clear cut, according to the pastor. "We preach a very fundamental gospel. We believe in the virgin birth, the blood of Jesus, the pentecostal experience, baptism by emergence, gift of the spirits, healing, and women in the ministry."

"In marriage the husband is the head of the house," she elaborates, "but in church man and woman are heirs together."

"We believe the Bible is the inspired Word. We have a class called First Principles where we teach basic doctrines to prospective members. It consists of 32 classes — one a week. When an individual graduates he is confirmed into the church."

Ann attributes much of the success of the church to the contributions of talent from its members. "People love to put their hand into the work of the church. They put their secular talents to use. For example, when the church was built, much of the work was done by members. Today we have 25 Bible studies held weekly in Tidewater conducted by women of the church."

The name Rock Church was chosen based on scripture and was not meant to refer to the rock age, Ann assures. "The rock in the Bible represents strength and stability." But the name did turn out to be a double blessing, she admits. "Young people would pass through and ask if they could play their guitar with our group. We said sure, but they had to go through the First Principles class first."

She believes that in today's society people have discovered that government doesn't have all the answers. "People have an inner need for spiritual nourishment, for guidance and direction. They have looked for the solving of problems. But Jesus is the Prince of Peace and God is the only One to solve everything."

Getting It straight

Let's get it all straight.

The city deal has to be displayed "no more than three inches from the bottom of the windshield of the vehicle for which issued and not more than one quarter of an inch to the left or right of the state inspection sticker."

The requirement was established by an ordinance approved Monday afternoon by Virginia Beach City Council to bring city law in line with the State Code. The city law currently says that the decal is to be displayed in the lower right-hand corner of the vehicle's windshield.

This amendment makes the City Code more specific, said City Manager George L. Hanbury.

Now, said Councilman John A. Baum, "Where is the state sticker supposed to be?"

While Hanbury didn't

Lutheran Youth Congress held in Virginia Beach

More than 1,500 Lutheran youth and adults are expected to attend the 2nd Virginia Beach Lutheran Youth Congress to be held March 9-11 at the Virginia Beach Civic Center, the New Cavalier Hotel and the Holiday Inn. A similar Congress was held two years ago and attracted over 1,000 persons.

The Congress is being planned by a local group of Lutheran clergymen, lay adults and young people. Sponsoring organization is Lutheran Youth Encounter, an evangelical movement within the Lutheran Church, which provides resource ministries for Lutheran congregations. It is headquartered in St. Paul, Minnesota and is headed by Rev. Larry D. Johnson, national director of ministry for LYE.

The Congress is open to all high school (ninth grade and up) and college-age youth, parents, youth sponsors and directors, and pastors. It is a Christ-centered event featuring inspirational speakers, Bible study, special discussion seminars, musical groups and lots of singing.

Among the featured speakers at the Congress will be: Dr. Charles Mueller, past president of the LCMS Southeastern District, and author of several books including "Thank God I'm a Teenager," and much in demand as a speaker for Christian youth gatherings. Pastor Mueller is now serving a parish in Roselle, Illinois.

Dr. Martin Poch, formerly secretary of the Missouri Synod's World Relief and chairman of the LCMS World Hunger Commission. LYE is committed to hunger relief and numbers Dr. Poch on its national board of directors. Dr. Poch has also been a keynote planner in youth activities nationwide.

Dr. Roland H. Bainton, professor emeritus of Ecclesiastical History at Yale University and a specialist in Reformation history and the life of Martin Luther. A prolific writer, he is the author of more than 30 books, including a biography of Martin Luther, "Here I Stand," and "Church of Our Fathers."

Rev. Johnson of the LYE staff, who has been national director since 1974 and formerly head of the New Peace Team for the ALC Commission on Evangelism.

Musical groups will include Spiritborne, the LYE national concert team; Common Bread, the Eastern regional team; and Free Indeed, a team from Christ Lutheran Church in Norfolk which has been active for over two years and has traveled extensively throughout the East Coast promoting Youth activities.

A total of 34 elective seminar courses will be offered providing an opportunity for youth and adults to discuss significant personal, social, and faith-related issues. These will be led by prominent local Lutheran clergy and lay persons.

Laurel Cove club meets

The Laurel Cove Garden Club held its February meeting at the home of Evelyn Ferguson. Co-hostess was Regina Howard. Ann McCrary, a member of the club, gave a slide program on the history of Eastwood Plantation. The plantation houses stood on land which is now the site of Laurel Cove Neighborhood Park. The program included early maps of the area detailing the roads and waterways and also information, such as lists of possessions, from the wills of the original and subsequent owners of Eastwood Plantation.

Arrangements and horticulture specimens were judged by Wolfsnare Plantation Garden Club. Ribbons were awarded Donice Schumm, Jane Jones, Anne Marvin, and Connie Brown in the artistic division and Betty Baker and Evelyn Ferguson for horticulture.

God Bless You

I seek in prayerful words, dear friend,
My heart's true wish to send you,
That you may know that, far or near,
My loving thoughts attend you.

I cannot find a truer word,
Nor better to address you,
Nor song, nor poem have I heard
Is sweeter than God bless you!

God bless you! So I've wished you all
Of brightness life possesses;
For can there any joy at all
Be yours unless God blesses?

And so, "through all thy days
May shadows touch thee never—"
But this alone—God bless thee—
Then art thou safe forever.

Commentary

Of saints and sinners

Andrew Young, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, has been lying low since President Carter rebuked him last year for suggesting that the persecution and imprisonment of political dissidents was about as bad in the United States as in the Soviet Union.

But, Ambassador Young ran out of circumspection recently. The very day after President Carter held closed-door meetings with top State Department and National Security Council officials and made it clear he would fire anyone who deviated from administration policy, Mr. Young deviated wildly.

Never mind that the United States had reaffirmed its support of the Bakhtiari government and "the constitutional process" in Iran. Mr. Young suggested the Bakhtiari government would not survive the challenge of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Just to leave no doubt about where he stood, the ambassador predicted the Islamic leader "will be somewhat of a saint when we get over the panic."

A few days earlier in Bonn, West Germany, Mr. Young told the European press it was paranoid to believe the Russians are giants who are making gains in Africa and Asia at American expenses. And he reaffirmed his controversial statement that Cuba is a stabilizing factor in Africa: "The Cubans are repairing elevators in Angola and maintaining the telephone system. That certainly is stabilizing," he said.

It is not altogether coincidental that a story in newspapers about President Carter's public rating having sunk to "almost the lowest level of his administration..." ran alongside an acid White House statement saying the administration is "not in the canonization business." Paranoiac, indeed.

Ambassador Young is an embarrassment for the United States before the world. His continuation as the U.S. spokesman in the United Nations is becoming increasingly intolerable.

"Through the church here we have built a base of operation for our outreach ministry. We have a children's home, church and Bible school in Hyderabad, India. We support them with money and we send people over to work.

"Our vision is to train young people to send out and evangelize," she says of the church's future. "Jesus said to go to every nation and preach the gospel.

"We are traveling a lot now and we hope to start more churches. John is working on a rally to be held in Washington, D.C. in 1980 called 'One Nation Under God.' A million people, representing every state, are expected to gather to pray for our country.

"We teach that God supplies the things you need," Ann concludes. "We've found that the more we reach out, the more we find out there."

registered with the National Register of Historical Places.

Council Monday declared as excess the parcels which will remain zoned for business including 17.4 acres, 3.1 acres and 8.6 acres, and authorized their sale by the city manager.

All development in the area will be required to conform to the Colonial motif.

Jerry Broadway of the city's Economic Development Department, represents the city in the development.

Cost of the project involves acquisition -- $887,264 including sale price, survey, title insurance, Prawl property and Harris property; development -- $144,625 including house renovation, architect and engineers fees, materials, landscaping, attorney's fees, advertising, and anticipated development -- $573,784 including site improvements, street lights, traffic signal, signs, landscaping and underground electrical service.

Undisturbed

Sports coverage is refreshing

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

Congratulations on two very fine pieces of writing in the Sun of Feb. 28th!

It is high time that sports writers "stand up and be counted" with regard to ethics and moral standards in sports "particularly on the high school level." "A Question of Right or Wrong" is an excellent commentary and you have my respect for seeing that it appeared boldly in print and not just as "cocktail party conversation."

"Gymnastics... Sport As We'd Like It" is outstanding! My daughter, Katie, is one of P.A. High Schools "rookie sophomore" gymnasts and I've attended all their meets. You captured my evaluation of the sport and wrote it brilliantly and with great sensitivity. The article is scotch-taped to our refrigerator!

Please continue to express your "sentiments on sports" in such a professional manner. It is refreshing to the readers!

Sincerely,
Joan Hess

Not all nursing homes involved in scandals

Editor, Virginia Beach Sun:

On February 26, 1979, CBS/WTAR-TV aired a segment of the Lou Grant Show which attempted to portray a nursing home scandal. The result, however, was wide of the mark and came across as an all-inclusive criticism of the nursing home industry. As an owner/operator I could not be restrained from responding to CBS. It is doubtful that I will ever hear from CBS publicly in this matter, but I would like to have the people of Tidewater to know that objection has been made and that all nursing homes are not as CBS would have us believe. In fact, Brent-Lox Hall Nursing Home at 1017 George Washington Highway, Chesapeake, is open at any time for anyone's personal investigation.

Sincerely yours,
Edgar A. Freeman

Scott favors steps to improve police

City Manager Roger Scott has indicated he plans to take additional steps in the continuing improvement of the Virginia Beach Police Department.

Scott, during Monday's informal City Council meeting said that when the city's fiscal 1969-1970 operating budget is presented at Monday's regular Council meeting, it will include recommendations to raise the starting salary of a rookie policeman from the present $480 to $512 per month; to increase the police department's personnel strength by the hiring of an additional 25 men in the next year; to outfit and place in service a mobile crime lab; to obtain remote data processing equipment for the police department; and to seek the use of federal and state funds to complete additional improvements to the police department's special weapons range. ...

Science center approved

Virginia Wesleyan College has received final approval from the U.S. Office of Education on the plans and specifications for the college's new $1,050,000 Science Center.

The present schedule calls for beginning of construction on this facility this spring for completion in the summer of 1970. The projected Science Center will have 20,086 square feet of space and will house faculty offices, classrooms and laboratories for the college's expanding science division. ...

New shopping center begins

Virginia Beach Mayor Frank Dusch officiated

Wednesday afternoon at groundbreaking ceremonies of Haygood Shopping Center at the southeast intersection of Haygood Road and Independence Blvd. A number of other city officials and Linda Phillips, Miss Virginia Beach, also attended the ceremony.

The 30-acre tract is being developed by Lee A. Gifford, who had developed a number of other commercial and housing areas in Virginia Beach, especially in the Bayside section. The new shopping center, being leased by Goodman-Segar-Hogan, Inc., will serve a total of 9,000 homes in the Bayside area of the city. ...

The site for the center has been set for more than two years, but until recently no tenants were announced. The first phase will be highlighted by a 40,500 square foot Ross Junior Dept. Store. Other principal tenants will be A&P, Peoples Drug Store and Virginia National Bank. ...

Other tenants will include a barber shop, beauty shop, ice cream store, an ABC package store and an appliance store, as well as a number of professional offices.

Project stays on schedule

Work is progressing according to schedule on Independence Blvd.

Charles Kiley, the city's Director of Public Works, says work on phase two of the project is "on schedule despite the weather." Kiley added that the portion of Independence Blvd. between Haygood Road and Shore Drive (near gate three of the Naval Amphibious Base) is "approximately 44 percent complete, and the estimated time of completion is next Sept. 1."

SUN Deadlines

News deadline for the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN is 5 p.m. Friday for the following Wednesday's edition.

Articles must be legible, preferably typewritten, double-spaced on standard sized paper.

Pictures must be sharp, clear and accompanied by complete information. (All persons in pictures must be identified.)

There is no charge for news articles or pictures. Pictures cannot be returned unless special arrangements are made.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Your number's up

By Harvey J. Ridinger
Field Representative

Proving family relationships

One of the problems that some children face when they apply for social security benefits on the record of a retired, deceased, or disabled parent is proving their relationship to the parent. Another problem is establishing dependency when that is necessary. Social security pays benefits to dependent children of workers who are receiving retirement or disability benefits or who have died after working long enough under social security. More than 5 million children are currently receiving benefits.

Generally there is no problem if the child is the worker's natural child and the parents are married. The birth or baptismal record will generally show the name of both parents.

However, if the child is a stepchild, an adopted child, a grandchild, or if the parents have not married, some additional proofs may be necessary.

The social security office will assist you in getting any proofs you need to prove such relationships, so don't delay applying because you don't have the proofs.

If the child is not legitimate under State law, one of the following is generally sufficient: 1) acknowledgement of paternity in writing, 2) a court decree that the worker is the father of the child, 3) a court order of support, or 4) satisfactory evidence that the worker is the child's biological father and was living with or contributing to the child's support.

Stepchildren living with or dependent on the stepparent and childred legally adopted before the worker becomes entitled to benefits, are generally treated the same as natural children.

A child legally adopted after the worker becomes entitled to social security benefits must have been both living with the worker and receiving at least one-half of his or her support from the worker for one year before the worker became entitled to benefits.

If the worker is receiving disability or retirement benefits, the step-relationship must have existed for at least one year before the child can get benefits. If the worker is deceased, the child can qualify for survivors benefits if the parents were married at least 9 months before the death of the worker, unless death is accidental.

A dependent grandchild may qualify for benefits when a grandparent retires, dies, or becomes disabled, if the real parents were deceased or disabled at the time the grandparent becomes entitled to benefits or dies.

If the grandparent dies, the grandchild may qualify for benefits if he or she is legally adopted by the surviving grandparent. The natural parent must not be living in the same household or making regular contributions to the child's support at the time the insured worker died.

It's important to make sure children's rights are protected under social security. If you know of a child whose parents have died, retired, or become disabled, have someone contact the social security office on his or her behalf. It could mean a legacy from a parent that will make life a little easier.

New respiratory therapy program at TCC

The Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College (TCC) is now offering a two-year Associate of Applied Science degree in Health Technology for the training of respiratory therapists.

The new program is in addition to the existing one-year certificate program for respiratory therapy technicians.

Students interested in entering the expanding allied health field of respiratory care will find employment opportunities in hospitals, medical clinics, private offices, educational institutions, industry, and public health agencies. Respiratory therapists and respiratory therapy technicians provide support to physicians and nurses in the care of patients with respiratory problems of all types, such as asthma, emphysema, and other temporary or chronic medical problems which interfere with breathing.

In the new two-year program for respiratory therapist training, students receive the knowledge and skills necessary to perform clinical care for patients with respiratory problems and to supervise the work of respiratory therapy technicians. The therapist may be expected to serve as a resource person for physicians and nursing staff, informing these health care professionals of the current practices in respiratory care and safe and effective methods of respiratory therapy. While the therapist operates under the direct or indirect supervision of a physician, he or she may be required to exercise independent clinical judgement in the respiratory care of patients.

Students completing the one-year respiratory technician program will be awarded a Respiratory Therapy Technician Certificate. One year's additional experience in a hospital is required before the student is allowed to take the examination to become a Certified Respiratory Therapist.

For further information about entering the respiratory therapist and technician training program, contact the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College at 427-3070.

Steve Bruner (l) tells Sue Meulenberg that she has won an Oscar for her performance in a movie. These two Virginia Beach students are in the cast of the Virginia Wesleyan College spring musical, "The Apple Tree," which will run through March 10 at 8 p.m. in the college's Monumental Chapel. Admission is $2 per person and reservations can be made by calling the college at 461-3232.

VWC presents spring musical, "The Apple Tree"

"The Apple Tree," a "new musical" when it premiered on Broadway in 1966, will be presented by Virginia Wesleyan College through March 10. Curtain time each night is 8 p.m. in Monumental Chapel. Admission is $2 per person, and reservations can be made by calling the college at 461-3232.

The musical comedy is really a trilogy of three one-act plays. The first, "The Diary of Adam and Eve," is based upon a story by Mark Twain. "The Lady or the Tiger," is based upon the writings of Frank R. Stockton, and "Passionella" comes from Jules Feiffer. Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick ("Fiddler on the Roof") scored the play and wrote the script, working with director Mike Nichols.

Darren Myers of Chesapeake plays Adam, Malinda Spann of Virginia Beach is Eve, and Ondra Ponds of Chesapeake plays the devil/snake in "The Diary of Adam and Eve."

Act II, "The Lady or the Tiger," will feature Regina Ellis as Princess Barbara, Ponds as her lover, Captain Sanjar, Steve Gibson as King Arik, and Cathy Hall of Chesapeake as the Balladeer.

Sue Meulenberg of Virginia Beach is "Passionella," a chimney sweep who is transformed into a movie star.

Flip, her "Prince Charming," will be played by Steve Bruner, also of Virginia Beach. Karen Trunfio will serve as the narrator.

Bentley B. Anderson, assistant professor of theater/communications is directing the production, assisted by Dr. R. David Clayton, associate professor of music, who is serving as musical director. Technical director is Dale Ritter of the VWC theater staff.

Music will be provided by Alydia Yager of Norfolk on piano, Bill Pendergrass of Virginia Beach on drums, and Jim Keller of Norfolk on electric bass.

Other members of the cast and chorus include: Gary Henry of Portsmouth, Jerry Stanley of Virginia Beach, Jose Meredith of Virginia Beach, A.C. Calhoun of Norfolk, Phyllis Smith of Virginia Beach and Jeffrey Thaxton of Newport News.

Assisting technical director Ritter are David Edge, Benton Collins and Massoud Farid. Operating the lights are Carol Scoote and Ron Stokes. Fran Hanbury is costume designer and Dorothy Goffigan is the costumer. Lois Cunningham and Sarah Jordan are handling props for the play, and Pat Russ is doing the makeup for the cast.

World War II comedy begins run at Tidewater Dinner Theatre

"Mister Roberts," one of the most hilarious stage successes to come out of World War II, opens at the Tidewater Dinner Theatre on March 13. This outstanding wartime comedy is the blistering, yet tender, saga of the men on an old bucket of a navy cargo ship.

Its chief character is Lt. Roberts (played by Richard Salzberg) who impatiently fears the war will pass him by before he can get transferred to a real fighting ship, but whose captain continually refuses to authorize his transfer to a warship. This commander (Alan Sader) is a hard-bitten sea-bully who hates college men like Roberts, and drives his crew in the hope of getting a promotion for himself. In doing so he spreads misery and hatred throughout the ship.

Since all the action of the comedy takes place aboard the fictional ship known as AK601 only one woman appears in the cast - an army nurse who comes aboard for a brief visit while the ship is in port, much to the delight of the wild crew who have become starved for the sight of a pretty girl. This role will be played here by Judith Yerby.

"Mister Roberts" ran for almost three solid years in New York, in addition to long repeated professional engagements in other cities including 54 weeks in Chicago and 26 weeks in Boston. The play was written by Thomas Heggen, on the basis of his own naval experiences during the war, in collaboration with Joshua Logan. Logan, most notable for his directorial assignments, has been involved with such monumental stage hits as "By Jupiter," "Annie Get Your Gun," "South Pacific," "Picnic" and "Fanny."

The Tidewater Dinner Theatre is located at 6270 Northampton Blvd. Call 461-2933 for information or reservations.

Farmer promoted

Kenneth W. Farmer of Virginia Beach, formerly Executive Vice President of the Virginia Beach region of Fidelity American Bank, has been promoted to Chief Operating Officer for the entire $250 million Tidewater bank.

Farmer will be responsible for the overall performance of the bank, and will be directly concerned with retail functions, specifically customer services and the bank's marketing strategy.

Fidelity American Bank maintains 27 offices in Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Hampton, Newport News, Williamsburg, Suffolk, and Chesapeake.

The bank is an affiliate of Commonwealth Banks, Inc., a Richmond based multi-bank holding company formed by the recent merger of Fidelity

Kenneth W. Farmer

American Bankshares, Inc., in Lynchburg and Central National Corp. in Richmond. The parent company serves the state through 14 banks with 126 offices and 13 bank-related affiliates.

Tidewater homebuilders to show their wares

The 1979 Tidewater Home Show will open Thursday, March 8 at Military Circle Shopping Center and will run through Saturday, March 10. It will feature approximately 80 booths displaying and demonstrating the newest in home products and services. Hours for the three-day show are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The combined trade/consumer event is the largest show ever to appear in Military Circle.

Among the more unusual displays this year will be

TBA requests representation on dunes committee

The Tidewater Builders Association has asked that the City of Virginia Beach include representation from its membership and other citizens on a committee to prepare a local dune protection ordinance.

The TBA opposed the Coastal Resources Management Act which was unsuccessful legislation during the 1979 General Assembly. Harris told City Council last week that "contrary to what was indicated in the press ... the TBA does not oppose a dunes ordinance to protect the dunes at Virginia Beach." He said the association was opposed to the state bill and "federal zoning," and said that the bill was inflationary.

"It has all the trappings of bills that add to the bureaucracy," he said.

A local dunes ordinance prepared by the city's Planning Department and held in abeyance pending the outcome of the state legislation will be presented at a joint meeting of the Planning Commission and City Council March 19.

Harris suggested that the dunes ordinance should be studied by a committee appointed by the mayor "to come up with a fair, equitable and non-confiscatory policy." The committee should include, he said, members of council, citizens, administrators, builders and property owners.

"I feel that an equitable ordinance can be written," he said.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf, a strong supporter of the state legislation, said that the idea that only the person who owns property can participate in decisions is outdated.

Harris had referred to an earlier zoning item involving dunes which was handled directly and simply by council as the way dunes protection could be handled on a local level. Mrs. Oberndorf remarked that if everybody was going to be equally as reasonable for the applicant in that case, the city would have no problem.

Councilman Reid Ervin, another strong supporter of the state act, said that "we always run the risk of the over-zealous bureaucrat."

He said the city's former fine of $25 meted to people who destroyed dunes was ineffective. An increase to $1,000 in the fine "accomplished nothing ... Under the best conditions we will have trouble."

Ervin said that Senator Gartlan, who sponsored the state legislation, said the bill would not invite federal control but would put the control at the local level.

Ervin said that in any committee appointed by council, all types of people will have to be included. "I have nothing against an advisory group, but our Planning Department should prepare the ordinance." He added, "We don't have much fragile areas left and most is in the public land."

Harris agreed that any dunes legislation would affect only a small percentage of builders but that it was "the principle of the thing."

Nine members of council had voted to support the state bill. Two members, George Ferrell and R.L. Riggs, abstained.

Schell Supply's "Habitat," an environmental enclosure that supplies sun, steam, rain and warm breeze. Built by Kohler, the unit can be automatically sequenced and installed in any room in the house. Schell will be demonstrating the enclosure periodically. Culligan Water Conditioning, Inc. will have a 10-foot high "mystery" faucet from which water will flow with no visible means of supply.

The Great Atlantic Hot Tub Shoppe will have one of its California hot tubs on display, and Pella, Va., whose exhibit attracted so much attention last year, will be back this year with its house made up of windows and doors.

Georgetown, a Chesapeake community in which the builder planted 4000 trees, will be represented by a free-standing booth of rough-sawn lumber complete with posters and information about the development. Larasan Realty/Better Homes and Gardens will offer participants coupons good for discounts of up to $500 off on the purchase of a new home built by a Larasan builder.

Other displays will feature home security alarms and devices, tile and carpeting, a revolutionary cooking device, mirrors and mirror products, kitchen cabinets, custom made furniture, shelving, insulation, solar products, heat pumps and air conditioning products, swimming pools and equipment, fireplaces, stone products, and more. Displays of new homes for sale in Tidewater will be prominent. The Home Owners Warranty Council of Tidewater will also have a booth, to promote the HOW 10-year protection plan for new home buyers.

Door prizes, balloons, coupons, give-aways and special exhibits and consultations will be among the added attractions.

"We expect to bring to the thousands of people who will view this three-day show an extraordinary selection of products and services offered by local builders, suppliers, manufacturers and others," announced C. Gerald Harris, president of Tidewater Builders Association which is sponsoring the show. "The exhibits will be representative of the best and newest ideas in the homebuilding industry today."

Anyan joins Ford plant, makes home in Va. Beach

The appointment of David E. Anyan as assistant plant manager of Ford Motor Company's Norfolk Assembly Plant has been announced by Plant Manager James L. Mehne. He succeeds Robert M. Major, who was transferred to the company's Los Angeles Assembly Plant as assistant plant manager.

Anyan comes to Norfolk from Ford's Wayne (Mich.) Assembly Plant, where he served from 1970 until the end of 1978 as manufacturing engineering manager, as production manager, and most recently as quality control manager. After joining Ford in 1959 at the St. Louis Assembly Plant, he worked in the Automotive Division general office and the Chicago and Dallas Assembly Plants.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., Anyan graduated in 1962 from the Missouri School of Mines in Rolla with a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering. He is a licensed professional engineer in the states of Michigan and Missouri.

Anyan, his wife, Sharon, and their three children will make their home in Virginia Beach.

Balner joins Realty Consultants

Bob Balner

Bob Balner, recently retired Navy Captain, has joined Realty Consultants in Virginia Beach.

Balner lives in Pelican Dunes with his wife Esther and daughters Denise and Elizabeth. Esther will be teaching at Baylake Pines Methodist Church preschool in September and the girls attend Cox High School and Independence Junior High School.

Balner specializes in residential properties and homes.

The new Tidewater Psychiatric Hospital as it nears completion. A public open house of the facility will be held Saturday and Sunday, March 10 and 11.

New Tidewater Psychiatric Institute Hospital opens this month with public open house

Virginia Beach residents will have an unusual opportunity to see firsthand a modern psychiatric hospital when the new Tidewater Psychiatric Institute Hospital opens its doors in March.

As one of the activities surrounding the opening of the 72-bed hospital, TPI is scheduling a two-day public open house from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, March 10 and 11. Special public tours have been planned for the hospital, which is located at 860 Kempsville Road, adjacent to Leigh Memorial Hospital and Doctors Clinic Center.

The new hospital replaces the present leased facility on the fourth floor of the Medcenter Building, 1005 Hampton Boulevard. Patients are expected to be transferred to the new hospital the week of March 12 or 19, and then only limited public access will be available.

Explaining the rationale for the public open house, Thomas F. Martin, TPI/Norfolk administrator, said, "Since TPI is very careful to protect its patients' privacy, the general public seldom has the opportunity to see the inside of a modern psychiatric hospital. They simply don't have full access to a psychiatric hospital once it's operational.

"But in the case of the new Norfolk hospital, we're delaying the arrival of the patients for a few days so we can allow the public an opportunity to see the entire facility," Martin continued. "Everyone interested will have the chance to see all phases of today's psychiatric care and the remarkable progress that has been made. We think they'll be pleasantly surprised with the environment and operations of our new hospital."

Tidewater Psychiatric Institute, which first opened on Hampton Boulevard in June 1971, is the oldest private psychiatric hospital in South Hampton Roads. The new Norfolk facility was constructed at a cost of $2.2 million, and will employ about 100 people. The hospital will house one of TPI's Adult Treatment Programs and TPI's Alcoholism Treatment Program. The hospital has been designed to offer quality patient care in a pleasant, home-like atmosphere while preserving patient privacy and safety.

When the original TPI/Norfolk opened, it contained 50 beds. In December 1972, TPI opened a 72-bed hospital at 1701 Will-O-Wisp Drive in Virginia Beach, near the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Several beds will be shifted from Virginia Beach to the new Norfolk facility, so TPI will have a net increase of only four beds.

Home ownership looks good at tax time

By LIN J. COOPER
Director of Communications Tidewater Builders Association

Now that it's that quarter of the year better known as tax time, many of us find ourselves in the position of casting around for authorized deductions. Traditionally, one of the best deductions for the average family has been the tax break generated by home ownership.

Let's look at what happens to the tax return of a young couple during the first year of a mortgage.

The wife in our example earns $12,000 a year; the husband, $18,000. Their $8,000 savings yields $400 a year in interest, giving them a taxable income of $30,400.

Here's what the figures look like if they continue to rent and take the standard deduction on their income tax forms.

Gross Income — $30,400
Total tax due — $6,083

Now assume that same couple buys a home for $60,000 at 10 percent down and takes out a mortgage at 10.5 percent on the remaining $54,000. During the first year their mortgage interest payments equal $5,670. Let's say that they paid $820 in real estate taxes, which is also tax deductible. Adding both the mortgage interest and real estate tax deduction, here's what the tax bill looks like now.

Gross Income — $30,400
Interest Deduction — $5,670
Real Estate Tax Deduction — $820
Total Deduction — $6,490
Total Tax Due — $4,976

With just real estate tax and mortgage interest deductions, the couple saves about $1,007 on their tax bill. Of course, most people will have other deductions as well, bringing the tax bill down even further.

And the couple will continue to save substantial amounts on their tax bills throughout the early years of a mortgage when interest payments make up the larger part of the mortgage payments.

A reminder: Whether your home is old or new or you're just thinking of buying, you'll find plenty to look at at the fantastic 1979 Tidewater Home Show opening tomorrow at 10 a.m. at Military Circle Mall. Approximately 80 exhibits will feature a large variety of products and services for the home available right here in Chesapeake and Virginia Beach.

Virginia Beach public schools set high standards in physical education

National Physical education Week, observed March 1-7, is a reminder that Virginia Beach public schools on both the elementary and secondary levels have long been leaders in physical education and health programs in the state.

For instance, the cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) program, now taught to all ninth graders in Virginia Beach, started as a cooperative effort of health and physical education supervisors and teachers in Virginia Beach, working with community rescue workers and volunteers. The guidelines for the Virginia Beach CPR program have now been adopted by the State Department of Education, and the guidelines are being made available to school systems statewide.

The state has also adopted many of the physical fitness standards initiated in Virginia Beach. The Virginia Beach standards in some fitness categories tested each year exceed those of the state.

Each Virginia Beach elementary school has a physical education specialist, who begins the teaching of "lifetime sports." One of those specialists, Mrs. Sandra Bowie, of North Landing Elementary School, was this year named Virginia Beach's Teacher of the Year. She went on to win that same honor for the state of Virginia.

A videotape of her teaching methods was shown recently on educational television around the state, and will be seen again later this month at a State Department of Education health and physical education workshop in Roanoke.

Throughout the year, parents have a chance to see the progress made by their children. Demonstration nights are held by each elementary school showing off the skills learned.

Citizenship education continues

Resident aliens preparing for U.S. Citizenship will again have an opportunity to receive comprehensive instruction at the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College. This citizenship education is available to the public with the payment of a $5 registration fee. There are no tuition or book fees.

The course is part of the Community Education Program and is taught by I. Steven Krup, Esq., Naturalization Examiner for the U.S. Office of Immigration for the Virginia District. The new class will begin on March 26. For further information on registration, call the Office of Continuing Education at 427-3070.

Perfect grades net honors

Robert Russell Miller of Virginia Beach is among three hundred eighty-four students who have been named to the President's List for the fall 1978 semester at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Academic standing recognized

Barton A. Branscum of Thoroughgood Dr. in Virginia Beach was named to the fall semester dean's list at the University of Kentucky in Lexington.

Lecture series discusses

'Law Everyone Should Know'

The Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College will again present the popular "Law Everyone Should Know" lecture series during the spring quarter.

Lectures are given by members of the Young Lawyers Section of the Norfolk-Portsmouth Bar Association and are free to the public. They will be held in the Learning Resources Center, Room B-100 beginning March 28, at 7 p.m. The subjects to be discussed include real estate law, domestic relations, wills, accidents, consumer contracts and criminal law.

For further information call the Office of Continuing Education at 427-3070.

Beach boy takes prize in nature club contest

Stephen Gallagher, age 11, of Virginia Beach is among the 118 winners in the annual Ranger Rick's Nature Club Contest sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation. The young conservationists range in age from five to twelve and were chosen from the more than 3,500 entries.

Entrants to the contest answered four essay questions based on Ranger Rick's Pledge. The questions, published in the September, 1978 Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine for children, asked the youngsters to explain what aspects of nature they enjoy in their own neighborhoods, how nature is most important to them, how they can protect the soil, water, woods, and wildlife, and how they respect natural resources when they are camping.

Brandon Junior High presents first concert

Brandon Junior High School choral department will present the school's first choral concert on the evening of March fifteenth. Since the school opened last fall, various choral groups have performed programs for PTA Meetings, civic groups, and at the combined band and choral Christmas concert, but this will be the first all-choral concert to be presented at Brandon.

The four groups that will perform on the program include the Seventh-grade Chorus, combined Mixed Chorus and Girls' Chorus, Concert Choir, and the Madrigals. Some of the more familiar songs heard will be "I Write the Songs," "My Favorite Things," "Sunshine on My Shoulders," and a new setting of "Amazing Grace" sung by the five-voice Madrigal group.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, March 15, in the school's auditorium. There will be no charge for the concert, and the public is invited to attend.

For further information, call the school at 424-3351.

Beach youth help with city litter-problems

Moore distributes litter bags to the Junior American Citizens.

Princess Anne County Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, sponsor the Cavalier Society, Children of the American Revolution and two Junior American Citizens chapters in Virginia Beach. Children in the C.A.R. are descendants of a person who fought or supported the efforts for America to gain its independence. Junior American Citizens are open to any child age preschool through 18 and were established by the D.A.R. to promote patriotism and love of country.

Both organizations were contacted by Benjamin Moore, director of the Clean Community Systems Program for Virginia Beach. Moore showed "dirty" slides to both groups and asked them for help in spreading the word that litter can be abolished if we all work together to stop it.

The Cavalier Society designed and constructed a large twelve page display for the city. During a three month period, many hours and lots of creativity went into the final product, which will be displayed around the city of Virginia Beach to remind citizens to dispose of their litter properly.

Liberty Bell Kids and George Washington Chapters of the J.A.C.'s at Montessori Children's House learned about all types of pollution and how Mt. Trashmore was built. After Moore's visit the children helped design a children's litter brochure for the city of Virginia Beach. The brochure lets children take an active part in their city's clean up campaign.

Dilly Hoskins shows his drawing that was printed in the children's litter brochure.

Spring fashion show is class project

Casual Corner of Military Circle Mall sponsored a Spring Fashion Show at Princess Anne Business College on Thursday, Feb. 22. The show was part of a class project and all the decorations, planning, and modeling were done by students in the Professional Development class taught by Mrs. Doris Krantz.

Student models Tana Wright, Trish Dragovich, Beth Feran, Kay Morgan, Sharon Rakes, Gail Johnson, Missy Di Sisto, Lonna Moore, Laurette Barry and Linda Whitehurst walked the runway with some of Casual Corner's new spring line which included lots and lots of color, lots and lots of legs and you guessed it—hats!

The audience left the show looking forward to the upcoming Princess Anne Business College Open House to be held on Wednesday, March 14, beginning at 6 p.m. at which time the students will once again show spring fashions for young career women. All are welcome to attend. Call 340-0222 for further information about this occasion.

Two Virginia Beach residents are at helm of super submarine hunter

By MIKE MCGOUGAN
Special to the Virginia Beach Sun

Navy Commander Carl A. Anderson and Lieutenant Commander Morris C. Foote will always remember Aug. 19, 1978, with fond memories. That day the two Virginia Beach residents became "plank owners" of one of the most modern, sophisticated destroyers in the Navy fleet of ships as the USS Stump was commissioned.

With the commissioning of the USS Stump, Anderson officially took command of the Norfolk homeported destroyer and Foote became his executive officer.

Traditionally, members of the commissioning crew are given the title "plank owner," or part owner of the ship. In Navy tradition, the plank owner receives "a clear, free, open and unencumbered title to a plank of the deck of the ship."

Becoming a plank owner was not an entirely new experience for Anderson, who was the weapons officer aboard the nuclear-powered fleet ballistic missile submarine USS George Bancroft when it was commissioned in January 1966.

In commissioning the Stump, Anderson joined a select group of Navy men who have had the rare opportunity of putting two Navy ships in commission. Anderson also had the distinction of becoming the first submariner to command a Spruance-class destroyer. Prior to reporting for duty aboard the Stump, Anderson was commanding officer of the 25-year-old guided missile destroyer USS John S. McCain as it was decommissioned.

Anderson, his wife, Patricia, and their three children, Scott, Kathleen and Jimmy reside on Hidden Cove Rd., Baycliff, Virginia Beach.

For Foote, the day of the Stump's commissioning is not only memorable because he became a plank owner and executive officer of the innovative destroyer, but also because it was the ninth birthday of his son, William Todd.

Foote, his wife, the former Gail Onyun of Virginia

Beach, and their son, William, reside on Balfor Drive, Virginia Beach. Mrs. Foote is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Onyun of Ewell Rd., Virginia Beach.

A 1966 graduate of the Naval Academy, Foote has served as the chief engineer of the destroyer USS Lowry and as antisubmarine warfare officer of the destroyer USS Holder. Prior to reporting for duty aboard the Stump, the Washington, D.C., native attended the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk.

Designed and built from the keel up to detect and destroy enemy submarines, the Stump's advanced underwater detection equipment and computerized tracking, processing and targeting systems make this Spruance-class destroyer a versatile submarine hunter-fighter.

The 16th of 30 planned Spruance-class destroyers, the Stump is the seventh to join the Atlantic Fleet Surface Force.

The Stump is named in honor of Admiral Felix B. Stump, an outstanding aviator and a distinguished aircraft carrier division commander in the Pacific during World War II.

The Stump and other Spruance-class destroyers are the U.S. Navy's first major combatant ships to be powered by gas turbine engines. Similar in design to those used on aircraft, these engines enable the ship to get underway and change speeds rapidly and maintain high-performance operations for several days without logistic support.

Comparing the propulsion system of the older destroyers with the newer gas turbine engines aboard the Spruance-class destroyers, Anderson said that it takes much longer to get the older destroyers underway.

"Aboard the Stump, we can get the gas turbine engines fired up in 40 minutes and be underway two hours if necessary," the captain of the modern destroyer said proudly.

"Compared to some ships I've served aboard, the Stump is like a dream," Foote said. "Serving aboard the gas turbine powered patrol gunboat USS Green Bay convinced me of the potential of this new propulsion system."

"Gas turbine propulsion and computerized combat systems provide potential that never existed before," Foote continued. "The speed, endurance and growth potential for the Spruance-class ship will add greatly to this nation's defense into the 21st century."

Since the Stump's commissioning, Anderson and Foote have taken the destroyer on cruises to the Caribbean, where the ship has visited St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, and the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

One of the biggest thrills for Anderson, however, came when he recently took his ship into New York City for a port visit. It was the first port call to the city by a Spruance-class destroyer and marked the first visit home aboard a Navy ship for Anderson, a native New Yorker who has 19 years of naval service under his belt.

When he was a high school student in the Bronx, Anderson wanted to become an able bodied seaman. At the age of 16, he shipped out with the Danish Merchant Marine for a summer cruise which took him to Central and South America.

The skipper of the Stump went on to graduate from the New York State Maritime College, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in marine transportation.

During the Stump's visit to New York City, Anderson, Foote and the rest of the 270-man crew of the destroyer were honored guests in "the Big Apple." Anderson, Foote and their shipmates returned the favor by welcoming more than 7,000 people who came aboard the Stump during three afternoons the destroyer put down the gangway for "open house."

"It's a great honor to be on one of the newest in the destroyer community, working with so many extremely capable shipmates," Foote concluded about his plank ownership and executive officer duties aboard the Stump.

Been retires after 21 year naval career

Lieutenant Commander John T. Been II, a resident of Virginia Beach, capped a twenty-one year naval career with receipt of the Navy Commendation Medal at retirement ceremonies held Feb. 28 at Fleet Intelligence Center Europe and Atlantic, Norfolk. LCDR Been was presented the medal by Vice Admiral Ronald J. Hays, Deputy Commander in Chief U.S. Atlantic Fleet, on behalf of the Secretary of the Navy. VADM Hays, a former commanding officer of Attack Squadron 85, also recounted his experiences with LCDR Been as his bombardier/navigator in VA-85, and commented on LCDR Been's coolness under fire.

Commended for his meritorious service as Nuclear Strike Planning Division Officer of Fleet Intelligence Center from October 1976 to February 1979, LCDR Been demonstrated outstanding leadership and professional competence in planning for the Cruise Missile Mission Planning Program, and developed and implemented planning programs contributing to Fleet readiness. His unique combat and operational experience greatly improved all mission planning materials.

LCDR Been was also presented a letter of commendation by Capt C.G. Dearie, USN, commanding officer of Fleet Intelligence Center, in recognition not only of the highly professional performance of his final assignment, but also of the heroism and ability evident throughout his entire naval career.

LCDR Been has earned the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross (eight awards), Air Medal (21 awards), Joint Service Commendation Medal, Navy Commendation Medal with Combat "V", Navy Unit Commendation (two awards), Meritorious Unit Commendation, Navy Expeditionary Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, Vietnam Service Medal with three campaign stars, Republic of Vietnam Cross of Gallantry (2nd Class), Republic of Vietnam Meritorious Unit Citation (Cross of Gallantry color), and Republic of Vietnam Campaign Medal.

LCDR Been entered the Navy in August 1958 as an Officer Candidate. He has served in Heavy Attack Squadrons Nine and Eleven; Commander Carrier Division Six; Attack Squadron 42 (three tours); Attack Squadron 85; Attack Squadron 34; United States Readiness Command; and Fleet Intelligence Center Europe and Atlantic.

LCDR and Mrs. Been will remain in Virginia Beach with their children, Todd, Mark, and Doug.

Virginia Beach residents Lieutenant Commander Morris C. Foote (left) and Commander Carl A. Anderson watch from the wing of the bridge aboard their ship, the USS Stump, during an underway replenishment with the USS Savannah. Anderson is the captain of the new Norfolk homeported destroyer and Foote is the executive officer of the Destroyer Squadron Ten ship.

Chef Diggs: The O' Club's recipe for success

Head Chef at NAS Oceana's Officers' Club, Ransom Diggs, was awarded a Letter of Commendation recently by Captain D.J. Michaels, Commanding Officer, NAS Oceana. The award cited Diggs' "remarkable professionalism" in food preparation and catering, which is considered a major factor in the club's being named last year as the Navy's number one Commissioned Officer's Mess Open by the Secretary of the Navy.

Diggs started his career of more than 19 years at Oceana's O' Club in 1959 as a kitchen helper. Later he became second cook, and for the last 15 years he has been the club's head chef.

Along with so many years in one place goes the many memorable occasions. One of Diggs' fondest memories was the night in June, 1978 when the O' Club hosted a victory party after clinching the SecNav Award for the top Officers' Club. That evening five separate rooms at the club were loaded with foods which represented nearly every country in the world. This victory party evolved into the popular "fly-in" which the O' Club now hosts regularly.

"We feed between 200 to 300 people Monday through Friday during normal noonday meals," said Manager Roy Olson. "And Diggs always has the food ready on time and served in the most professional manner possible. Diggs has never let me down in the four years that I have been manager. He's the 'main cog' that makes this club roll."

Of his own abilities as chef, Diggs remarked, "Given the recipe and proper ingredients, I can make most anything that can be prepared in the way of food."

Even foods as diverse as roast pig or goat meat can be cooked and served professionally by Diggs, according to Peggy Spry, catering manager. "There's nothing that I've ever asked him to fix yet that he hasn't been able to come up with," insists Ms. Spry.

Each Friday night, the O' Club has happy hour and Diggs always serves a wide variety of hors d'oeuvres and sometimes top of beef. His Friday night specialty is an all-you-can-eat seafood buffet featuring Alaskan king crab, steamed shrimp, steamship round of beef, sautéed oysters and a variety of mixed vegetables and salads. The club has between 300 to 500 customers Friday evenings, according to Olson.

Diggs has two kitchen helpers, Ms. Nellie Sanders who assists in salad preparation and Doug Hines, who works mornings.

The Letter of Commendation to Diggs states in part, "Your extraordinary achievements, coupled with a minimum increase in support personnel and little or no modernization in kitchen equipment, can only be classified as spectacular. Club patronage has increased to a point whereby food sales have grown...a remarkable growth from 1975 to 1978 of 240 percent."

Big roast? Not when you're cooking for the Oceana Officer Club's large "family".

Moore

David A. Moore, whose wife, Roxanne, and mother, Mrs. Thelma E. Moore, live on Shipp Lane, Virginia Beach, recently was promoted to Army first lieutenant while serving as a platoon leader with the 72nd Armor at Camp Casey, Korea.

Mills

Navy Hospital Corpsman Second Class Rory M. Mills, whose wife, Jeanne, is the daughter of Chief Warrant Officer Richard J. and Bonnie Foltz of Rainey Court, Virginia Beach, is currently on a deployment in the Mediterranean Sea.

He is a crewmember aboard the replenishment oiler USS Milwaukee, homeported in Norfolk, and operating as a unit of the Sixth Fleet.

During the cruise, he and his shipmates have visited Gaeta, Genoa, Naples, and Augusta Bay, Sicily; and Kalamata, Greece.

Mills joined the Navy in October 1973.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

The Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries at a meeting held in Richmond, Virginia, on January 12, 1979, adopted the following amended or new

Ferrell and Clarence A. Holland.

Council voted unanimously to delete South Boulevard from the plan.

Hanbury said that sometime in the future, somebody will have to determine whether there is a need for another east-west arterial. "If nothing is done now, it can never be resolved by future councils."

"Developers have been required to dedicate almost 90 percent of the right of way," he said, "and 27.5 percent of the road has actually been built by developers. By the year 2001 I am sure that residents of this city will need to have an additional east-west arterial."

He asked that flexibility be left for future councils. He pointed out that one of the beach's big problems is the turnover of residents - 20 to 30 percent a year. Future residents may want the road. He also asked that flexibility be provided for South Boulevard, which the city hoped to improve to provide an additional access to Mount Trashmore.

Merrick said Jack Hodge, regional engineer for the State Highway Department, said to "forget it." Hodge said, Merrick said, that the city will never get bridges across the east and west branches of the Lynnhaven of environmental requirements. He said the bridge which had to be constructed over the Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal as part of the Battlefield Boulevard Bypass in Great Bridge, was $300,000 to $500,000 more because of environmental requirements.

Whatever future generations of Virginia Beach residents may want, most present residents in the areas of the proposed highways don't want the road improvements.

Russ Dickens, representing the United Citizens Against the Parkway, said that "looking back 17 years ago, we are the future generation and our houses are in the way."

Residents opposed the road because it would divide their communities in half and would change the neighborhood. Dickens said the residents wanted secluded neighborhoods, away from the traffic, and said the multimillion dollar project without federal or state funds would be a financial drain on the citizens. He also cited the traffic hazards.

Councilman Holland said that "for people to keep their own isolated neighborhood is not what we're talking about. There will be times when we're going to want access." The item has been on the drawing board for 17 years, he said, adding that the road does go "somewhere" contrary to remarks that the road is "from nowhere to nowhere."

Standing still he was concerned about the "quality of life." He said the corridor will have a major effect on land use decisions in the future. He said he was against disrupting the neighborhood but in favor of retaining the right of way.

Dr. McCoy said, "We have two groups of people who want roads taken away. We can use the money (elsewhere)...If we were going to build the road, we should have done it a long time ago."

If the acquired right of way is declared excess, the city may or may not be required to vacate the land. Exactly what the city's position is is now clear and council is waiting for an opinion from Bimston.

Payne was also concerned about retaining the right of way, possibly for mass transit. He wanted to know whether the city would lose control of the right of way.

Baum said that the problem was that council was apparently trying to do what is popular. What we're all to do is to throw away an option. It's careless use of valuable public access."

McCoy said, "We're talking about a number of civic leagues and thousands and thousands of people."

Baum persisted that it was "premature to throw away what we have." The energy situation in future years will force everybody's life style to change, he added.

Ferrell was concerned that the area was left with one entrance and exit - Little Neck Road.

The one thing which would have made the road useful, said Ervin, was Holly Road serving as a north-south spur. The city, however, does not have Holly Road anymore, he said.

Holland offered an amendment, that if the vote for deletion carried, engineering work being done on Witchduck Road be halted and shifted to Haygood and Newtown Roads. The amendment failed to get a second.

Mrs. Oberndorf said that the people affected have been living "with the sword of Damocles dangling over their heads. A lot of pieces of property are right in the middle and these people can't do anything."

Baum asked that the city attorney's office study legal effects of the action and report back to council "in print."

Joe Mahar submitted a petition with the names of 1500 persons opposing South Boulevard development.

The residents want to keep the road for joggers, hikers, and bikers, and not as a through street of two or four lanes.

The Rev. S.L. Scott Jr., pastor of the Union Baptist Church, said the construction of the road would threaten the future of his church which is the oldest black church in the city, having been established in 1862.

Edwin Linsley Jr., speaking for his brother, said that although his brother had originally supported the road, he now concurred with the wishes of the people.

William P. St. Lawrence, general manager of Fine and Salzburg, said that his firm needed the road for access to two parcels of land of 15 and 10 acres. He said that his firm would be satisfied with a two-lane road ending in a cul de sac.

Baum pointed out, "I don't think we're obligated to provide access for anybody."

St. Lawrence asked what happened to the present right of way if the road was removed from the plan.

Hanbury said that removal from the plan does not remove the road.

"Theoretically," St. Lawrence said, "we can acquire the right of way and build the street."

Hanbury agreed but said that the private developer would not have the power of condemnation.

Beach District this week

Curtain drops on Beach roundballers in Regional tourney

With the elimination of First Colonial's Lady Patriots in the championship game of the Eastern Regional tournament, the curtain fell on the 1978-79 Beach basketball season.

Coach Janet Rowlands' Patriots advanced to the final round of regional play only to see history repeat itself, as their hopes for a trip to the state tournament were dashed by the same Phoebus team which ended First Colonial's season last year.

By the time, the Patriots took the floor Saturday night, the other three Beach regional representatives had already bitten the dust.

Cox drew a date with the Pope - David Pope of Menchville - and succumbed in the first round as Pope's 40 points put the Falcons away.

Journeying to the Peninsula for their first round game, Princess Anne's Cavaliers were treated rudely by defending state champion Ferguson, as the Marines sent the Cavaliers home with a season-ending defeat.

Kellam's girls team fared no better than the Lady Patriots in their meeting with the Peninsula District as the Knights fell to Phoebus in the first round.

Beach gymnasts wind up with State Meet

By MIKE D'ORSO

Bringing a strong contingent to the State Gymnastics Meet at Stafford, Beach gymnasts suffered through a sub-par Friday night enroute to a disappointing overall showing, although three Beach schools finished in the top five in team standings.

With two events, vaulting and the floor exercise, taking place on Friday night, and the balance beam and uneven bars competition held on Saturday, the competitors had a long weekend.

Beach gymnasts fared poorly in the vaulting competition, with Kim Humphreys of Cox giving the best showing with a 6th place finish. The brightest spot of the Meet for Beach competitors was Jaudon Conkwright's first place performance on the uneven bars. Also finishing well was Debbie Taylor, who took second place on the balance beam.

Debbie Taylor finished in second place on the balance beam while Conkwright topped Beach girls with a fifth in the floor exercise.

Conkwright finished third in the All-Around competition, as did Cox in the team standings. Bayside's Lisa Weber tied for the fourth spot, putting her team in fifth place. First Colonial, the District and Regional champions, finished fourth overall.

With 40 competitors in each event, here are the Beach representatives who finished in the top 12 in their events:

Beach athlete helps Radford program

A strong bench and the support of backup players such as Gary Booth of Virginia Beach helped the Radford College Highlanders roll to their most successful season ever this year.

Under the guidance of first-year coach Joe Davis, the Highlanders posted a record of 23-4, including a mid-season, 19-game winning streak.

Booth, a 6-4, 198-pound sophomore, missed much of the season because of illness and saw action in only seven of Radford's 27 games. But despite his lack of playing time, he still made valuable contributions to the team.

"Gary's spirit, his hard work in practice and his desire to be successful meant a lot to the team," Davis said.

Booth is a 1976 graduate of First Colonial High School and is majoring in business at Radford. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cassell of Brittany Court in Virginia Beach.

For Booth and the rest of the Radford team, the 1978-79 season ended with a 70-65 win over playoff-bound Lynchburg College. The Highlanders only joined the NCAA this year and were not eligible for post-season play.

Storybook Theatre

Youthful actors entertain all ages

By PAM VANDEVEER
Virginia Beach Sun Editor

They sing like angels. They growl like lions. They're members of Virginia Beach's Storybook Theatre company and they can make you laugh.

A peek inside their bright tangerine costume trunk (with a painted peacock on the front) reveals an array of feathers, hats, capes, sequins and ruffles. In a moment, before your very eyes, these 15 Virginia Beach youth, ages 11 to 18, are transformed into characters from fairy tale land.

Storybook Theatre is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, produced by the Performing Arts Unit. The group presents several shows throughout the year, performing at the Virginia Beach Recreation Center and for PTA's, playground programs, special education, festivals and city activities.

"Storybook Theatre is historically one of the oldest concepts in theatre, which has been updated to accommodate our modern day style of drama," points out director Jean Ann Lovell. "It's theatre by children, for children."

The group's upcoming show will be presented at the Recreation Center Theatre with performances on March 15 and 16 at 8 p.m. and on March 17 and 18 at 3 p.m. Admission is free and no reservations are required.

As is the case with all the company's shows, this week's production will utilize bright, colorful costumes and fast-paced action.

"It's very physically exhausting for the kids," says Lovell. "The show is 90 minutes long and they are all on stage the whole time. They even change costumes on stage. They present 45 things in 90 minutes."

Those 45 "things" are songs, dances, poems and stories. The group has in its repertoire shortened versions of classic fairy tales, folk tales, myths, local legends, original material, folk songs and dances and poetry.

"Each scene is very short," says Lovell. "Our longest in this show is six minutes. While part of the company presents a song, the others are changing costumes in preparation for the next scene. I'm responsible for editing the dramatizations down into the abbreviated time slots, and that's not always easy," she laughs.

Beach students from 6th through 12th grade can audition to become members of the Storybook Theatre company twice a year -- in the spring and fall.

Once chosen, actors participate in a workshop consisting of ten weeks of classes where they learn about improvisation, mime, chorus, movement, dance, voice and diction. Several weeks of show rehearsals follow.

This season's company will tour throughout the Tidewater area from April to June. Featured in the current show will be poetry by Ogden Nash and Emily Dickinson, Kenneth Graham's "Reluctant Dragon," the story of the "City Mouse and Country Mouse," and "The Three Pigs" in Spanish.

"The show appeals to all ages," explains Lovell. "Adults catch the puns and enjoy the humor. Children are attracted by the bright colors and fast action."

Site plans to inform buyers of conditions

By LEE CAHILL
Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

The City of Virginia Beach may add a few more conditions to site plans in an effort to keep the buyer informed.

Among these will be warning to aspiring country folk telling them of odors, aerial spraying, poorly-drained land and flood plain locations. Also, notification will be included if the property being sold lies within the Navy's noise or danger flight zones.

In a discussion on farmettes, a development type custom made for poorly-drained soil,

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said that some of the difficulties encountered in agricultural areas may be headed off if "we make certain people are informed."

Mrs. Henley, who has a farm in Pungo, and Councilman John A. Baum, who farms in Blackwater, have often cited the problem of the city mouse who moves out into the country by buying a farmette. A farmette isn't a farm at all, but a suburban-type lot -- only bigger at a minimum of three acres. The city folk are ready for the beauty of the country but not always for the odors from pig farms, aerial spraying of crops, poorly-drained soil and a location on a flood plain.

The aspirations of these transplanted suburbanites run counter to agricultural interests, the farmers maintain.

To prevent any misunderstandings, Mrs. Henley Monday afternoon at an informal session of council suggested warning

Beach zoning requests meet City Council opposition

Ralph Hanna and B.G. Coons may think twice -- maybe three times -- before they again buy an old railroad right of way measuring 70 feet wide by 1000 feet long.

They have this narrow strip of land which extends from Kempsville Road like a ribbon on the west side of Kempsville, south of Princess Anne Road in the heart of Kempsville. The best thing that could be done with it, think the owners, is to have it rezoned from R-6 Residential District to B-2 Community Business District for 1.126 acre and from O-1 Office District to B-2 Community-Business District on a .482 acre parcel.

Then, if a conditional use permit were approved, mini-warehouses could be constructed. To the applicants, that seems like the best use for the property.

Councilman George R. Ferrell said that the "people who own the property should have thought about (what to do with it) when they bought it."

Councilman John A. Baum said that council has "inherited headaches in the past" in similar situations. He said that easements should be offered for sale to adjoining property owners.

City Manager George L. Hanbury agreed that adjoining property owners should try to acquire the property.

Hanna said that none of the property owners dare contacted him.

He said the land was zoned business when he bought it "five or six years ago," but that it was changed without his knowledge.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf said that the land is located in an area where a deliberate attempt has been made to make the area esthetically pleasing. She also noted that after a zoning change is granted, the owners do not have to exercise the use permit and something

'Beyond competence' is school's goal

By PAM VANDEVEER
Virginia Beach Sun Editor

Attempts to broaden the goals of education in Virginia Beach schools at a time when everyone seems to be focusing on minimum competency skills may not be easy. But that is what the Parent Teacher Student Association of Plaza Junior High School, under the direction of principal Benjamin I. Troutman Jr., is trying to do.

"Beyond Competence" is the theme for a March 20 program they have planned, entitled "A Celebration of Creativity." Open to the public, the program will feature area leaders in the arts and will include student and professional displays of work done in art, dance, theatre, music, poetry and mime.

It's all part of an ongoing program developed by the school to encourage creative, critical and caring students through the arts. The message: "We want to go beyond competence to joy -- pleasure in what is done with the mind and hand."

The school has already opened its library to all as an extension of its Right to Read Program. At the library, two evenings a month are devoted to special events ranging from humorous readings, to pantomime skits to industrial arts exhibits. Participants are encouraged to browse through books or magazines, then stay for the show, which lasts from 8 to 8:30 p.m.

Dr. Troutman also points out that the school is presently pioneering a course in visual language.

Doors will open for the "Celebration of Creativity" at 7 p.m. on Tuesday. Student artwork from seven elementary schools, three senior highs and Plaza Junior High will be displayed at that time. Works of Plaza staff members and parents will also be on exhibit.

William McIntosh, Master of Photography, will show a series of slide-type programs at 7:30 p.m.

From 8:30 to 9:30 individuals in the audience will be able to choose what they want to see and hear. The Virginia Beach Civic Ballet will perform; Philip Graham, Poet-in-the-School, will create spontaneous poetry. Martha and Julia Tickner will present mime and Kathleen Lockwood will perform dramatic cuts from "The Belle of Amherst." Hope Mihalap and Betsy Trundle will represent the Virginia Opera Association.

In addition, participants may attend demonstrations by a number of guest artists. On hand will be Ray Dorosz, painting; Cynthia Flegal, textiles; Alyce Musgrove-Walcavich, painting; Linda Quillion, woodcarving; Joseph Slith, ceramics; Ginny James, stained glass; Betty Jo Woodhouse, drawing; Janet Mitchell Fishel, needlework; and Bevin Norkin, ceramics.

Other highlights of the evening will include special presentations by the school's planetarium and the visual language class.

Closing the program will be a musical performance by Walter Noona, conductor of the Virginia Beach Symphony.

The program is open to the public. There will be no admission charge.

Water project suffers setback

By LEE CAHILL

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

Virginia Beach has encountered its first setback in a desalinization project intended eventually to furnish the city with its own water source.

The higher than expected degree of salinity in the water from a monitoring well in the Little Creek area is forcing the city to change locations.

City Manager George L. Hanbury told City Council Monday afternoon at an informal session that he had "disappointing news on the monitoring well."

Based on tests at the 1600 foot Little Creek well, totally dissolved solids (TDS) are 10,000 parts per million while the city had anticipated 4,000 to 5,000 TDS. Hanbury said the higher count would necessitate higher pressure pumps which would be more costly.

Site change recommended

He recommended that the city move southwest of the existing location in the Industrial Park owned by the Industrial Development Authority to a site near Nepratex Industries. The well will be dug on property owned by Farmco, Inc. whose president Frank Miller has "cooperated tremendously" with the city, Hanbury said, and who will dedicate a utility easement.

The move, however, will add $60,000 to the city's bill although Hanbury was quick to add that the money will not be lost. The old well can be used to establish coordinates to determine the strata, he said.

According to the well contractor, Layne Atlantic, the higher-than-expected salinity was caused by a geological fault or an old river bed.

Original plans were to build two wells at the Little Creek location. The second well will now be built at the new site.

Federal grant anticipated

Hanbury said that there will be no change in the unit price of the wells, but that he was concerned about the time frame. The city is expected to report to the federal government by May 1. Virginia Beach has been selected as one of the demonstration sites for desalinization by the Office of Water Research and Technology. The city has been anticipating a federal grant of $4 to $6 million.

As a point of reference, Hanbury pointed out that seawater has 35,000 TDS per million.

Hanbury said that the plant would be located at the Little Creek site and that the water would be pumped from the second well. Water will be tested at both sites.

Nepratex Industries has a well with about the salt content being sought by the city. The second well will be located about 2000 feet from the Nepratex well.

Student art on display at Great Neck branch library

Throughout the month of March there will be a display of art work done by students of Lynnhaven Junior High School at the Great Neck branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library.

The art display includes pencil drawings, pen and ink drawings and prints done by the eighth and ninth grade students of Ms. Cheryl Capps and Ms. Marianne Michaels. The display is free and open to the public during public hours of the library.

Tidewater Coin Club holds Coin-A-Rama

Tidewater Coin Club will hold its 3rd Anniversary Coin-A-Rama at the Sheraton Beach Inn at Oceanfront and 36th Street, Virginia Beach, Saturday, March 17 and Sunday, March 18.

Coin-A-Rama will include educational exhibits such as displays from the United States government and local police and security units, competitive exhibits of rare coins and numismatic material, and displays by approximately fifty dealers of coins, stamps and other items of numismatic interest from throughout the country.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. Each person attending will receive a free coin as they register and free door prizes consisting of gold and silver coins will be given away during the show. Admission is free. The public is invited to attend.

Foundry United Methodist holds groundbreaking

Foundry United Methodist Church held groundbreaking ceremonies recently on Sunday, March 4, for a new sanctuary.

In addition to a large crowd of parishioners, the groundbreaking was attended by the first pastor of Foundry Church, Rev. Douglas Ebert, Superintendent of Norfolk District of United Methodist Church, Rev. F. Douglas Dillard Jr. as also in attendance as were John Pruhs, lay leader of First Methodist Church, Norfolk; Herman Grube, architect who drew the plans for the building and S.C. Voliva, contractor for the new structure.

There was a presentation of flowers by Mrs. Herbert Smith, charter member of Foundry Church, to Rev. and Mrs. Ebert and to the present minister, Rev. Bartee and his family. There were also presentations by Rev. Dillard from the Builders Club of Norfolk District and a special gift from Rev. Bartee's 97 year old uncle, Guy Presnell from Tennessee.

Rev. Ebert, guest preacher, spoke of the beginnings of the church in a sheepfold in 1958. That first service was on Sept. 13 of that year and was attended by 22 people. There were 377 in attendance on March 4 at the groundbreaking.

Following the message by Rev. Ebert there was a communion service during which the congregation moved from the present sanctuary, outside to the site of the new one to complete the groundbreaking and finally to partake of a joint communion.

Those taking part in the groundbreaking ceremonies were Robert Powell, chairman of the building committee; William Somerville, lay leader of Foundry Church; John Brewington, president of the men's club at Foundry; Rev. Douglas Dillard, superintendent of Norfolk District; Rev. Douglas Ebert, first pastor of Foundry; John Pruhs, lay leader of First United Methodist Church, Norfolk; Roger Schoenhardt, United Methodist Men; Mrs. Vivian Mathews, president of the Women's Society; Kevin Van Horn, president of the youth group; Mike Warren, representing the children of the church and Rev. John Bartee, pastor of Foundry Church.

Following the service there was a reception and fellowship time for all.

Zoning appeal price up

The cost of an appeal to the Board of Zoning Appeals has been increased from $25 to $50 by Virginia Beach City Council.

The change was approved Monday afternoon on recommendation of City manager George L. Hanbury who said the present fee is not sufficient to cover administrative costs.

Appeals under Section 205 of the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance, pertaining to major recreational equipment, will remain at $10.

Sheltered workshop plans grand opening

The Virginia Beach Sheltered Workshop Association, a facility dedicated to providing employment for the mentally handicapped citizens of Virginia Beach, will conduct its grand opening March 16.

The Mayor of Virginia Beach, the Honorable James Standing, will officiate at a dedication ceremony to be held at 1 p.m. in the workshop's new facility at 3432 Virginia Beach Blvd. Invitees include Governor and Mrs. Dalton, members of the City Council of Virginia Beach, Congressman Whitehurst, State Senator Joe Canada, officials of the State and City governments concerned with Mental Health and the general public.

Classes set for adult diabetics

A series of four free classes for adult diabetics and their families will be given by General Hospital of Virginia Beach. The classes will meet on four consecutive Wednesdays, beginning March 21 and ending April 11. All classes begin at 7:30 p.m. in a meeting room at the hospital.

A physician's recommendation is not required, but pre-registration is necessary because class size is limited. Call the hospital's main telephone number from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays.

The course includes films, slide presentations, group discussions and speakers, with no session lasting more than two hours. All programs will be presented by members of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach staff. Instruction will be general, not individual.

These classes are planned for persons over 18 years old. Parents or teachers of young diabetics are welcome. If sufficient interest develops, a special series could be held for juvenile and/or teenaged diabetics.

Navy wives present art exhibition, auction

The Navy Norfolk All Officers Wives Club will present an exhibition and auction of fine art from all over the world as a benefit on March 17. Original oils, watercolors, and graphics by internationally famous artists will be on display. All art is custom framed, guaranteed by written certificate, ready to hang in home or office.

The auction will be held at the Damn Neck Officers Club. The exhibition and reception will begin at 6:30 and the auction at 7:30. Cost is $3 per person with hors d'oeuvres and no host bar. Master Charge and Visa accepted. A piece of fine art will be offered as a door prize.

For reservations call Sue Lamon, 499-8894, or Margaret Roberson, 547-3547.

Colonial Dames XVII Century host meeting March 17

The Virginia Beach members of the Suffolk Chapter, Colonial Dames XVII Century, will host the meeting on Saturday, March 17, to be held at the Canterbury Room, Thalheimer's Tea Room, Military Circle.

The business meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. The guest speaker Miss Kathy Guion, administrative assistant of the Municipal reference center, will speak on "Colonial Virginia Beach - Its History and Folklore" at 11:30 a.m. A luncheon will follow the program.

The membership of the Suffolk Chapter extends from the Peninsula to Suffolk and encompasses Virginia Beach, Portsmouth, Chesapeake and Norfolk. The program will point out two of the prime objectives of the Virginia Society, Colonial Dames XVII Century, to foster interest in historical Colonial research and to develop a library specializing in the 17th century American Colonial data.

Adam Thoroughgood chapter holds monthly meeting

Mrs. Joseph B. Sadler, Director of the Oral History Project, Virginia Beach, will be the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Adam Thoroughgood chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. The chapter will meet at the Kim Memorial Library in Norfolk on Thursday, March 22 and 10 a.m.

Mrs. William Harry Austin Jr., hostess for the meeting and State Chairman of the Genealogical Records Committee, reminds members to bring Family Bibles and family records to be xeroxed. A report of the state conference of the Virginia DAR held at the Omni International Hotel March 12-14, will be given by the regent, Mrs. Rice M. Youell Jr., and the chapter's delegate, Mrs. Milton W. Thorpe. New member Mrs. Thad A. Broom will be officially welcomed.

Stained glass classes

Stained glass enthusiasts take note: Registration is almost complete for the spring session, and pre-registration is underway for the summer session of professional instruction in leaded stained glass art for beginners at The Tiffany Touch Stained Glass Studio and School in Virginia Beach. Advanced classes in slab-glass and lampmaking are also being scheduled.

Starting April 4, classes limited to eleven beginners will be offered over an eight-week period each Wednesday from noon till 2 p.m., and on Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The summer session will begin June 12. Students completing the 16-hour course will fabricate a mirror equal to or exceeding the value of the tuition which is $80.00. Tools and supplies valued at approximately $50-$75 will be needed.

Street lights required

For years, developers have been including street lights in subdivisions, so it wasn't until one decided not to that the City of Virginia Beach learned that it had no ordinance requiring street lights in as part of its site plan regulations.

City Manager George L. Hanbury told council Monday afternoon that standard lamps have always been used, coordinating with Vepco requirements, and developers "have been doing it voluntarily for years."

But to make sure in the future, an ordinance requiring street lights will be presented to council next Monday.

New shows on display at Beach Arts Center

The exhibition "Early Chicago Architecture," which opened at the Virginia Beach Arts Center March 10 and will continue through March 31, presents a selection of photographs and measured drawings of structures that attained importance in the Chicago School of Architecture between approximately 1880 and 1910.

The photographs, plans, and drawings were selected from the rich files of the Historic American Buildings Survey, a unit of the National Park Service which for the last two years has supported intensive projects of recording significant Chicago structures. Sponsored jointly by the Historic American Buildings Survey and the Smithsonian Institution, this exhibition is currently on a nationwide tour under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service. It is sponsored in Virginia Beach by the City of Virginia Beach through its Arts and Humanities Commission.

Accompanying the Chicago architectural exhibition is a selection of contemporary paintings, drawings, and color zero art by San Francisco artist, James Weaver. Weaver is a native of West Virginia, who holds a Master of Fine Arts degree from the San Francisco Art Institute. Weaver's abstract works are concerned with investigations into the nature of spatial relationships and color.

The exhibitions of "Early Chicago Architecture" and the Weaver show will be on display at the Virginia Beach Arts Center through March 31. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The exhibitions are free and open to the public.

A third show sponsored by the Arts Center is an exhibition of drawings by former Arts Center President, Edward G. Carson. Carson heads the firm of Edward G. Carson and Associates, Inc., in Norfolk. He studied art and sculpture at the National Art School, Washington, D.C.; Asbury College; Norfolk State College; and the Chrysler Museum Art School, and has been painting seriously since 1963 after receiving First and Honorable Mention Awards in the Virginia Beach Boardwalk Art Show.

The West Virginia native has been the recipient of over 80 awards in painting, sculpture, and drawing, including seven Best in Show Awards throughout the East Coast.

Learn about St. Patrick at the library

March 17th is the feast day of St. Patrick, patron saint of Ireland. It's Ireland's greatest national holiday.

The life of St. Patrick is a great source of tradition and legend that has become a part of Irish history. St. Patrick's profound influence on Irish history and customs becomes clear as we study about this colorful country.

Visit the Virginia Beach Public Libraries and read about the past and the present and see how people the world over celebrate St. Patrick's Day.

Flexibility needed

The National Academy of Sciences' report on saccharin suggests the most sensible resolution yet proposed to the dilemma posed by discovery of the artificial sweeteners' cancer-causing properties.

The outright ban on saccharin advocated by the Food and Drug Administration on 1977 would, we think, adversely affect the nation's diabetics as well as those millions afflicted with obesity. But, by law, the FDA is prohibited from considering these effects once the link between cancer and saccharin is established.

What the National Academy of Sciences' report recommends is, in essence, a careful balancing of saccharin's cancer-causing potential against its acknowledged health benefits as an artificial sweetener. Thus, saccharin might be restricted in ways that would preserve its usefulness to those who need it most while curtailing consumption by the general public.

To enable the FDA to implement such a solution to the saccharin problem, Congress must amend the FDA law. This would permit a reasonable resolution of the controversy.

Equally important, the FDA would thereby be granted the flexibility it needs to make rational decisions about scores of other commonplace substances whose usefulness may outweigh the danger inherent in a marginal link to cancer.

Late filers face interest penalties

This year taxpayers must file their returns on or before April 16, since April 15 falls on a Sunday. What happens if a taxpayer doesn't meet this deadline?

When a taxpayer does not file a return by the due date, the IRS can impose a penalty of five percent of tax due for each month; or part of a month, that the return remains unfilled, up to a maximum penalty of 25 percent.

Payments of taxes due should be made with the tax return when it is filed. The IRS can charge interest on taxes not paid on or before the due date, even if an extension of time for filing is granted.

In addition, the IRS can set a penalty of one-half of one percent of the unpaid taxes for each month, or part of a month, beyond the due date that the tax remains unpaid. The maximum penalty is 25 percent.

else may go up in place of the mini warehouses.

The applications were denied by a vote of 7-4 with those voting against denial including Councilmen Reid Ervin, Clarence A. Holland, Donald Merrick and J. Curtis Payne.

Council considered two requests involving flag lots, another subdivision arrangement which has given rise to a few headaches in the past.

Flag lots are lots set behind other lots with only a narrow frontage on the road for access. In one, council denied the request of Phil Bonifant for a subdivision variance on a 3.58 acre site on the north side of Indian River Road, west of West Neck Creek, Princess Anne Borough. Bonifant wanted to subdivide this site into three lots so that his sons, (who are primary school age) could each have a lot, he said. The flag lot would have a width of 29 feet on the road where the required lot width is 150 feet.

In a second request, Walter W. Russell, III, who already had subdivision clearance for flag lots on his property, asked a variance on a 1.05 acre site on the east side of Woodstock Road, north of Providence Road, Kempsville Borough to waive curb and gutter.

He was granted his request by a vote of 10-1 (Holland voted no) because there were no other curbs and gutters on the street.

Council also denied the application of Larry O. and Jeanie Wenger for a change of zoning from AG-1 Agricultural District to B-2 Community Business District on a 2.2 acre parcel at the intersection of Sandbridge Road and Lotus Drive.

City budget will be cut

The 1969-1970 budget for Virginia Beach will be cut, possibly by as much as $1.5 million from its present $45 million, as presented by City Manager Roger Scott.

Monday evening council met with School Board representatives, with an eye toward paring down the $23.8 school budget. Another meeting was tentatively set for Wednesday night and additional meetings are also scheduled with department heads before the budget public hearing on April 14 at 10 a.m.

City Council does not have the authority to cut specific items in the school budget, but it can cut the total city share of money sought, leaving the specific cuts up to the school officials. The city share request is now $10.6 million. The rest is to be provided by other sources, including the state and federal governments. ...

Amendment on water defeated

Despite efforts of Virginia Beach State Sen. Edward T. Caton III, an amendment to a segment of the state constitution concerning State Corporation Commission control over Norfolk's water lines in Virginia Beach was soundly defeated.

Caton's amendment would have provided for SCC control of rates on municipal utilities outside the limits of the city that owns the utility. The action was specifically aimed at giving the SCC control over setting the rates of water in Virginia Beach, although Norfolk owns the lines and provides the water.

The amendment was defeated 31-8, although it was passed last week in the House of Delegates. The rate for water in Virginia Beach at present is much higher than in Norfolk. ...

Abandoned building may be parking lot

The fate of the old Dept. of Public Works building at 18th and Arctic in Virginia Beach Borough now lies in the hands of City Council. At its informal meeting Monday council heard a recommendation by the building committee that the old World War II barracks be demolished and the land be used as a parking lot.

No decision was made at the meeting, but the sentiment was that the building should be razed as soon as possible and that use for a city parking lot or for some other ground lease should be explored fully in the next two weeks before council's regular meeting on April 14. A final decision is expected then. ...

Expressway tolls rise

February was a profitable month for the Virginia Beach - Norfolk Expressway, with all receipts above those of the same month of a year ago.

Records show 831,000 vehicles travelled the roadway during the month, an increase of 226,000 vehicles over February of last year. Revenue from tolls amounted to $156,000 for a $42,000 increase over revenue received during the same period of 1968.

The revenue from the expressway's operation was sufficient enough to leave a sum of $138,550 after payment of operating expenses. This sum was applied to bonds used in building the roadway and was $25,217 above the month's interest on the bonds.

the buyers about what they're getting into by adding conditions to inform on the site plans.

Councilman Reid Ervin then asked whether the same thing could be done to tell buyers they were going to be located in or near a flight path from the Naval Air Station at Oceana.

City attorney said that such notations can be made on subdivision plats.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that many conditions are already required on site plans. Additional conditions would only be applicable on new plans.

Any changes which would be made on old plats would require enabling legislation from the General Assembly, he said.

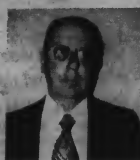

Bimson was directed to prepare an ordinance listing conditions which would be sought by the city.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Your number's up

By Harvey J. Ridinger
Field Representative

Wrong claim number may delay payments

You can assure faster payment of your medical insurance claim if you make sure your correct claim number is on the claim form.

Use of the wrong claim number or omission of the number on the form is the reason for one of every three delays that occur in the payment of medical insurance claims.

Your health insurance claim number identifies your claim when you request Medicare payment on bills for medical services.

If you put a wrong number - or don't enter a number - on the request for medicare payment form, a search for your correct number is necessary. The search can delay your payment.

The health insurance claim number appears on the card issued to everyone covered by Medicare.

It has nine numbers followed by a letter symbol, such as A, B, F2, etc.

This claim number should be copied, including the letters onto the designated place on the request for Medicare payment form.

The medical insurance part of Medicare helps pay for doctor bills and many other medical expenses for almost everyone 65 or over.

Request for Medicare payment forms are available at most doctor's offices and at the Social Security Administration office.

If a doctor and his patient agree, the doctor can be paid directly by Medicare. If the patient sends in the claim, the Medicare payment goes to him.

Medicare pays 80 percent of reasonable charges for covered medical services after the $60.00 annual deductible has been met.

The medical insurance is the voluntary part of Medicare, funded by individual premiums that are matched by the Federal Government. It supplements Medicare hospital insurance, which is funded by regular social security contributions and helps pay hospital bills of people 65 and over.

If you have lost your medicare card or if you need claim forms or have any questions about Medicare, please call the Social Security Administration office. The number is 441-3401. The address is Federal Building - 6th Floor, 200 Granby Mall, Norfolk, Virginia 23510.

Beach sophomore elected student association whip

Robert T. Mooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Mooney of Virginia Beach, has been elected Student Association Whip at Mary Washington College for the 1979-80 session. As a whip, Mooney, a sophomore at the four-year, coeducational college, will serve as chairman of the campus student lobbying group and represent special concerns and interests of the student body to the SA Executive Cabinet. His parents live on Gardenia Road.

Make-up day scheduled

The School Board, at a special meeting on Tuesday, March 6, voted to use Thursday, March 29, 1979, as the "make-up" day for the day schools were closed because of snow.

Russian history course offered at TCC

The Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College is offering a new course in Russian history beginning in the upcoming spring quarter beginning March 26.

"A Survey of Russian History III: The Revolution to the Present" presents a history of the Soviet regime. Major topics of discussion will include the rise of the Communists to power, Stalin's role in Soviet history, dissent in the Soviet Union, Russian life today, the Soviet Army and Navy during periods of war and peace, and the future of the Soviet Union.

The class will meet Mondays, 4:45 - 6:45, in Room C-149 at the Virginia Beach campus. Registration for this and all other classes is underway and will continue through March 21. For additional information, contact the Virginia Beach campus at 427-3070.

sophomore in the College of Arts and Science, and Martha is a freshman in the School of Business Administration.

Spectrum courses to begin

The Spectrum program of non-credit courses for the spring quarter begins at the Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College March 22.

This quarter's Spectrum offerings include two new courses dealing with investments. In addition to the popular "Investments and Tax Shelters" which meets Thursday evenings beginning March 29, "Listed Option Investment Strategies" will meet Tuesdays beginning March 27, and "Mutual Funds: Their Use and Abuse" will meet Thursdays beginning March 22.

The investments courses are taught by qualified investment experts affiliated with local offices of top-rated national firms.

Students may register for Spectrum courses by mail. For registration forms and additional information, contact the Office of Continuing Education at 427-3070.

Top academic achievement cited at Randolph-Macon

A Virginia Beach student has been cited for top academic achievement at Randolph-Macon Academy in Front Royal, Virginia, following the completion of the third grading period for the current session at the college-preparatory institution.

Stanley Lincoln Stevens Jr., the son of Cmdr. and Mrs. Stanley L. Stevens Sr. of Locke Lane in Virginia Beach was among 15 students included on the Academy's First Honor Roll after compiling a perfect 4.00 grade-point average on a 4.00 system. He is a sophomore at R-MA.

Beach student takes part in urban renewal study

Allen E. Anderson of Virginia Beach is one of 15 Virginia Tech architecture students participating in a joint enterprise in design education and urban renewal involving the affairs of East Baltimore, and particularly the neighborhood of Berea.

Service academy nominations include Beach students

Fourth District Congressman Bob Daniel has nominated 31 young men and women for the United States Naval Academy, Military Academy, Air Force Academy and Merchant Marine Academy for the 1979-80 term.

Daniel selected his nominees on the basis of high school grades, scores of the College Entrance Exam Boards, recommendations, and extracurricular activities.

Nominated to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland from Virginia Beach are Raymond Bryant and John Michael Cooney.

Graduates

The Princess Anne Jr. High School held its Winter Sports Banquet in the cafeteria on March 5. Special guests were Leo Anthony, coach of basketball at Princess Anne High School and Gino Carballo, an all around outstanding athlete.

Special presentations were made to Carol Liverman for her dedication to the athletes as their bus driver and to Ben Brackins for all his support of the boys basketball team as an assistant coach. Tim Cordrey was presented a trophy for the most improved basketball player.

MVP's were:

Wrestling - Melvin Ridley - City Champ;
Gymnastics - Kathleen Walizer;
Girls Basketball - Dana Cason;
Boys Basketball - Brian Brackins.

Office ed students hold appreciation night

Cooperative Office Education students in the Virginia Beach public schools will hold their tenth Annual Appreciation Night at the Cavalier Hotel beginning at 7:30 p.m. on March 31. The C.O.E. students will honor their employers for giving them a year's office experience. Certificates will be given to the employees by the students.

Approximately 150 business firms in the Virginia Beach area participate in the Cooperative Office Education program. The businesses provide on-the-job training experience for juniors and seniors enrolled in the COE program of the six senior high schools. Students attend classes at the high schools part of the day, and work in the offices part of the day.

Several of the employers to be honored have participated in the program for more than ten years. These long-time employers will also be recognized.

This year's event is expected to draw over 350 students, employers, teachers, and school officials.

Toastmasters name Roberts

James D. (Doug) Roberts, member of the shipyard's Merrimac Toastmasters Club and a Shop 67 Electronics Mechanic Instructor, was recently appointed Administrative Lieutenant Governor for Toastmaster District 66.

Roberts, who also held the position during the 1974-1975 year, will be working with the district's 36 clubs throughout the state of Virginia.

His responsibilities involve membership quotas, club extension, district and club directories, and district goals.

Roberts, who is an ordained minister in the Pentecostal Holiness Church, has been actively engaged in toastmaster activities for several years. He held the office of Area Eight Governor from 1973 to 1974, and served as Educational Lieutenant Governor for the district from 1975 to 1976. In addition to serving as Merrimac Club president, he has also held other offices.

James D. Roberts

Roberts lives on Clearfield Ave. in Virginia Beach.

Beach woman promoted at Norfolk Naval Shipyard

Ms. June W. Price was recently promoted to the GS-12 position as administrative officer of the Norfolk Naval Shipyard's Planning Department. Her position is that of senior advisor to the planning officer on management and employee programs for approximately 825 employees in various areas of planning.

June W. Price

During her 21-year Navy career, which began as a GS-2 clerk typist at the shipyard, she held positions in the secretarial and management fields. She has worked at the Naval Ship Engineering Center, Norfolk Division, with Commander Service Force, Navy Manpower and Material Analysis Center and the Naval Air Rework Facility (NARF).

It was from a position as a GS-11 management analyst at NARF that she returned to the yard last year. She said "my philosophy for getting ahead is to continually strive for efficiency so as to be prepared when opportunity presents itself."

Ms. Price, a Portsmouth native, graduated from Churchland High School. She lives on Ocean Shore Avenue in Virginia Beach.

Shopping center development

The site of Clyde's Market, at the intersection of Shore Drive and Great Neck Road, to many a landmark, is being developed by a local group of businessmen into a 19,000 sq. foot shopping center. Construction has started and completion of Seashore Shoppes is scheduled for May, 1979. The estimated cost of the improvements is approximately $800,000. The permanent and construction financing has been handled by Atlantic Permanent Savings and Loan Association. The shoppes are of modern design with skylights, and the store front will be glass trimmed with white fluted block. The leasing is handled by W. Clay Nobles of Thomas C. Kyrrus & Associates Realty, Inc. of Virginia Beach.

Renovation

The Lynnhaven Inlet Fishing Pier, which was originally built in 1955, is undergoing considerable renovation at a cost of over $300,000 to its owners, as announced by Charles Cashman and Julian Absalom. The Pier is located on Shore Drive between Seagate and Cape Henry Condominiums at the foot of Star Fish Road. It is 20' wide, extending 1,580 feet into the Chesapeake Bay. Now piling has been driven to accommodate the new 9,000 square foot building on top of the pier and is likened to an over-sized boathouse. One-half of the building will accommodate a fish and tackle shop, game room, gift shop, public baths for fishermen and bathers, a snack bar and a fresh seafood restaurant overlooking the Chesapeake Bay. It will have a parking lot for 175 cars and the entire facility is scheduled to open April 15, 1979. The leasing has been handled by Thomas C. Kyros & Associates Realty, Inc. a Virginia Beach firm specializing in commercial and residential properties.

Notes from the shelter industry

Land Use Plan is policy, not law

By LIN J. COOPER

Director of Communications Tidewater Builders Association

While it doesn't quite parallel the which-came-first-the-chicken-or-the-egg riddle, there does seem to be some misunderstanding as to the type of document the Virginia Beach Comprehensive Land Use Plan actually is. Is it the parent of the Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance or the child? Does it bind or merely suggest?

The main source of the confusion seems to revolve around the fact that the CZO, in existence since 1973, obviously pre-dates the Land Use Plan and therefore, in the minds of some residents, the latter seems to be a defining or refining of the CZO. As witnessed at recent rezoning request hearings, there seems to be a tendency to call up the Land Use Plan as the final say in a rezoning request. "We should avoid making any exceptions to..." are the words most often heard. This view is a misinterpretation of what the planners intended.

The Land Use Plan is the philosophy; the CZO, the practice. The Land Use Plan is general; the CZO, specific. The Land Use Plan is policy; the CZO, law.

It's useful to review the language of the plan itself. Page 11 of the document states, "The idea behind the land use plan, then, is to use it as a guide, not as a binding document." Further, "It should not be assumed that there is only one suitable use for each parcel in the city, and that the land use plan recognizes that use. Deviations from the proposed pattern may very well be acceptable..."

Of course a close evaluation of the intent of the plan should be made before embarking on any decisions pertaining to rezoning, but the overall flexibility of the plan is apparent and explicit.

Logically, a comprehensive land use plan, which outlines the areas in which growth is expected to take place over a period of time and offers general guidelines for the way in which growth will occur, would be the first document to be drawn up. From this general outline should then flow the specific ordinance or ordinances.

Having the CZO pre-date the Land Use Plan has muddled the issue. But in fact there is not a chicken-and-egg riddle at all. Specific land use efforts in Virginia Beach date back to 1972 when Council adopted seven area development plans. The continuing pressure of very rapid growth resulted in the Virginia Beach Tomorrow plan, a study which was two years in the making. The present is a legitimate heir to all those efforts.

The state of Virginia has ruled that all cities will have a land use plan by 1980, and other Tidewater cities have had them for some time. Chesapeake has had a plan since 1972, and the planning department in that city is currently in the process of updating its studies aimed at projecting future growth until 1990.

Virginia Beach, due to its phenomenal past growth and projected future growth, is addressing itself at this time to a five-year projection. This seems reasonable.

Builders welcome the land use plan; they support the concept and they support the plan itself provided that it is not interpreted as a rigid, thou-shalt-not document from which any slight deviation would be scrupulously avoided. Every society and government must have some leeway, some flexibility in assessing particular circumstances and cases while at the same time trying to achieve an overall goal or pattern. This is especially true in a city such as Virginia Beach where the demographics of growth are still considered volatile because the city is growing so fast and demand for housing and other services is so strong.

Certainly builders appreciate the fact that every rezoning request cannot and will not be granted; but they also believe that every rezoning request should be examined and considered on its special individual merits as well as the general guidelines. The builders association supports the concepts embodied in the Land Use Plan with the emphasis on the word "plan".

Development funds approved

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon approved the application for $2,569,000 in Community Development funds for the 1979-80 (Fifth Year) entitlement program.

Included were $1,643,000 for water and sewer projects in Atlantic Park, Gracetown/Beechwood, Newsome Farm and Queen City. $275,000 for drainage projects in Doyletown, and $651,000 for the rehabilitation loan/grant program; relocation assistance; acquisition of real property, local option activities, contingencies, and administration.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In this proceeding the petitioner seeks to acquire by condemnation the fee simple title to a certain parcel of land situated in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, for the construction and maintenance of that certain public sewer project known as "Gracetown Sewer Project," which property is shown and described more particularly in the petition and exhibit attached thereto on file in the office of the Clerk of this Court, to which reference is hereby made for a full and accurate description thereof; and for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain just compensation to the owners of any estate or interest in the property to be taken or affected as a result of the taking and use thereof by the petitioner.

For such purposes the petitioner will apply to the Court on the 1st day of May, 1979, at the courthouse thereof, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, VA, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard, for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain just compensation as aforesaid.

And it appearing by affidavit filed according to law that the following owners are not residents of the State of Virginia, or their names and addresses are not known and that diligence has been used by and on behalf of the petitioner to ascertain such names and addresses without effect: EDWARD G. FENTRESS, JR., HARRY ALDEN FENTRESS, JOHN W. FENTRESS, CLAUDE H. FENTRESS, JR., RAYMOND C. FENTRESS, CLIFFORD DORMAN FENTRESS and MARGARET E. BABER, heirs of C.H. FENTRESS and R.G. MOORE, and their lien creditors, if any, and heirs at law, if any; it is ORDERED that the aforesaid owners do appear within ten (10) days after due publication of this order in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, and to do what is necessary to protect their interests; and it is FURTHER ORDERED that if any of the above named owners desire to assert any objection or defense to the taking or damaging of their property or to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the case and to proceed with the appointment of commissioners they shall file their answer and grounds of defense designating the property in which they claim to be interested, the grounds of any objection or defense to the taking or damaging of their property or to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the case and to proceed with appointment of commissioners for the determination of just compensation.

Should any such owner fail to file their answer and grounds of defense as hereinabove provided, such failure shall not preclude the owner from appearing on the date set for the appointment of commissioners nor from presenting evidence as to valuation and damage nor from sharing in the award of just compensation according to their interest therein or otherwise protecting their rights, but such failure shall preclude such owner from any other defense by way of plea in bar, abatement or otherwise.

And it is FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Order shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun, and a copy hereof shall be posted on the bulletin board of this Court.

NOTICE

To: F. Donald Reid and Bonnie Y. Reid
2268 Elbow Road
Chesapeake, Virginia 23320

You Are Hereby Notified that the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, a municipal corporation, will, on the 1st day of May, 1979, at 9:15 o'clock A.M., or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard, apply to the Judge of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, at the Courthouse thereof, for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain what will be the just compensation for certain lands or interests therein which the City of Virginia Beach proposes to condemn for Project known as Gracetown Sewer Project, as shown on the plat attached to the Petition filed in the above styled cause, and to award damages, if any, resulting to the adjacent or remaining property of the owner(s), beyond the enhancement in value to such property which may accrue by reason of the taking and construction of the work mentioned. The ownership, location and description of the property which is proposed to be condemned, the nature of the construction and the location of the Project will fully appear in the Petition and exhibits filed with the same. A copy of the Petition is annexed hereto.

If you fail to appear and submit a list of prospective commissioners at the date and time hereinabove specified, the undersigned will move the Court to submit a panel of prospective commissioners on your behalf, and from the lists submitted to select a panel of nine (9) freeholders to be summoned for the trial of the issue of just compensation.

You are further notified that Grounds of Defense shall be filed, in writing, within twenty-one (21) days from the date this Notice is duly served, and it shall include the value of the property to be taken and an appraisal of any and all damages which may result to the residue by reason of the taking.

Your Petitioner, City of Virginia Beach, a municipal corporation of the Commonwealth of Virginia, files this Petition in accordance with Section 2.01 of the Charter of the City of Virginia Beach, Title 15.1, Chapter 18, Article 7; Title 33.1, Chapter 1, Article 7; Title 25, Chapter 1.1, of the Code of Virginia, 1950, as amended, and such general laws as are applicable for the purpose of condemning the hereinafter described property, and represents as follows:

1. That the City Attorney and/or Assistant City Attorney has been appointed the agent and attorney for the City of Virginia Beach and has been duly authorized to institute these condemnation proceedings and to conduct the same in the name and on behalf of the City of Virginia Beach.

2. The real property and easement(s) which are to be taken in this proceeding lie in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, and are described as follows:

All that certain lot, tract or parcel of land, together with the improvements thereon belonging, lying, situate and being in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, and designated and described as "Lot 1, Block 1" as shown on that certain plat entitled: "PLAT SHOWING SEWER, WATER AND UTILITY EASEMENTS FOR THE CITY OF VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA BAYSIDE BOROUGH," and recorded in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, in Map Book 116, at Page 49, to which reference is made for a more particular description.

3. The plans above referred to are on file in the Department of Public Works, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23456. A copy of the plat of the property owned by the defendants which is affected by this proceeding is attached hereto marked "Exhibit A" and is prayed to be read as a part of this Petition. The property taken in fee simple is outlined in Red on the plat aforesaid.

4. The property to be taken is necessary for the construction, reconstruction, alteration, maintenance and repair of a public sewer project in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia; known as Graceton Sewer Project, Bayside Borough. More specifically, this project is for the construction and improvement of a section of said sewer system, and will include the right to construct, reconstruct, repair, improve, alter and maintain the same in accordance with the plans referred to above. The right hereby acquired include the right to utilize the land in the future, (1) for construction, reconstruction, alteration, improvement, repair and maintenance of said sewer system; (2) for all other sewer, street, highway and public municipal purposes, and; (3) in accordance with all the rights and incidents normally acquired in the property as owner of the fee simple title thereof, with respect to the portion of said property acquired in fee simple.

5. Your petitioner has made a bonafide but ineffectual effort to acquire said property by purchase from the owner(s) thereof, but has been unable to do so because all persons having an interest in said property are not ascertainable to your petitioner and there are or may be parties unknown having some right, interest or title therein.

6. Your petitioner is of the opinion that the persons entitled to an interest in the compensation to be ascertained in this proceeding are: F. DONALD REID and BONNIE Y. REID, EDWARD G. FENTRESS, JR., HARRY ALDEN FENTRESS, JOHN W. FENTRESS, CLAUDE H. FENTRESS, JR., RAYMOND C. FENTRESS, CLIFFORD DORMAN FENTRESS and MARGARET E. BABER, their heirs at law, devisees and assigns, as well as other persons denoted herein as "Parties Unknown."

WHEREFORE, your petitioner respectfully prays to this Honorable Court in accordance with the provisions of Title 25, Chapter 1.1, of the Code of Virginia, 1950, as amended, that commissioners may be summoned and appointed to ascertain and report the value of the land taken and damages, if any, which may accrue to the remaining property of the owner(s) beyond the enhancement in value, if any, to such other property by reason of the taking and use; that the Court direct that all other steps be taken to carry out the intent of Title 25, Chapter 1.1 and Title 33.1, Chapter 1, Article 7, of the Code of Virginia, 1950, as amended, as may be necessary; and that the petitioner may have such other, further and general relief as the nature of its case may require.

Virginia: In the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach

CITY OF VIRGINIA BEACH,

a Municipal Corporation,

Petitioner,

City bus route prepared

Virginia Beach is looking ahead to the time when gasoline will be in shorter supply and priced out of sight.

At the request of Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr., Tidewater Regional Transit is preparing what will be the city's first intracity route. McCoy is also chairman of the Transit Commission.

McCoy said that the TRT will probably prepare a choice of three or four suitable routes with costs for submission to council. He expects the routes should be ready in three or four weeks.

The route, according to McCoy's speculations should take in an area which includes a hospital and three parks.

He said the route would in no way be designed to displace the surfing special summer bus which has been highly successful.

The intra-city line would have the added advantage of connecting with intercity lines on Virginia Beach Boulevard and Shore Drive.

In the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, on the 9th day of March, 1979.

Donald Lee Midgett, Plaintiff, against C79-390
Constance Maye Midgett, Defendant.

Businessmen charged with tax evasion

Two Tidewater-area businessmen have been sentenced in U.S. District Court at Norfolk on charges of Federal income tax evasion.

U.S. District Judge John A. MacKenzie sentenced 35-year-old Coley K. Dunbar and his 31-year-old brother, Mitchell, currently doing business as AAA Heating and Cooling Company at 201 Horace Avenue in Virginia Beach, to serve 60 days in jail with the remainder of their two one-year prison sentences suspended. The two were also fined five-thousand dollars each and placed on three years probation.

The Dunbars pleaded "no contest" on January 4, to two counts each of attempting to evade a portion of the Federal income tax liability of Coley K. Dunbar, Incorporated, for the years 1972 and 1973.

During those years, when Coley was president and Mitchell vice president of the firm, they also operated as Commonwealth Heating and Cooling Company, Natural Gas Service Company, and AAA Home Improvement Company. All the firms were involved with the sales and service of heating, air conditioning and home improvements.

According to the indictment handed down last November 13, the Dunbars understated the income of Coley K. Dunbar, Incorporated, by more than 18-thousand-400 dollars ($18,406.67) for 1972 and '73, resulting in the attempted evasion of some 56-hundred dollars in taxes ($5,566.42).

In addition to the criminal sentence imposed, the Dunbars are also required to pay the taxes owed as well as interest and civil penalties to be assessed.

Agreement cuts red tape, releases development funds to Virginia Beach

By LEE CAHILL

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

Against a backdrop of fighting among various city agencies, the first loan or grant application for rehabilitation in low-income neighborhoods will be ready for submission in less than ten days.

Virginia Beach City Council Monday afternoon approved an agreement which had already been signed by City Manager George L. Hanbury with the Virginia Housing and Development Authority (VHDA).

The agreement releases $200,000 in Community Development funds for rehabilitation loans and grants which have been tied up in red tape for months.

The action, however, was opposed by representatives of the Community Development Corporation who believe control of the program should be separate from the city government and in local rather than in state hands.

After an hour of discussion at an informal meeting of council Monday afternoon, Councilman John A. Baum had had enough and remarked that council should just allow the agencies to fight it out among themselves.

Hanbury said that his only interest was in freeing the money for the people at the least cost by using city employees for resource people and eliminating the need for another bureaucracy. He added that Monday's ratification of his agreement was necessary to meet the March 15 deadline for releasing the funds set by Mrs. I. Margaret White, regional director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

As an alternative, council approved the formation of a Community Development Corporation which could serve as a vehicle. The corporation is a non-profit independent organization with six members — of which two are council Appointees, two are from the Citizens Advisory Committee, and two are appointed by the other four members. The six members are self-perpetuating. Sam Houston is chairman.

The corporation submitted a budget of $49,000, much of which will be used for salaries of administrators.

Avoiding another bureaucracy

Charles Reynolds, president of Atlantic National Bank and a corporation treasurer, said that the biggest concern seems to be the budget, but said the corporation would have to have the tools to do the job.

Hanbury turned to the VHDA because the 1979 General Assembly passed legislation which permits community development funds to be segregated from other funds and the city can now lend money without lending its credit. He said, "No longer, (does the city) have to be at arm's length" and there is no need for a separate bureau. He said that he saw the corporation as another bureaucracy.

Hanbury did not rule out the possibility that the city could continue to deal with the corporation in the future. He said of the program with the VHDA that it was "not in lieu of any other arrangement." Working with the VHDA has the added advantage, he said, of putting more money into the program. VHDA has committed $500,000 of its funds to the program, he said, which is a 2-1 ratio. He said that VHDA's interest rate of 8% will be written down to 3 percent for target area residents.

The loans will also be available to other residents who are not in the target areas.

The cost of the VHDA program is $50 an application. He said he would not recommend spending $50,000 for the Corporation budget. He said that if council did not ratify the agreement, he would have to tell Mrs. White that "we're back dealing with the corporation and may not have a legal vehicle."

Councilman Reid Ervin agreed that since the corporation was self-perpetuating, the only control council had was through a monthly report.

Mechanism for making loans

Ben Moore, Community Development director for the city, said the VHDA program is merely a mechanism for making loans.

He said the loans or grants will be processed locally, served by a local bank. He said there is still a role for the corporation, but the question is the cost of carrying out that role.

Mayor Patrick L. Standing cautioned that the corporation was established originally because the city could not lend money to individuals under former laws.

Houston said the Community Development Corporation was initially approved by council and that the budget is "just a red herring."

"We have been accused of setting up a bureaucracy. I see DEVELOPMENT FUNDS, page 6

Virginia Beach Blvd.

Eight lanes or not, the cost is the same

The eight-laning of Virginia Beach Boulevard will cost approximately $40 million and may even double that figure by the time the road is completed, according to Virginia Beach City Councilman Reid Ervin.

Ervin said that $2 million has already been spent on the road design and that Jack Hodge, district engineer for the State Highway Department, said the cost of the road has been estimated at $40 million. Ervin reported that Hodge said that figure could be doubled. He also quoted Hodge as saying that he did not think that eight lanes were the answer.

At a recent public hearing on the road, some merchants located along the highway opposed the eight-lane design, which would eliminate the feeder roads. Also opposing the design were Councilman Donald Merrick and State Senator Glenn McClanan.

Council Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. was critical Monday afternoon of a councilman (Merrick) and a "Discipline, drive" make dancer's dreams come true

By PAUL VANDERVOORT
Virginia Beach Sun Staffer

Stage lights and rehearsal schedules are not new to Virginia Beach ballerina Monique McCloud. At the age of 12 she's already given a fare share of performances, her most recent being one that many dancers only dream of — an appearance with Barishnikov himself in Balanchine's ballet "Harlequinade" at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

Monique was one of 32 auditioned and selected to appear in the ballet by David Richardson, ballet master for the New York City Ballet. Over 300 dancers auditioned for the parts.

Two weeks of rehearsals with the company followed, with performances at the Kennedy Center running from Feb. 14 to March 3.

"It was something," Monique recalls of the experience. "Dancing there really made me feel like a professional!"

The performances were the young dancer's first opportunity to dance with a live orchestra, an experience which can spoil you, laughs her mother, Mrs. J.R. McCloud.

"With live music you can feel the vibrations on stage," she explains. "The conductor can direct the music to breathe with the dancers. Monique is used to taped music, and there you have to keep up with the tape."

And what was it like working with the famous Barishnikov? "He is friendly," says Monique. "And he can really jump."

A student at the Tidewater Ballet Association, Monique has been studying dance for nine of her 12 years. Dance lessons are part of her everyday routine.

Under the direction of Teresa Martinez, Gene Hammett, Susan Borree, Patricia Sorrell and Richard Salinas, she attends lessons and rehearsals seven days a week, four or five hours a day. She's been going everyday since she was eight years old.

"You have to practice every day or you'll get stiff," she explains. During those hours of practice she attends separate classes in ballet, adagio (dancing with a partner), pointe (toe dancing), advanced jazz variation, repertoire, character and mime.

Mrs. McCloud says that in the beginning she pushed her daughter in the direction of ballet because she was once a dancer herself.

"Every teacher said she had potential. You have to have the body for it — and brains, too. There's a tremendous amount of choreography to learn and it takes a lot of discipline and drive."

"She's going to have some decisions to make soon though," she adds. "If she wants to be a professional she has to have the best possible training now. The demands on her time will force her to miss

Money virtually frozen

The money had been virtually frozen because Virginia Beach had no vehicle for administering the funds. The city was prohibited because Community Development funds received by the city were considered under state law as commingled with other city money as soon as it is received. State law prohibited the locality from extending credit to private individuals, so the city was stymied.

To correct the situation, the establishment of a local Redevelopment and Housing Authority was proposed but rejected by citizens in the communities involved, the Community Development Committee and eventually by the council itself.

Citizens expressed the fear that an Authority which would have condemnation powers would leave some of them homeless. Hanbury favored an Authority only if council served as the Authority to avoid creating another agency which would siphon some of the community development funds off the top. Citizens objected to this concept as well.

Councilman Riggs challenges proposed water cost increase

Virginia Beach City Councilman R.L. Riggs wants to see proof that the City of Norfolk's announced water cost increase is justified.

In a statement to City Council Monday afternoon, Riggs said that "until the City of Norfolk can prove to the citizens of this city that we are costing them money through the use of their water, this city should begin legal action to prevent any further raising for our citizens."

Although other council members were apparently sympathetic to Riggs' stand, there seemed to be little hope that the Beach would escape the higher cost of water.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that the 1972 agreement with Norfolk states that if water rates are increased $64,000 -- for the period from April 3 to July 1.

The two other alternatives are not to implement the price increase at all or to implement it immediately.

He said that if council

City works to open Rudee Inlet

The City of Virginia Beach is working against the clock to open Rudee

Inlet but it will still be two or three weeks before this is accomplished.

Senator Joseph Canada Monday afternoon told City Council that Rudee Inlet was closed for all practical purposes at low tide. He said there were two accidents last Sunday. The fishing and sightseeing businesses need help, he said.

City Manager George L. Hanbury said that two sand bar areas all built up on the north and south jetties, and the Erosion Commission would be given two more days to correct the situation before calling in Cottrell Engineering Corporation. The company, Hanbury said, will charge $35,000 for mobilization and demobilization and $5,000 a day for the work. The commission's estimate of $60,000 for the work may be reduced, he said, since the commission has done some of the work.

In answer to a question from Councilman R.L. Riggs, Hanbury said that the U.S. Corps of Engineers will not take over the inlet until the jetties have been extended.

In the meantime, he said, Rudee Inlet is the city's responsibility. Hanbury said he would bring in an appropriation ordinance for the work next Monday.

On your mark, get set, go!

The parade down Atlantic Avenue in Virginia Beach Saturday morning was an awesome sight as 1,610 runners took off at the start of the Seventh Annual Shenrock Marathon. Winning the 26 mile race was Barry Neeth with a time of two hours and 22 minutes.

1979 Easter Seals

Mayor Patrick L. Standing receives the first sheet of 1979 Easter Seals from Robin Vaderson, Tidewater Easter Seal Child for 1979. Robin, who attends Ingleside School in Norfolk, is visiting Mayors of Tidewater to personally deliver first issues of the 1979 Easter Seals in their cities. The Virginia Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults will mail over 600,000 sheets of the 46th issue of Easter Seals this week as part of its annual appeal. In Tidewater, some 185,000 people will receive these 1979 Easter Seals, which were first mailed nationally in 1934.

Business women's chapter reports on spring events

The Queen Neptune Chapter of American Business Women's Association held its Spring Enrollment Event and Birthday Celebration on Thursday, March 8, at Fort Story Officers Club. Several members and guests attended the celebration and enjoyed the dinner, program and birthday refreshments.

Carol A. Beasley, Queen Neptune Chapter's Woman of the Year, was presented with a lovely corsage and the Woman of the Year Trophy. She was selected by the chapter in February and will represent her chapter at the national ABWA convention in the fall.

Carol is employed by the Shopping Center Department of Pembroke Realty as Administrative Assistant. Among her many accomplishments was the promotion and opening of "The Alley" at Pembroke Mall.

Clothing gathered for charity

Used clothing for Church World Service, contributions collected by various churches in the Virginia Beach area, should be delivered to the clothing depot at Lynnhaven Colony United Church of Christ, 2217 North Great Neck Road, between the hours of 2 and 5:30 p.m. on Sunday, March 25, according to an announcement by Dorothy France, of Ashland, regional director for Church World Service in Virginia. A truck will pick up the clothing early Monday morning to transport it to Church World Service headquarters, New Windsor, Maryland, for processing.

Blankets, sewing supplies, and soap will also be accepted, along with most types of men's, women's, and children clothing. Certain items, however, are not needed and cannot be accepted: shoes, hats, purses, men's ties, hose, and foundation garments. All clothing contributions should be packed in sturdy cardboard containers (with tops) and securely tied. Clothing packed in plastic bags cannot be accepted.

Cash donations of fifteen cents per pound of clothing donated are also being solicited by Church World Service, the funds to be used to cover the cost of shipping and processing.

Japanese flower arranging studied by garden club

The Laurel Cove Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. Donice Schumm recently to hear Mrs. Sharon Sumner's presentation of Japanese flower arranging. Mrs. Sumner gave a brief history of Ikebana (Japanese flower arranging) and demonstrated many styles of the art.

Arrangements and horticulture specimens are judged by members of the Great Neck Estates Garden Club. Ribbons were awarded Jane Jones, Anne Marvin, Donice Schumm, Connie Brown, Ginny Kieran in the artistic division and Betty Baker, Donice Schumm, and Margie Multer for horticulture.

Open My Eyes

God open my eyes so I may see
And feel Your presence close to me...
Give me strength for my stumbling feet
As I battle the crowd on life's busy street,
And widen the vision of my unseeing eyes
So in passing faces I'll recognize
Not just a stranger, unloved and unknown,
But a friend with a heart that is much like my own...
Give me perception to make me aware That scattered profusely on life's thoroughfare
Are the best GIFTS of GOD that we daily pass by
As we look at the world with an UNSEEING EYE.

Break for 'little' people

The Treasury Department is taking a new look at regulations limiting the amount of interest that banks and savings and loan associations can pay on deposits.

And a likely beneficiary of changes under study would be the smaller depositor, who is now cut off from the higher interest rates that attract wealthier investors.

The multifying weight of government regulation keeping interest rates down for the small saver is surely the main reason the rate of saving is so low in this country, less than 5 percent of personal income.

The saving rate is by far the lowest of any modern industrialized country and is a major factor in causing our high rate of inflation.

Under particular scrutiny are the certificates bearing interest linked to that paid by the Treasury itself. Currently the so-called money market certificates are offered only in denominations of $10,000 and up. There is considerable sentiment to reduce the minimum denomination to as low as $2,000 and to initiate variable maturity terms to attract the small investor.

Giving the small saver access to the higher interest now enjoyed only by large depositors is an objective that should be pursued with greater urgency than has yet been shown, either by the savings industry or the Congress.

Reform the crazy-quilt

The way in which the federal government disperses the job of managing those natural resources held in public trust has defied organizational logic for as long as anyone can remember.

Administrative responsibility for water resources, for example, is split among the Army Corps of Engineers, the Agriculture Department's Soil Conservation Service, and the Department of Interior's Bureau of Land Reclamation.

The oceans and the atmosphere are the joint responsibility of the Departments of Commerce and Interior.

The Departments of Agriculture and Interior share responsibility for the administration of public lands.

It's a crazy-quilt pattern that hampers efforts by Congress and the White House to formulate consistent resource-management policy.

The White House's Office of Management and Budget and the president's reorganization task force recommended this new structure following an extensive year-long study. It remains now for Mr. Carter himself and the Congress to draw the appropriate conclusions from the staff work at hand.

Committee commended for park efforts

Twelve members of the Mayor's Committee on Pendleton State Recreational Park Monday afternoon were commended in resolutions approved by City Council for their successful efforts toward having the park opened for public recreational use.

They were H. Jack Jennings Jr., George L. Ayers, W. Hugh Kitchin III, Arthur L. Collins, Dorothy Traub, Gerald Rosenheim, Charles Krummel, Alice Hanson, William G. Foster Jr., David M. Grochmal, Aubrey C. Artwright and Phillip J. Terveer.

The adjutant general of the National Guard has agreed to lease the total beach front at Camp Pendleton to the City of Virginia Beach over a three-year period for public recreation use.

Sunday afternoon cruise

The arrival of spring this week is already setting many Virginia Beach minds to thoughts of summer recreation. A visit to Rudeo Inlet last weekend revealed many boat lovers preparing their crafts for warm weather fun.

Yesterday's Sun April 17, 1969

Holland Rd. Involved In planning

City Manager Roger Scott has said he will try to include the widening of Holland Road in the five-year capital improvement plan he is working on.

Scott's statement grew out of a meeting between him and other city officials concerning the condition of the road near Kellam High School. Plans were made at the meeting to improve the safety of that particular strip of road.

Two "S" curves west of the school are particularly dangerous. Scott has asked the Highway Department and the Right-of-Way Division to make immediate plans for straightening the curves, improving the shoulders and erecting more caution signs.

Five fatalities have been recorded from accidents on the road since 1966. In addition there have been seven accidents in the past three months from Landstown Road east to the high school. ...

Police explode large still

A team of Virginia Beach policemen, along with federal and state agents, has raided what has been described as one of the largest stills found in the resort city in a number of years.

The still was located in a wooded region several hundred yards behind a small house on W. Neck Road near the intersection with West Landing Road. ...

According to officials, the Sunday morning raid followed a stake out of the property which began Friday afternoon and continued around the clock.

Investigators said the still had capacity of 1,650 gallons, with additional equipment which would have raised the capacity to 1,925 gallons. The still had its own water supply from a nearby well, a portable generator to supply electricity and was fired by a low pressure oil burner boiler. ...

Before leaving the area members of the raiding party destroyed the still by the use of 50 one-half pound blocks of TNT. ...

Industrial tract surveyed

VEPCO officials joined Virginia Beach officials Tuesday morning in witnessing the start of surveying of a new industrial land tract situated on Diamond Springs Road opposite Bayside Elementary School.

The site is planned for use to supplement the recently acquired property which formerly served as the Little Creek Ferry Station. The land, which is owned by the City of Virginia Beach, is comprised of 183 acres. Although no commitments have been obtained the site is being surveyed to determine the size of plots which could be offered companies which may desire to locate there. ...

Apartments flood council

By tacit agreement there was a short moratorium on the approval of apartment and townhouse applications for zoning and use permits by City Council, but if Monday is any indication, it is all over.

In recent months many multiple-family housing applications have come in for sharp scrutiny by City Council, especially based on school board letters attached to the applications that stated new schools would be needed to handle the students who would live in the units. Many applications were delayed several times, causing a jam of apartment and townhouse applications. Monday the dam apparently was broken, although still others were deferred for the same reasons.

Most of the deferrals began with money problems council was facing concerning the budget and new real estate tax appraisals. The need for new schools and the cost of them was investigated closely. Critics of this pointed out that the schools will be needed anyway, and that orderly development and growth cannot be stymied because of the need for new schools.

This apparently was the point that broke the jam, and as many as 1,000 apartments could be built on land approved for this type of housing Monday in areas where new schools definitely will be needed to take care of the residents. ...

Children can get SSI

By JOHN G. UHLAR
Field Representative

Many parents with adequate income may be surprised to learn that payments under the supplemental security income (SSI) program are not made only to adults, but to blind and disabled children as well.

Many people do not seem to be aware that age is no barrier to receiving SSI payments as a blind or disabled person.

SSI payments are made to people who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, who do not have much income and do not own much in the way of property.

In the case of children, the parents' income and resources (property) are taken into account when eligibility is considered. However, once a child reaches 18 (or 21 if in school) only his or her own income and resources count - regardless of the income of the parents.

To be considered disabled for SSI, a child must have a physical or mental impairment comparable in severity to one which would prevent an adult from working. And it must last or be expected to last 12 months or more or result in death. Blindness under the SSI program is defined as central visual acuity of 20/200 or less in the better eye with the use of corrective lens or visual field restriction of 20 degrees or less.

Anyone knowing a disabled or blind child who might qualify for SSI should suggest that the person responsible for the child contact the nearest social security office. A parent, guardian, or other responsible person can apply for SSI on behalf of the child.

More information about SSI can be obtained at the Norfolk social security office. The people there will be glad to explain the program and to help anyone complete an application. The office is located in the Federal Building, 200 Granby Mall, 6th floor, and the telephone number is 441-3401.

TIDEWATER COMMUNITY COLLEGE-VA. BEACH

Today College Counts

By Dr. William Bridges
Director of Continuing Education

TCC has variety of spring courses

The Spectrum program of Community Education courses for spring offers many choices for recreation, hobby, first-aid, personal development, business, and general interest. The Chesapeake Campus plans and offers a complementary program of non-credit courses to those offered by the Frederick and Virginia Beach campuses.

The spring Spectrum program has a variety of classes such as Swing Disco, Dog Obedience, Small Animal Pet Care, Psychic Awareness, Auto Mechanics for the Car Owner, Sign Language, Photography (Beginning and Advanced), Spring Gardening, the Art of Fishing, Oriental Flower Arranging (Ikebana), CPR, Multi-Media First-Aid, Adventures in Attitudes, Investments, Virginia Real Estate Exam Prep, and the Decisions in Drinking series.

Classes begin on March 24 and are taught one night per week for six or eight weeks. Fees charged cover instructional costs and materials. These courses are not supported by state funds. Classes are offered in response to interest expressed by the community. If a group has a special interest or need, the Office of Continuing Education makes every effort to arrange a Spectrum class to meet that need.

Students, in many cases, earn the Continuing Education Unit (C.E.U.) which is awarded as evidence of participation in an organized educational experience under responsible sponsorship, capable direction, and qualified instruction. One C.E.U. is awarded for each ten hours of instruction.

The Office of Continuing Education also offers Community Service classes which are usually free to the community. One example of this program is the "Law Everyone Should Know" series offered at Chesapeake in the Fall Quarter, at Frederick in the Winter Quarter, and at Virginia Beach in the Spring Quarter.

Swing Disco, one of the most popular classes, teaches the basics of contemporary swing dancing. Students learn enough to go out and have fun at the disco clubs. The First Aid/Medical classes in CPR (Cardio-Pulmonary Resuscitation) and Multi-Media First Aid provide training that can often mean the difference between life and death.

Some new additions to the Chesapeake program for spring are Beginning Dog Obedience, Small Animal Pet Care, Spring Gardening, Psychic Awareness, and Oriental Flower Arranging (Ikebana).

Dog Obedience teaches handler and dog basic manners and obedience. The Small Animal Pet care (taught by a graduate veterinarian) class will cover a variety of topics in pet health and welfare.

Spring Gardening will cover how to plan a garden, seed selection, gardening methods and problems. Psychic Awareness will explore ESP, meditation, clairvoyance and psychometry.

Oriental Flower Arranging (Ikebana) will give a student the opportunity to learn and to create individual and unique flower arrangements using native materials. This is a new technique to the area and one that is becoming extremely popular in decorating.

Adventures in Attitudes is a personal growth course designed to help the individual improve mind and spirit through positive thought and action. Investments will cover the many types of investment vehicles available to the beginning investor. Students will examine who should invest, why should they invest, and where should investments be made.

The Virginia Real Estate Exam Prep class covers material necessary to passing the Real Estate Salesmen's examination for Virginia. Photography (Beginning and Advanced) is a class that helps students improve their photography skills in picture taking and development.

Sign Language teaches students how to communicate with the deaf. Auto Mechanics for the Car Owner offers a chance to learn to work with your own car and cut down on repair bills. The Art of Fishing, a "regular" class in the schedule, teaches students about Chesapeake Bay fishing and how to succeed!

Senior citizens may qualify for tuition waiver in the Community Education Spectrum program. Call for the information sheet if you are interested in learning more about this opportunity.

The twenty courses offered in the spring Spectrum program represent a wide range of interests. TCC invites suggestions and requests from the public for new courses. If you have a skill that you can teach and if you feel that your skill would be of interest to others, call the Office of Continuing Education to receive an application and Spectrum course proposal.

Registration for the Spectrum program is going on now. You can visit the campus at 1428 Cedar Road to register or you can call 547-4515, extension 49 and register by mail. Call today for forms, information, and a course list. Today college counts!

Brown graduates with honors

Debbi S. Brown of Virginia Beach has been awarded the degree of Bachelor of Science in Speech Pathology and Audiology magna cum laude by Ithaca College. She has been invited to attend the commencement exercises in May.

Miss Brown is the daughter of Mrs. Gloria P. Brown of 4004 Ocean Front, Virginia Beach.

Counselors attend workshop

Wanda Allen and Edward Rigby of Tidewater Community College, Virginia Beach campus, were among some 25 community college counselors from more than a dozen campuses in the statewide system who met at Virginia State College March 6 to explore transfer opportunities and financial aid for their students.

USM honors four Beach students

The fall semester dean's list at the University of Southern Mississippi includes four students from Virginia Beach. They are Kathleen Marie Connor, Mark Wilson Laird, Mikel Galen Laird and Candyce A. Bowe.

Two Virginia Beach students place in contest

Two elementary school students from Virginia Beach are among winners in an art contest sponsored by the Old Dominion University Dismal Swamp Programs.

The contest was held to commemorate the 6th anniversary of the establishment of the Dismal Swamp Refuge. Entries were received from Hampton Roads students in the first through fifth grades.

Winners from Virginia Beach are Scott Marshall, first grade from King's Grant Elementary School, first place; and Forrest Lyell, fourth grade from Plaza Elementary School, honorable mention.

First and second-place winners were awarded for each grade level, along with honorable mentions for entries depicting the swamp's history and preservation. First-place winners received an environmental education field trip of the swamp, second-place winners a one-year subscription to the "Ranger Rick Magazine," and those awarded honorable mentions received a Dismal Swamp coloring book.

Darrell Davis, left, of Virginia Beach, a civil engineering student at Virginia Tech, receives the Donald W. Smith Memorial Award. Presented by Mrs. Margaret Smith of Christiansburg, the award is given each year to the outstanding student in the surveying curriculum within the civil engineering department.

Lynnhaven Jr. High student named essay contest winner

Virginia Beach Federation, Future Homemakers of America.

Kellye's essay was chosen from entries submitted by fourteen FHA chapters in the Virginia Beach Federation. Lynette Beck, student at Kellam High School, received a special recognition for her essay.

Kellye's essay will now be placed in competition on the regional level. The winner from the regional contest will then be entered in the state competition with the Virginia Association, Future Homemakers of America.

"Everyone Is a Homemaker" is the title of the program of work for all FHA chapters in the state of Virginia. The essay contest was promoted to bring attention to the changing roles of men and women in our society and to make others aware that homemaking is no one's career, but everyone's occupation.

Lynette Beck (L.), a Kellam High student, assists Lynnhaven Junior High student, Kellye Cash (r.), in displaying an FHA Future Homemaker poster at Kellam High School. Kellye's essay, "Everyone is a Homemaker," was the recent essay contest sponsored by the Federation FHA. Lynette received special recognition for her essay.

First Colonial takes one-act play to Charlottesville

First Colonial High School will take its one-act play to Charlottesville next month as a participant in the state Group AAA Virginia High School League one-act play festival.

First Colonial has earned the right to go to the state festival by being named a Distinguished Participant in both the Beach District and Eastern Region festivals, held at the Virginia Beach Little Theatre on March 1, and March 8, respectively.

All six Virginia Beach high schools participated in the district festival. Kempville and Princess Anne received the highest rating in that festival along with First Colonial, but in the regional competition, only First Colonial won the highest rating.

First Colonial's play is entitled "Adaption" by Elaine May. The faculty director is Joyce Harper, and the student director is Lauri Miller.

Members of the cast are Keith Morrison, David Rosche, Stephanie Bunting, Diane Dines, Allyson Gonzales, Ken Knight, Bob Kohrher, and Jennie Lasko.

Most talented

Andrea Dawa Mott of Virginia Beach received the Most Talented Non-Finalist award in the annual Miss Longwood pageant, held at Longwood College on March 10. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Mott, Andrea is a freshman music major at Longwood.

Notes from the shelter industry

It's true they just don't build 'em like they used to

By LIN J. COOPER

Director of Communications, Tidewater Builders Association

How many times have you heard the old saw, "They just don't build them like they used to." It's true. In many ways they are building them better.

The greatest gain in the home building industry has been in the thermal performance of the home. In the days of cheap energy, insulation did not have a high priority in housing construction. But all that changed with the oil embargo in 1973 and the subsequent four-fold increase in fuel costs.

Now it is not unusual for builders in the Virginia Beach and Chesapeake areas to put R-11 insulation into the walls and crawl spaces and R-19 in the ceiling. This meets the standards established by the Veterans Administration and the FHA for this area.

Builders know more now about the value of proper sizing of furnaces and air-conditioners. Research has shown that home buyers have been purchasing oversized equipment and paying larger fuel bills because of lost efficiency.

Metal insulated doors and thermal windows are new in the past 10 years or so. Recent developments in chemical engineering have made possible caulking materials that are far superior in preventing air infiltration.

Many buyers lament the passing of the large brick fireplace. But a good quality prefabricated fireplace produces more heat than its masonry counterpart. On the average, only about 13 percent of the heat from a brick fireplace goes into the home. The rest goes up the chimney. Prefabs are about 25 percent efficient. Many can recapture wasted heat around the firebox and direct it into the room. Tighter fitting dampers mean less heat lost up the chimney when the fireplace is not in use.

One of the most obvious changes in homebuilding in recent years is the wider spacing of wall studs. Many builders are switching from the traditional 16-inch spacing to 24-inch spacing.

Accurate grading of lumber has been a major factor in allowing reductions in structural members. In the past, builders didn't always know the quality of the material, so they used a lot of it to be sure the structure was sound. Originally, the 16-inch spacing was chosen because it was a round number from the tip of the finger to the elbow and, therefore, easy to measure and construct.

Since then, advances in engineering have given manufacturers better control over quality, and testing has determined just how much load a two by four can carry.

"Homes today are built one-and-a-half to two times stronger than they have to be," say researchers at the National Association of Home Builders. "In the old days, homes were overbuilt three to four times stronger than necessary."

And less unnecessary structural material in walls, floors and ceilings means that a greater area can be insulated, adding to the energy efficiency of the home.

Floors are stronger than they used to be. Although particle board may be used instead of plywood for underlayment, builders are using a better quality of lumber for the loadbearing parts of the floor. Many are using glue in addition to nails when they install the floor. Glue prevents shifting and squeaking, but still has enough give to allow natural shrinkage of the wood.

Drywall has replaced plaster as a finish for most interior walls. Drywall is by far the easier of the two to install. It is easier to repair, is not as expensive, and it won't crack if the home buyer decides to hang a picture or install some shelves.

Virginia Beach and Chesapeake both allow the use of plastic piping made with polyvinylchloride or PVC. Plastic pipes are less costly and lighter than metal pipes. They can't corrode and the smooth interior finish is not as susceptible to clogging.

In most cases roof framing is now assembled away from the job site. About 70 percent of new homes use trusses instead of erecting rafters one by one. Trusses do sacrifice attic space but they use less wood and are stronger than traditional roof framing.

Production under controlled and inspected conditions assures the buyer that roof framing will be uniform and stable. Traditional roof framing pushed most of the roof's weight against the outside walls. Trusses redirect some of the thrust downward easing tension on walls.

Exterior finishes are visibly different from older homes. Prefinished maintenance-free aluminum siding and prefinished exterior wood paneling are the result of the public's greater demand for leisure time.

Staff manager award goes to Beach man

Joel Bernhard of Virginia Beach has been honored for outstanding sales achievements in 1978 by the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. He was presented the runner-up staff manager award by John G. McElwee, John Hancock president and chief operations officer.

Bernhard has won recognition at the runner-up leading sales staff manager for four years.

The presentation was made at the company's President's Club meeting, a five-day business conference of leading district agency representatives held at the Contemporary Resort Hotel.

Total sales of the Norfolk district office in 1978 amounted to more than $58 million. The office is located at 5656 Shell Road, Virginia Beach.

Million Dollar Circle Awards presented by TBA Sales and Marketing Council

Scott Ayers of Realty Consultants of Virginia received the Tidewater Builders Association Sales and Marketing Council's Million Dollar Circle award for being the top salesperson in 1978. His new home sales for the year totalled $6,233,221. Awards were presented at a recent TBA general membership meeting.

Pete Barker of Larasan Realty/Better Homes and Gardens with sales of $5,564,857 and Donald Kay of Professional Realty with $5,187,765 were second and third place winners. All three firms are based in Virginia Beach.

A special award, "New Guy on the Block", made to a salesperson who had the highest new home sales volume and was also just licensed in 1978, went to Linda Ritchie of the Christopher Development Company. Her volume total was $1,220,000.

Several advertising awards were made this year for the first time. An award for the best marketing brochure went to Ed-Mar Construction Company and Larasan Realty/Better Homes and Gardens for the brochure on the Pine Needles subdivision. Redmond, Amundson and Rice prepared the brochure. Christopher Development Company won the best advertisement award for its newspaper ad marketing Tanglewood. The ad was designed by Gerstin and Zaslow Advertising Agency, Inc.

The Million Dollar Circle Awards are presented to builders, salespersons and realtors who are employed, retained or supervised by a member firm in good standing of the TBA Sales and Marketing Council and are individual members of the Sales and Marketing Council.

To qualify for the Million Dollar Circle award, recipients must have sold one million dollars or more worth of new homes during the 12-month period before December 31, 1978. Fifty-four recipients were recognized in 1979.

In computing the total sales, the sales price of each new home was used, regardless of commission or whether the new home was co-brokered. Only those sales that were closed from January 1, 1978 through December 31, 1978 were eligible.

Garrison named to committee

William E. Garrison, Supervisor of Secondary Health, Physical Education and Safety, has been selected to serve on the 1979 Legislative Committee of the Virginia Association of School Executives (VASE).

Garrison and other committee members will serve as a directing group for VASE's participation in activities preliminary to next year's General Assembly session.

Garrison was nominated for the position by Dr. Philip E. Meekins, president of VASE and Director of Diagnostic and Counseling Services in the Virginia Beach Public Schools Instructional Services department.

Beach gardeners should know growing roses is not a chore

By DR. MEYER KRYCHER
Past President, Tidewater Rose Society

Editor's Note: 1979 has been designated "The Year of the Rose" and is being supported by 18 major horticultural organizations. The following is excerpted from the Norfolk Botanical Garden Society's recent bulletin, which was dedicated to the rose.

Growing roses never needs to be a chore. The oft-heard remark that "it takes too much time" just isn't true. Roses will grow anywhere that weeds thrive. But with a varying degree of care, one can grow better roses. One does not need a specific "time slot period" to get one's work done. In gardening, take advantage of any available time. It can be only a few minutes or much longer. There is hardly any job in the garden that cannot be interrupted and continued at a later time. Short periods of ten or fifteen minutes can be very productive.

Specifically, it could be a short walk-around tour of part or all of the garden, picking up a little debris here, pulling off a yellowed leaf there, or similar tasks. When going around the yard, I like to take along a one gallon plastic bucket and a pair of light pruning shears.

There always seems to be an unruly shoot going off in the wrong direction that should be removed or a broken cane to be cut off. Or perhaps a cane that needs retrimming after picking a rose in haste.

One can also be alert for the first appearance of black spot, even just on one leaf. To remove it, pull downward very gently until there is a little snap indicating the beginning of separation. Lift the leaf upward and complete the removal. This method of leaf removal avoids tearing a strip from the cane that causes an open wound, slow to heal, and even subject to disease entry.

Another so-called time consuming activity is spraying. With only a few rose bushes, the jar sprayer device that is attached to a garden hose is ideal. The jar contains a measured volume of concentrated mix. Be sure to follow directions. This will deliver from one half a gallon to two or more gallons of proper spray rapidly, accurately and effectively, using normal city or pump water pressure. The spray deflector permits an upward direction so as to get good underleaf coverage, and when turned downward, good overall application. This jar sprayer is within reach of any pocketbook. For more than a dozen or two bushes, a hose-jar sprayer is too wasteful and a tank-sprayer should be your next choice.

Many people, when buying their first rose bushes, are apt to be attracted to low priced bargain sales. In the long run, they will be disappointed. Many such plants are not first grade. Nearly all are the old style roses. Hybridizers have taken many years to improve the qualities found in the newer roses, gathering seeds from known crosses as well as unknown ones.

Thousands upon thousands of new seedlings are grown and tested for better and newer colors, better rose form, improved substance for keeping quality, greater numbers of petals, disease resistance, and in recent years, the inclusion of fragrance. Out of those thousands, one or two dozen will be selected to be tested for two years in test gardens. From these a few are selected for commercial production and patenting. An organization known as the AARS (All American Rose Selection) then evaluates the test roses and selects one or two for approval, with the official AARS designation.

These AARS rose selections reach the buying public at a cost of $4.00, $4.50 or even $5.00. But these newer roses are a far cry from the older roses. All are of exhibition quality and worth the extra cost.

Currently there are several outstanding new roses. Paradise is a hybrid tea, in the lavender color range but tinged with bright pink and red which comes and goes until fully mature when the pink turns to ruby red. It has some resemblance to the floribunda named Angel Face.

Sundowner, a grandiflora rose, has an intense orange color with salmon tinted edges of the outer petals, fading to a soft pink. Both of these roses are very fragrant. A third recently introduced hybrid tea is Double Delight which has a striking combination of ivory white petals with edges of cherry red. The eye appeal of these three alone would make any visitor to your garden want to start growing roses.

Out of the many hundreds of varieties, the following list may be used when starting a small rose garden, in addition to the three already mentioned:

Red: *Chrysler Imperial (HT), Muster Lincoln (HT), Orange Red: *Tropicana (HT)
Pink: *Royal Highness (HT), Duet (HT), *Queen Elizabeth (grandiflora)
White: *Garden Party (HT)
Blend: Confidence (HT), Peace (HT), Swarthmore (HT)
*Tiffany (HT)

(HT) = hybrid tea.

(The asterisks indicate some of my favorites)

Red: European
Pink: Gene Boerner
Orange Red: Orange Sensation
Mauve: Angel Face
White: Iceberg; Ivory Fashion

Another variety is the polyantha rose or Fairy. Given room, with a minimum of pruning, one bush will develop into a massive display of pink flowers, needing very little care.

Miniature roses are gaining a strong place in many gardens. And miniature they are in every sense of the word, from size of bloom to size of leaf and bush. Try to visualize a full arrangement of three of these little jewels in a thimble, or a bouquet arrangement in a one ounce jigger. Intriguing, isn't it?

The Norfolk Botanical Gardens is fortunate in having an outstanding attraction in its Bicentennial Rose Garden. Started just a few years ago there are now over 3000 rose bushes covering a vast array of hybrid tea, grandiflora, floribunda, polyantha, shrub and climbing

Chemlawn opens new office

Chemlawn, the nation's leading lawn-care company, announces the opening of a new branch office at 5770 Thurston Ave., Virginia Beach. In making the announcement, branch manager Rick Beard, also stated that since Chemlawn's founding 10 years ago, the company has serviced over a half-million lawns of every variety and condition. "We're basically a service company," Beard said, "since there is neither a contract nor prepayment required. The only way we get paid and keep our customers is doing the job right."

He also said that "agronomy and the science of lawn care" are becoming a more recognized factor among home-owners, resulting in part, from the vast assortment of often confusing and dangerous chemicals now available to the consumer. Home-owners, he said, may often find their azaleas destroyed while in the process of trying to control crabgrass. "We just can't afford those kind of mistakes...and neither can the average homeowner."

Assisting Beard in the new branch office will be lawn specialists, Mark Ulatowski, Jeff Havens, George Miller and Sue Hallman.

SNAPPER Facts: Functional design, sensible price.

The rear engine design of a SNAPPER rider provides unrestricted visibility, less fatigue from engine heat, exhaust and noise, and a smoother cut resulting from less matted grass in front of the cutting unit. With a short wheelbase, less weight on the front tires and no gears in the steering mechanism you get immediate response steering for cutting in tight places.

Add in On-the-go adjustment of cutting height and speed, the floating cutting unit which minimizes scalping and damage.

Before you buy a rider, compare the quality and performance features of a SNAPPER. You'll find SNAPPER is worth more because it does more. And, its price is competitive with other quality mowers.

ROSES, from page 8

varieties. An area devoted to miniatures is soon to be completed.

Prospective rose growers would find a visit to the Rose Garden to be very worthwhile. Seeing pictures of roses in a catalogue does not begin to approach the true color and beauty of roses grown in a natural setting. Because of varying conditions of soil, climate and moisture, roses vary in performance, dependent on the geographical locale.

Tidewater is an ideal location for raising roses, with its long growing season, and good winter weather in which no added cold protection is needed. Along with the roses seen at the Botanical Gardens, the blooms entered in the Annual Rose Show sponsored by the Tidewater Rose Society make up a great number of varieties that do well in this part of Virginia.

The Rose Show is held in mid-October, and is open to any grower of roses. Monthly meetings are open to visitors. Membership is based on one's desire to grow roses. Consulting Rosarians of the Society are well-qualified in all aspects of rose culture and are available to assist in advising and helping any Tidewater gardener wishing to plan a rose garden, or improve the growing of roses. Additional information about the Tidewater Rose Society is available at the Information Desk of the Botanical Gardens.

So there you are! With a little extra care and work, such as pruning, spraying, feeding and watering, anyone can grow good roses. There's nothing to it!

Welcome to the Farmers Market

Virginia Beach farmers and gardeners are gearing up for a busy season at the Virginia Beach Farmers Market, located at 1969 Landstown Rd. A division of the Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture, the Farmers Market is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. year around. As the weather warms up hours will run from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. The market has been operating at its present location since April of 1976. It includes 17,000 square feet of vendors stalls, wholesale truck sheds and a restaurant. At the market you can purchase fresh produce, baked goods, meats, dairy products, seafood and plants for home and garden.

Examine mail-order plant and nursery offers carefully warns Better Business Bureau

Examine mail-order plant and nursery offers carefully warns Better Business Bureau.

Every year at this time nursery and plant offers blossom in advance of spring flowers. Whether these offers take the form of mail-order or work-at-home opportunities, the Better Business Bureau advises prospective customers to beware the seeds of deception. Always examine each offer closely, paying no heed to exaggerated claims.

Although most mail-order plant offers are legitimate, there are those that are not. Take care to know the difference before sending any money. For example, be wary of an ad that offers fruit-bearing trees which will grow five to six feet in one year, and are "guaranteed" to survive anywhere in the United States. The same ad may use a "satisfaction on arrival" guarantee. Be sure to know what these guarantees mean; what is and is not covered and who will honor the agreement. Keep in mind that the nursery stock may arrive in poor condition. Getting in touch with some mail-order nursery firms or obtaining a refund may be difficult, if not impossible.

on arrival" guarantee. Be sure to know what these guarantees mean; what is and is not covered and who will honor the agreement. Keep in mind that the nursery stock may arrive in poor condition. Getting in touch with some mail-order nursery firms or obtaining a refund may be difficult, if not impossible.

Work-at-home opportunities are not limited to stuffing envelopes or sewing baby booties. Recently, many work-at-home plant growing plans have sprung up across the country. Elderly or retired persons are especially susceptible to these offers, and should be particularly aware of what is involved. A typical offer may promise quick profits with a minimum of work. Investors are asked to pay anywhere from $3,000-$6,000 over a period of time.

Whether the offer involves a mail-order or a part-time work-at-home opportunity, be sure to be on the alert for deceptive sales techniques. The Better Business Bureau advises those interested to carefully consider the offer before agreeing to invest any money. Be sure, too, to deal with a reliable business, one that can be located if there are any questions later.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

In this proceeding the petitioner seeks to acquire by condemnation the fee simple title to a certain parcel of land situated in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, for the construction and maintenance of that certain public sewer project known as "Gracetown Sewer Project," which property is shown and described more particularly in the petition and exhibit attached thereto on file in the office of the Clerk of this Court, to which reference is hereby made for a full and accurate description thereof; and for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain just compensation to the owners of any estate or interest in the property to be taken or affected as a result of the taking and use thereof by the petitioner.

For such purposes the petitioner will apply to the Court on the 1st day of May, 1979, at the courthouse thereof, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, VA, at 9:30 o'clock A.M., or as soon thereafter as counsel may be heard, for the appointment of commissioners to ascertain just compensation as aforesaid.

And it appearing by affidavit filed according to law that the following owners are not residents of the State of Virginia, or their names and addresses are not known and that diligence has been used by and on behalf of the petitioner to ascertain such names and addresses without effect: EDWARD G. FENTRESS, JR., HARRY ALDEN FENTRESS, JOHN W. FENTRESS, CLAUDE H. FENTRESS, JR., RAYMOND C. FENTRESS, CLIFFORD DORMAN FENTRESS and MARGARET E. BABER, heirs of C.H. FENTRESS and R.G. MOORE, and their lien creditors, if any, and heirs at law, if any; it is ORDERED that the aforesaid owners do appear within ten (10) days after due publication of this order in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, and to do what is necessary to protect their interests; and it is FURTHER ORDERED that if any of the above named owners desire to assert any objection or defense to the taking or damaging of their property or to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the case and to proceed with the appointment of commissioners they shall file their answer and grounds of defense designating the property in which they claim to be interested, the grounds of any objection or defense to the taking or damaging of their property or to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the case and to proceed with appointment of commissioners for the determination of just compensation.

Should any such owner fail to file their answer and grounds of defense as hereinabove provided, such failure shall not preclude the owner from appearing on the date set for the appointment of commissioners nor from presenting evidence as to valuation and damage nor from sharing in the award of just compensation according to their interest therein or otherwise protecting their rights, but such failure shall preclude such owner from any other defense by way of pleas in bar, abatement or otherwise.

And it is FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this Order shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun, and a copy thereof shall be posted on the bulletin board of this Court.

PETITION FOR CONDEMNATION

TO THE HONORABLE JUDGES OF THE COURT AFORESAID:

Your Petitioner, City of Virginia Beach, a municipal corporation of the Commonwealth of Virginia, files this Petition in accordance with Section 2.01 of the Charter of the City of Virginia Beach, Title 15.1, Chapter 18, Article 7; Title 33.1, Chapter 1, Article 7; Title 25, Chapter 1.1, of the Code of Virginia, 1950, as amended, and such general laws as are applicable for the purpose of condemning the hereinafter described property, and represents as follows:

1. That the City Attorney and/or Assistant City Attorney has been appointed the agent and attorney for the City of Virginia Beach and has been duly authorized to institute these condemnation proceedings and to conduct the same in the name and on behalf of the City of Virginia Beach.

2. The real property and easement(s) which are to be taken in this proceeding lie in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, and are described as follows:

All that certain lot, tract or parcel of land, together with the improvements thereon belonging, lying, situate and being in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, and designated and described as "Lot 1, Block 1" as shown on that certain plat entitled: "PLAT SHOWING SEWER, WATER AND UTILITY EASEMENTS FOR THE CITY OF VIRGINIA BEACH, VIRGINIA BAYSIDE BOROUGH," and recorded in the Clerk's Office of the Circuit Court of the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, in Map Book 116, at Page 49, to which reference is made for a more particular description.

3. The plans above referred to are on file in the Department of Public Works, Municipal Center, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23456. A copy of the plat of the property owned by the defendants which is affected by this proceeding is attached hereto marked "Exhibit A" and is prayed to be read as a part of this Petition. The property taken in fee simple is outlined in Red on the plat aforesaid.

4. The property to be taken is necessary for the construction, reconstruction, alternation, maintenance and repair of a public sewer project in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia, known as Gracetown Sewer Project, Bayside Borough. More specifically, this project is for the construction and improvement of a section of said sewer system, and will include the right to construct, reconstruct, repair, improve, alter and maintain the same in accordance with the plans referred to above. The right hereby acquired include the right to utilize the land in the future, (1) for construction, reconstruction, alternation, improvement, repair and maintenance of said sewer system; (2) for all other sewer, street, highway and public municipal purposes, and; (3) in accordance with all the rights and incidents normally acquired in the property as owner of the fee simple title thereof, with respect to the portion of said property acquired in fee simple.

5. Your petitioner has made a bonafide but ineffectual effort to acquire said property by purchase from the owner(s) thereof, but has been unable to do so because all persons having an interest in said property are not ascertainable to your petitioner and there are or may be parties unknown having some right, interest or title therein.

6. Your petitioner is of the opinion that the persons entitled to an interest in the compensation to be ascertained in this proceeding are: F. DONALD REID and BONNIE Y. REID, EDWARD G. FENTRESS, JR., HARRY ALDEN FENTRESS, JOHN W. FENTRESS, CLAUDE H. FENTRESS, JR., RAYMOND C. FENTRESS, CLIFFORD DORMAN FENTRESS and MARGARET E. BABER, their heirs at law, devisees and assigns, as well as other persons denoted herein as "Parties Unknown."

WHEREFORE, your petitioner respectfully prays to this Honorable Court in accordance with the provisions of Title 25, Chapter 1.1 of the Code of Virginia, 1950, as amended, that commissioners may be summoned and appointed to ascertain and report the value of the land taken and damages, if any, which may accrue to the remaining property of the owner(s) beyond the enhancement in value, if any, to such other property by reason of the taking and use; that the Court direct that all other steps be taken to carry out the intents of Title 25, Chapter 1.1 and Title 33.1, Chapter 1, Article 7, of the Code of Virginia, 1950, as amended, as may be necessary; and that the petitioner may have such other, further and general relief as the nature of its case may require.

It is not easy to say no to 'junk calls'

By GUS STEVENS
Capitol News Service

They've invented a name for them: junk calls. It would be wonderful if they were as easy to get rid of as junk mail, but you can't throw a voice into the waste basket.

The other evening turned out to be a junk telephone call jamboree, when everybody got together and made their calls within an hour.

ONE OF THOSE

We should have known it was going to be one of those busy nights because my wife was putting a corn soufflé into the oven. She is quite good with her soufflés and also a bit nervous about them. They are fragile.

So it fell on me to answer the phone while she hovered around the oven, peeking inside now and then to make sure everything was coming up all right. The first call came at 5:30 p.m.

He was selling stocks and bonds and where he got our name I'll never know. They say people sell mailing lists. If so, the company that bought my name ought to ask for its money back.

SMOOTH SALESMAN

Salesmen who sell securities do not merely ask: "Say, how about buying some Anacosta Copper or some Zerox convertible debentures today?"

They are so smooth it takes me a while to realize where they're coming from, as my nephew would say.

Where they're coming from, ultimately, is the receiver of our telephone and when it finally sinks in that they want to send investment literature or let us in on a special purchase of tax-free municipals, then I must begin a fighting withdrawal.

It is never easy for me. I am unable simply to say: "No," or "Not interested," or "I'm too busy to talk." The failing is a curse because instead of being decisive (even though I know I cannot say "Yes") I make groaning sounds, noises of despair and negativism.

'WE'RE EATING'

"Tell them we're eating." This sounds like good logic, except that it doesn't work. If you tell them you're busy, they'll want to know when they can call back. I go crazy when I know a salesman's call is coming, I'm so busy rehearsing an answer.

The 6:05 p.m. caller asks: Do I have home insulation or am I un-American? Am I allowing precious energy to escape through my attic? Am I helping the Arabs' balance of payments without thinking? The reason they're asking is because they're working in our neighborhood next week and they can offer a special rate.

OLD DODGE

This dodge is so old. Construction people are always working in our neighborhood when they call. The equipment will be convenient to pour asphalt on our driveway, blow out our forced air furnace or spray paint the house.

Thinking of the sagging soufflé (and my wife) waiting at the table, I decided to lie. No more beating around half truths. A clean severing stroke at last.

I told the man we were selling our house. He pushed me a little bit, wondering why, and I said, "Personal reasons," implying some dark, secret family problems.

He backed off beautifully. I intended to lie more. I'll tell the broker I lost my job (knock on wood) and the trash bag man that my brother-in-law is in the business.

Back at the table she said, "Why do you bother with them? Just tell them, 'No'." A hard woman, but she makes a beautiful soufflé.

IRS tax assistance available for deaf

Tax assistance is available to hearing-impaired taxpayers from the Internal Revenue Service through a special toll-free visual phone system, called TTY, the abbreviation for teletypewriter.

This assistance is made possible by a device that electronically connects a telephone receiver to either a television screen and keyboard or to a teletypewriter. The taxpayer first calls the IRS TTY headquarters in Indianapolis over a nationwide toll-free number. He or she then connects the telephone receiver to the TTY and types a question using the keyboard. The IRS answers using the same method.

For most states, the TTY toll-free number is 800-428-4732. For Indiana it is 800-382-4059. There is no TTY service for Hawaii and Alaska.

Interested taxpayers should contact a local social service agency about TTY hook-up if they know of no locally available systems.

The IRS said that these special telephone numbers should only be used in connection with the TTY system.

Choosing a preparer

The IRS tries to make the tax forms and instructions less complicated so that more taxpayers can prepare their own returns. However, some taxpayers may require a professional tax return preparer to do the work for them.

The law now required preparers to sign returns they prepare and include their identification numbers. Taxpayers should double check their returns for these requirements and be sure to get a copy of the final return from the preparer.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC REGARDING REVISIONS TO RULES CONTROLLING CONNECTION OF NEW GAS CUSTOMERS, ETC.

After notice and public hearing the State Corporation Commission earlier adopted "Natural Gas Priorities and Rules" which, among other things, promote gas conservation and prescribe the order in which service to customers will be reduced, or terminated if necessary, when gas supplies are inadequate to meet the requirements of all customers.

Now, the Commission's Staff has proposed certain revisions to the rules. A primary revision would give the gas companies the opportunity to connect new customers and to sell additional gas to their present customers. The Staff proposes a new rule which provides:

RULE

"Any gas company intending to amend its tariffs that control new customer additions or increases in the gas load of existing customers shall file such revised tariff at least 45 days prior to the proposed effective date. The Company shall in addition file information to show:

- The additional gas load to be added under the revised tariff.
- An estimate of the cost of any expansion in facilities to serve the additional customer load, if the expansion requires plant additions other than service extensions from main lines, and
- An assessment of the effect of the proposed load additions on existing gas customers with respect to both cost of service and reliability of service.

If, at the end of 45 days the Commission has not otherwise ordered, the proposed tariff revisions shall go into effect."

A copy of the proposed revised rules on "Natural Gas Priorities and Rules" may be reviewed in any offices of the gas company where customer gas bills may be paid.

If, after review of the proposed amendments to the priorities and rules, any interested person wishes to comment on such proposed amendments then their comments should be filed in writing with the Commission on or before April 15, 1979. The written comments should be addressed to William C. Young, Clerk, State Corporation Commission, P.O. Box 1197, Richmond, Virginia 23209. The written communication should show that the subject is "Natural Gas Priorities and Rules" - Case No. 20104.

Let IRS compute your tax

One alternative available to taxpayers is to have the Internal Revenue Service compute their tax for them. The IRS will figure liability on Form 1040 or 1040A based on certain income and other information the taxpayer provides, and either rendered a bill for tax due or send a refund check if an overpayment of tax was made.

Here are the general rules:

A taxpayer can have the IRS figure tax liability on Form 1040 if the taxpayer's adjusted gross income is $20,000 or less, or $40,000 or less for married persons filing jointly, or for a qualifying widow or widower. This income must be from wages, salaries, tips, dividends, interest, pensions and annuities. In addition, the taxpayer may not itemize deductions or use Schedule G, Income Averaging, or Form 2555, Exemption of Income Earned Abroad. The taxpayer also must file the return with IRS by the due date.

As for the 1040A filer, if he or she files by the due date, the IRS will compute the tax liability regardless of the amount of annual income earned.

Certain information is required on either Form 1040 or 1040A in order for IRS to figure a taxpayer's liability. The lines for name, address, and social security number must be completed - the simplest way, of course, is using the pre-filled label. A taxpayer should also fill in the occupation line and check the Yes or No box for the Presidential Election Campaign Fund.

If filing a Form 1040, a taxpayer must complete lines 1 through 31 detailing filing status, exemptions, income and adjustments to income. The taxpayer should also complete, if they are applicable, lines 38 through 45 on credits such as for the elderly or for child care expenses, lines 48 through 53 on other taxes including an individual retirement arrangement, and 55, 56, and 59 through 61a on estimated tax and other payments. Appropriate forms and schedules must also be attached to the form, according to the IRS.

On the 1040A, the taxpayer must complete lines 1 through 11b.

Both spouse's incomes should be shown separately on a joint return so that the IRS can compute the lowest tax due. On Form 1040, the taxpayer should show the separate incomes between lines 7 and 8, while on the 1040A, the separate incomes should appear in the bottom left margin.

After completing the appropriate lines on either Form 1040 or 1040A, a taxpayer should date and sign the return, and mail it to the Internal Revenue Service Center in the special pre-addressed envelope provided with the tax package. Both spouses must sign a joint return, even if only one had income.

The IRS will compute the tax and send either a refund for any overpayment or a notice of the amount of tax due. Interest or penalty charges may be avoided if a taxpayer pays the bill for tax due within 30 days of the date of mailing, or by the due date for the tax return, whichever is later.

A taxpayer who chooses to have the IRS compute tax liability may revoke this election on an amended return filed after the original return.

Senior Airman Robert S. Stokes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Stokes Sr. of Minden Road, Virginia Beach, has arrived for duty at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

The airman, a telecommunications systems equipment maintenance Specialist with a unit of the Air Force Communications Service, previously served at Clark AFB, Philippines.

Airman Stokes is a 1972 graduate of Kempsville High School and attended Los Angeles City College's extension at Clark.

Harvey

Danny D. Harvey, whose wife, Sandra, lives on Carrington Ave., Virginia Beach, recently was promoted to Army sergeant while serving as an artillery sergeant with the 15th Field Artillery in Korea.

Harvey entered the Army in January 1974.

Hill

Thomas A. Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hill Jr. of Clyde St., Virginia Beach, has been promoted to staff sergeant in the U.S. Air Force.

The sergeant, a veterinary specialist at Spangdahlem AFB, Germany, serves with a unit of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe.

Sergeant Hill, a 1974 graduate of Frank W. Cox High School, attended the University of Maryland European Division in Germany. His wife, Lawana, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. Cross Jr. of Ocean Tides Drive, Virginia Beach.

Addison clinches NAS Oceana Sailor of the Year title

How many times have you heard the expression "it runs in the family"? Quite a few? Well, in the case of Aviation Ordnanceman Second Class (A02) Mack T. Addison and his wife, Yeoman Third Class (YN3) Gloria Addison, it's true. Both work at Naval Air Station Oceana (NAS) in the Aircraft Intermediate Maintenance Department (AIMD) and both have been previously selected as Oceana's Sailor of the Quarter. In fact, Gloria Addison currently holds the station Sailor of the Quarter title and will continue to do so until the last day of the month.

When A02 Addison was informed by AIMD's leading chief, Aviation Maintenance Administrationman Master Chief (AZCM) John Adkins, that he had been chosen as Oceana's Sailor of the Year, he was one up on his wife, Gloria. Said Mack, "When I first broke the news to her, she thought I was joking. However, when she realized this was real, she shared my joy. Also, we were both pleased that we didn't have to compete against each other for the title." Mack works in AIMD's Armament Division repairing and maintaining the M-61A1 machine gun system used in Oceana's F-14A Tomcats and Gloria is AIMD's departmental yeoman.

Captain D.J. Michaels, Oceana's Commanding Officer, presented A02 Addison a congratulatory letter and a plaque for his Sailor of the Year selection. The ceremony took place in the Skipper's Office the morning of March 6. Following Captain Michael's presentation, Donald W. Calder, Oceana Branch Manager for First & Merchants National Bank of Tidewater, gave Petty Officer Addison a $100 U.S. Savings Bond. Immediately after the ceremony, A02 Addison and his wife were Captain Michael's guest's for lunch at the Seahorse Club. As Sailor of the Year, Mack is also entitled to two tickets for a cruise on the ship "Spirit of Norfolk".

Petty Officer Addison joined the Navy on May 31, 1973 and attended Naval Recruit Training at Great Lakes, Illinois. Upon completion, he next went to Aviation Ordnanceman "A" School at the Naval Air Training Center in Jacksonville, Florida. Addison then came to Oceana. That was in March 1974, and except for a period from March - August 1977 when he went to Strike Armament School in Mayport, Florida, he has been at Oceana. In addition to his service with AIMD, the Sailor of the Year has also served here with Attack Squadrons 42 and 176.

A02 Addison's plans for the future include making the Navy his career and reaching master chief petty officer before retirement. The Sailor of the Year is also quite ambitious in his desires for fulfillment in off duty educational pursuits. He presently takes night classes at St. Leo College and is looking forward to attaining a Bachelor of Science degree in either personnel management or drafting.

In his off duty hours, A02 Addison coaches games played by Oceana's varsity basketball team. Recently, he volunteered to work with a troubled boy through involvement with the Big Brothers & Big Sisters of Tidewater Program. As part of his religious affiliation, Petty Officer Addison shares Bible studies with a local group of Jehovah's Witnesses on Saturdays.

Mack and Gloria live with their son, Whakin, in Derby Run in Virginia Beach. In the Addisons' case, "all in the family" is not a T.V. series, but a dynamic fact of life.

Virginia Beach home economist means business

By PAM VANDEVEER
Virginia Beach Sun Staff Writer

"Home economics is no longer concerned with just cooking and sewing," says Nancy Campbell, home economist with the Virginia Beach Department of Agriculture Cooperative Extension Service. "Today home economists are very much involved in consumer education."

Since the dawn of the women's movement, the general approach to running a home has become more businesslike, she explains. "At the Cooperative Extension Service we give out information on things like food buying, how to shop effectively, buying a home or appliances for the home, what to watch out for when signing a lease, or how to be aware of frauds."

Ms. Campbell, who specializes in foods, nutrition and health, says she entered the field because she wanted to be involved in changing the concepts and stereotypes of home economics. Her current project is offering leadership in preparation for the upcoming food show to be held this weekend at Pembroke Mall.

Food show set at Pembroke Mall

"The Joy of Cooking" is the theme for the show, which will take place in the mall on Friday from 10 a.m. till closing and on Saturday from 10 a.m. till 6 p.m. During that time a wide variety of booths will be on display and samples of food will be available to the public.

The Cooperative Extension Service will present demonstrations by cooking instructors of Greek and Oriental cooking. The booth will also make available information on the department's upcoming cooking classes which begin in April and May.

Ms. Campbell is one of three full time home economists with the Cooperative Extension Service. She joined the staff last November after working for the Virginia Commission for the Visually Handicapped. Previously she had completed undergraduate work in home economics at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro, worked as a home economist for YEFCO, then attended graduate school at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln.

"Obesity is one of the more serious health problems in this country today," states Ms. Campbell. And along with obesity go related problems such as high blood pressure and back and leg disturbances.

Tips on eating out

Fast food diets can be the downfall for many individuals who work. "Fast food diets are heavy on calories and often have no real nutritive value," she explains. "However, if you only eat out one meal a day you can make up for discrepancies at your other meals."

She offers these tips for individuals who must eat out frequently. "Choose places that offer a variety of foods and try taking a salad instead of french fries. A Coke may have 100-140 calories, but tea has none unless you add sugar. Try to find a place that has vegetable choices

Boy's plea heard in Sun ad

Please! Have you a Yorkshire Terrier you can give away or sell for a small price?

This impassioned plea was placed in the classified columns of the Virginia Beach Sun by Mrs. Finona Reed of Moyock, N.C.

In the little classified ad Mrs. Reed went on to explain that her son's Yorkshire Terrier had been stolen and he was pinning for another.

Did the Sun classified ad find another dog for the little boy?

You bet it did! Shortly after the ad ran Mrs. Reed called. "The Sun really works," she exclaimed. "We've got a dog! The ad went in the paper, then all of a sudden we received a call and we had a Yorkie again. I can't describe how I felt."

We asked Mrs. Finona why she thought the Sun produced such good results. "Because the right kind of people read your paper," she said. "It worked wonders for me. Our son is thrilled."

other than just a baked potato and salad. Variety is the key.

"People are becoming more aware of their health," the home economist observes. "Those who have sedentary jobs are getting back into activities, especially those in their late 30's and early 40's. Of course you should always check with your doctor before starting an activity program."

She points to the success of the Cooperative Extension Service's class, "Diet, Exercise and Behavior Modification." "It's a ten week class for weight loss and we have a waiting list for it."

"In the course we present facts on nutrition and eating habits. There's a sharing time when participants can share their successes and failures, and then we do exercises."

A 1200 calorie diet is recommended for those taking the class, who range from "young Navy wives to

Dune protection law finally passed by city

By LEE CASHILL

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

Virginia Beach City Council Monday night approved a dune protection ordinance by a vote of 9-1 less than a month after the Virginia General Assembly failed to act on similar legislation.

Action was taken following a half-hour discussion of the city's Coastline Management Ordinance in the council's informal session and approximately two hours of presentations by opponents and proponents in the formal session.

"Save Our Dunes"

The "overflowing crowd," one of the largest ever at a council meeting, was orderly, well-informed and abounding with attorneys representing themselves and various interests. Buttons proclaiming "Save Our Dunes" were numerous.

The ordinance adopted by council was recommended for approval by the Planning Commission on March 13. Some changes were made which make the ordinance more concise substituting the word "shall" for the conditional "should."

Council also dropped in the final version the section on payment of compensation. The section requires the city to make compensation for the land on which the owner is deprived "reasonable economic use."

State compensation

City attorney Dale Bimson advised council at an executive session preceding the meeting that the section was unnecessary because the state already has laws requiring compensation when a property owner is denied use of his land.

Councilwoman Meyera Oberndorf, who has consistently pushed for passage of state and local dunes protection legislation, said later that the section on compensation was included in the state legislation, Senate Bill 403, to make it clear that the state would be responsible for compensation. She added also that the expression "reasonable economic use" is too broad.

Any landowner who is dissatisfied with the settlement of his care through the courts, Bimson said that changes in the ordinance can be made through judicial action or legislation action.

Councilman Reid Ervin said that the evening's speakers submitted "many good recommendations," and that the ordinance can be changed in the future to fit needs.

The ordinance establishes a dune protection area which includes all land 500 feet landward from the mean low water from Little Creek to Little Island along the city's 39 miles of coastline.

It incorporates a conditional use approach to regulate development although the underlying zoning classification will still be in effect.

Dune disturbing activity for which a use permit will be required is defined as any activity which may alter the primary dune contour, impair its natural function or reconstruction or remove the indigenous vegetation to diminish erosion control and flood protection.

Disturbance minimized

City planner Robert Scott said that the purpose of the ordinance is to minimize dune disturbance and the removal or vegetation and sand. He said that not all uses in the area will be regulated -- only those in the primary dunes.

He said it was "virtually impossible to come up with any set of guidelines that can be comprehensive, but that the conditional use approach provides flexibility. Also, he said, the use permit approach removes beach front building regulation from the administrative to the legislative realm."

The city, which has had no previous dunes protection ordinance has established a policy of requiring builders to build behind the six-foot contour line. Decisions were made administratively.

The use permit procedure requires builders or developers to apply to the 6 p.m. - Adult Evening Classes and Tennis.

On the remaining days, April 5-7, all classes are available for registration at any time between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m. For further information contact the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, 4700 Recreation Drive or call 467-4884.

Beach residents oppose Rock Church girls' home

Virginia Beach Sun Public Affairs Writer

The ten girls -- young women, really -- stood up to be counted.

They looked like any suburban teen-agers, although one was holding a baby -- her own. They actually were like any suburban teen-agers except that they had made a mistake, which at least temporarily, has made them outcasts.

At one time or other all ten have resided at 601 Milburn Drive in Kempsville. They appeared before City Council Monday night to win approval for three of their number to go on living in the house for another six months.

They lost their appeal because residents in the area are afraid a "girls house" in their neighborhood will decrease their property values.

City law permits four unrelated persons to live in the same house in a residential neighborhood. The house on Milburn Drive at present has six occupants -- the three girls, Janey Kyme, the house mother, and her two children. At various times, depending on need, the house has four or five girls.

The house is owned by the Rock Church, which in ten years has grown to support a congregation of 3,000 people. The church considers the home for girls who find themselves unmarried and pregnant and homeless part of their ministry. However, it was operating the home outside of the law.

To rectify matters, the church applied for a conditional use permit for a girls' home on the .33 acre parcel.

The Planning Commission recommended approval to allow the girls to remain for six months. City Council Monday night turned down the request for the use permit, and gave the church one month to find other accommodations for the girls.

The Rev. John Gimenez, pastor, said that the church tried to operate the girls home in South Hill where it also has a boys home, but that the logistics were impossible -- what with providing medical help for the unwed mothers. He said the church didn't look for the work. "It came to us."

"They have not stolen, they have not hurt, they have not cursed. They've been there 18 months. Now they have to go. Some of the citizens think we should be put immediately out on the street...Is there a place in Virginia Beach where we can work with these kids? Do we do work God has been imposing on us?"

"They don't carry guns, they're not dope fiends. They just made a mistake."

John H. Miller, a Mennonite neighbor of the Rock Church and father of Mrs. Kyme, supported Gimenez.

Oscar W. Richardson, of 605 Manor Drive, said he did not know the girls were in the house. Once a week for an hour and a half we have a parking problem," he said, but the rest of the week there is a parking problem caused by high school students. The once-a-week parking problem doesn't bother him, he said, because he's at St. Peter's Episcopal Church. He said that the church's work is courageous and should be recognized.

Mike Milanovich, representing the Point of View Civic League, said the people who live in the area need help, too. He said police recently put 150 tickets on cars for illegal parking generated by the church.

Bill Bozarth of Kempsville Colony submitted a petition containing 240 names in opposition to the permit. "We are not saying the house is not needed for girls, but that it was spot zoning. 'Gimenez told us five or six times he only wanted a house of worship. Now he

All night skate-a-thon kicks off Jesus '79 activities

Debbie Duck and the Quack Sisters will be entertaining nearly 1,000 skaters Thursday, March 29, at the Haygood Skating Rink for the Jesus '79 All-Night Skate-A-Thon.

The 13-hour skating marathon sponsored by more than 20 local churches is slated to begin 7 p.m. and continue until 8 a.m. Friday.

The All Night Skate-A-Thon kicks off the Jesus '79 activity schedule which will culminate with a June 2 interfaith celebration expected to attract 30,000 persons at Foreman Field (Old Dominion University) in Norfolk.

All skaters will receive a Jesus '79 button, a Jesus '79 orange-and-yellow t-shirt transfer, and an assortment of door prizes provided by local merchants.

Skate-A-Thon highlights include a midnight clown show presented by Rock Church of Virginia Beach and a 3 a.m. presentation made by Miss Sunshine of Squeaky's World of Puppets (WYAH-Channel 27).

A variety of games and prizes will also be given throughout the night. Providing the music is radio station, WXRS (105.3 FM). Adult chaperones will supervise the marathon with the "snack-bar" and restrooms open all night. First-aid will also be made available.

The fund-raising skating marathon is open to youth (13 years and up) and adults. Marathon participants must skate a minimum of 45 minutes each hour or risk disqualification.

A King and Queen Trophy will be given for the guy and gal raising the most money in pledges with the winner also receiving a free pair of skates.

A one-dollar registration fee is payable at the door with a minimum of 10 pledges at 10 cents each or one dollar per hour required.

Children (12 years and under) may skate with adult supervision. Adults may sponsor themselves by paying the registration and one dollar per hour fee.

Money raised will go towards Jesus '79 youth-related activities. These include: an April Progressive Dinner from church-to-church; a Concert for Christ featuring Andre Culverwell and Ramona Hutton on May 18; and

Mothers spend more time with newborn infants

Mothers whose babies are delivered at General Hospital of Virginia Beach are now able to spend more time with their newborn infants if they wish to do so. Beginning this week, mothers in semi-private rooms may choose to keep their babies with them from 9 a.m. until 1:45 p.m., unless there is some medical indication to the contrary.

The father or parenting partner may visit at any time during this period, after scrubbing and putting on a sterile gown, and may handle the infant. During the time the baby is in her room, the mother may receive individual instruction on caring for her newborn.

Prior regulations permitted this type of extended contact only if the mother was assigned to a private room and requested Rooming-In. Still available are the two types of Rooming-In arrangements for private rooms. They are continuous, with the baby remaining in the mother's room at all times; and modified, with the baby returned to the nursery during the night and whenever the mother needs rest or treatment.

The new policy is part of a continuing effort on the part of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach to make the birth of a baby a family-centered event with as much interaction as possible among members of the family group.

The June 2 youth service at Foreman Field featuring Isaac, Arthur Holmes, Judah, Sara Jordan Powell, Living Sacrifice, Larry and Bobbi Andes of Fishnet and the St. John's young adult choir.

Churches or skaters still wishing to participate in the All Night Skate-A-Thon may contact Rev. Steve Juharos of Open Door Chapel at 340-1441 or 467-2282.

The Haygood Skating Rink is located behind Haygood Shopping Center, 1036 Ferry Plantation Road, just off Independence Blvd.

Before It Is Too Late

If you have a tender message, or a loving word to say,
Do not wait till you forget it,
But whisper it today;
The tender word unspoken,
The letter never sent,
The long forgotten messages,
The wealth of love unspent—
For these some hearts are breaking,
For these some loved ones wait;
So show them that you care for them
Before it is too late.

Mount Trashmore Lake is site for concrete canoe race March 31

Canoe racing teams from 17 universities throughout the East will assemble in Virginia Beach March 31 for one of the most peculiar sporting events that racing fans will see this year -- canoes made of concrete.

If the whole idea sounds impractical, it is. The inherent difficulties of maneuvering a concrete slab down a lake are obvious; the task may be made all the more difficult by the fact that the civil engineering students, who build and crew the boats, are not always the most athletic group of people on a campus.

But silly it's not, at least to the 30 or so students and faculty members at Old Dominion University who have been preparing for the big meet since last year.

"As far as we're concerned, there's as much at stake in beating a team like VPI in canoe racing as in basketball," said Dr. Philip S. Pagoria, assistant professor of civil engineering and advisor to the ODU student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers, which is hosting this year's Mid-Atlantic Concrete Canoe Race.

Aside from the spirited inter-school rivalries, the biggest questions are how and why?

"Most people think a concrete canoe will sink but, the principle is the same as with a metal ship," he explained. "The weight of the concrete boat displaces a certain volume of water and exerts buoyancy that forces it upward."

As for why, Pagoria figures that if his engineering students can make a racing vessel from common cement, they'll be able to construct most anything.

The climactic test for a year of designing, experimenting, and building will be at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, March 31, when judging for design and construction is held at Mt. Trashmore Lake in Virginia Beach. Racing gets underway at 10:30 a.m. with the men's and women's sprints, followed by four more contests ranging from relays to obstacle runs.

The events are free and open to the public.

Though Pagoria is something of a veteran to the sport -- this is his third year -- it's always a mystery as to what kinds of boats will appear at the launch on race day, he said. There's always a representation of the bizarre, like the 500-pound deformity entered each year by a Northern university whose team has yet to finish a race.

"Then there are the fanatics of concrete canoe racing who refine their boats each year and train as if they were going into the Olympics," Pagoria said. "The University of Akron, which will be here, is like that. So is Carnegie-Mellon, which could be called the UCLA of concrete canoeing. We haven't invited them, but I imagine they'll show up if they hear about it."

The mystery is not so much in the boats' design as in their ingredients. Each team has its own secret recipe which is guarded like "mother's chicken soup," the ODU professor said. The whole idea, of course, is to find the proper blend of cement and aggregate so that the boat is lightweight but sturdy.

Since the fastest boats are a mere one-quarter of an inch or less thick and as long as 20 feet, the slightest miscalculation in ingredients can mean disaster. ODU's team went through four mixes before coming up with the right one, which produces a boat that weighs in at a relatively dainty 200 pounds.

"It's not unusual to see boats break in half," Pagoria said. "And at the other extreme are the teams that go out for pure bulk, who can't carry it to the water once they're there or who have it sink to the bottom in the middle of a race."

As in any contest, there are rules to prevent unfair competition. While boats may take any shape -- ODU selected an Olympic class design this year -- materials going into the boat must be more than 50 percent cement, with the rest consisting of an aggregate -- plastic, glass, pumice rock, etc.

And there are some basic governing conduct. "You can't jump into somebody else's boat, for example, or hit them with your paddle," he pointed out.

Pagoria added, "You can think of it as kind of like a chariot race. At the beginning everybody's boat is nearly lined up at the starting blocks, and the first thing they do when the gun goes off is collide. Things get very exciting."

Universities to be represented at the March 31 race, in addition to ODU, are Clemson University, the University of South Carolina, North Carolina State University at Raleigh, University of Maryland, Duke University, University of Delaware, Howard University, West Virginia University, Rutgers University, University of North Carolina at Charlotte, West Virginia Institute of Technology, University of Akron, University of Florida, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Virginia Military Institute, and Guilford Tech.

For more information contact Dr. Philip Pagoria at 489-6483.

Tuberculosis Workshop scheduled at Beach

Area physicians, nurses, and allied health personnel are invited to attend a Workshop on Tuberculosis scheduled for April 4, at the Sheraton-Beach Inn, Virginia Beach. It is sponsored by Old Dominion University, School of Continuing Studies; the Eastern Virginia Medical School, Department of Medical Education; and the Virginia Lung Association. The one-day Workshop will begin at 9 a.m. and adjourn at 4 p.m. Featured speaker will be Dr. William E. Apperson, director, Bureau of Tuberculosis Control, Virginia Department of Health. Disc Golf tournament open to the public

The Tidewater Frisbee Disc Group is hosting a Disc Golf tournament on Saturday, March 31 at Bayville Park in Virginia Beach. This event will be a preliminary competition for the $50,000 Wham-O Invitational to be held in Los Angeles in May. Registration begins at 9 a.m. at the Bayville Park course.

The 36-hole event is open to the public with no entry fee being charged. The field is limited to the first 90 registrants. Rain date is Wednesday, April 4 at 3 p.m.

Little Theatre of the Deaf sets Beach performances

Little Theatre of the Deaf, produced by the Performing Arts Unit of the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, will perform "Head and Heart" or "Who Upset the Apple Cart?" on Friday, April 6, at 7:30 p.m. and on Saturday, the 7th, and Sunday, the 8th, at 3 p.m. in the Plaza Junior High School auditorium, 3080 South Lynnhaven Road, Virginia Beach.

Will Simonson, who wrote the comedy, is also the director. The technical assistants for the production are Joyce Norwood, from the Center of Learning, Portsmouth, and sign instructor at O.D.U., Susan Wimmer, Education Therapist, Norfolk Christian School, and Jan Gunter, on the Therapeutics staff of Virginia Beach Recreation Center and the Convention of American Instructors of the Deaf.

The Little Theatre of the Deaf is an annual event with the Parks and Recreation Department, which was started three years ago by Kathleen Lockwood, the production supervisor. This year's original script was written for both children and adults. All of the actors will use sign language on stage. A narrator on stage will speak the deaf signs for the non-hearing impaired in the audience.

All performances are free. For information, call 499-1281.

Commentary

55 mph limit saves a lot

All of us who have faced a long drive on an uncrowded freeway have probably cast a mental vote against the 55 mile per hour speed limit. So much for human impatience.

It has saved lives and gas and consequently a formal challenge of the federal policy which has put the 55 mile limit in effect around the country seems ill-advised.

But there is now a measure in the U.S. Senate to give states the option of setting their own speed limits.

The federal government has kept the states in line by threatening to withdraw federal highway funds if they do not enforce the limit. The case for continuing it, however, lies on the streets and highways and under the hoods of our cars.

The limit was imposed during the Arab oil embargo in 1974 to reduce consumption of gasoline, because automobiles operate with greater fuel efficiency at lower speeds. It also brought a dramatic decline in the traffic fatality rate. Traffic and safety experts acknowledge that the accident rate also was affected by lighter traffic volume, a result of higher gasoline prices, but the evidence is still convincing that the main factor was slower speed.

Fatality figures have risen again, as the number of cars on the road continues to increase and as willingness to abide by the 55 mile limit has weakened. The fact that so much freeway traffic is moving at 60 to 65 miles per hour makes no case for raising the limit. If it were posted at 65, no doubt the traffic would be moving at 70 or 75.

No one can argue that the United States has any less need today to conserve gasoline. Indeed, the collapse of Iranian oil production may lead to shortages at service stations before the year is out.

If Congress will let it

The U.S. Postal Service thinks it just might break even—perhaps go as far as showing a profit—by the end of September.

This is a goal the service, and the Post Office Department before it, has been seeking since 1948, to no avail. And the blame for the red ink shouldn't be laid to the postal service alone. Every time things start looking up, Congress makes more demands and refuses to allow cuts in service which would have postal ledgers showing profits.

The current optimistic forecast comes from Postmaster General William F. Bolger, who says the $17.5 billion agency could have a $180 million surplus by the close of the fiscal year in September.

The agency, which has lost billions in past years, sees sunnier skies ahead because of increased productivity and a stabilization of postal rates.

Bolger says the service carried 97 billion pieces of mail last year and predicts the total will reach 99 billion this year. Eighty percent of the mail is from business.

The Postal Service has been taking raps for years over sloppy service, computerized equipment that doesn't function properly and a tendency to raise rates far too often.

Residents complicate surfing

Virginia Beach may or may not have an additional surfing area this summer at Croatan, and the final say may be up to the courts.

A little over a week ago City Manager Roger Scott unveiled plans for this summer where surfing activities at Virginia Beach are concerned. The report was the result of months of work and research by City Council's special surfing committee which was formed last fall, in the hope that off-season study could come up with good concrete suggestions.

The plans called for a new surfing area at Croatan Beach and for an additional hour of surfing from 42nd Street north of Fort Story. There has been some little opposition to the extension of the time from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., but nothing compared to the other objections.

Present surfing regulations ban surfing from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the northern areas and until 6 p.m. everywhere else, except in the city's two designated surfing areas.

The city has set aside a 600-foot area just north of Steel Pier for several years. This area is patrolled, guarded and policed but has become overcrowded as surfing enthusiasts have increased.

Last year the city designated a 1000-foot area of its property at Little Island Park in Sandbridge for surfing. But parents have complained their young children cannot reach this area easily, particularly on the single narrow, winding road. And surfers say the surf there isn't worthwhile most of the time anyway. ...

Scott reported that a compromise solution recommended by the committee was to open a two-block, 1,000-foot area of Croatan Beach for surfing this summer on a one-year trial basis. The area would extend from the Camp Pendleton fence northward. ...

Water-garbage trade possible

Long-secret negotiations between Norfolk and Virginia Beach concerning the dumping of Norfolk garbage in Virginia Beach has been made public recently by officials of both cities.

Norfolk has a massive garbage problem that it has been unable to meet within its city limits. Its landfills and disposal areas are full to overflowing, and its disposal areas have become the subject of controversy both inside and outside the city.

Where trash is burned, residents of both Norfolk and Chesapeake have complained of odor, pollution and smoke. Norfolk has apparently been unable to come up with any feasible solution inside its own confines, and therefore has had to look elsewhere.

The logical places to look have been Virginia Beach and Chesapeake, and Norfolk officials have now confirmed that plans in both cities have been under consideration for some time. ...

Petitions submitted, withdrawn

Within the past week Princess Anne Utilities and Aragona Utilities, which serve about 8,000 homes in densely populated areas of mid-Virginia Beach, have petitioned for a higher temporary rate for sewage disposal, withdrawn the petitions and one of the companies has joined the other in applying for a higher permanent rate.

Princess Anne Utilities, the subject of much controversy over recent and past problems with emergency service to its customers, had a full hearing recently before the State Corporation Commission in Richmond seeking a 137 percent increase from $12 per quarter to $28.50, not including about $4.57 monthly fee to the Hampton Roads Sanitation District lines, scheduled to take over operation of the lines and treatment soon. ...

Budget trimmed; master plan set

A trend in Virginia Beach schools to lower the pupil-teacher ratio will reverse itself next fall to cuts in the school budget.

A total of 44 of 200 new teacher positions will be eliminated. "It will obviously increase the pupil-teacher ratio," said Supt. E.E. Brickell in answer to a question on the matter at the April School Board meeting.

The teachers accounted for $352,600 of the $700,000 cut authorized by City Council. The council could only set the amount to be cut from the budget but could not authorize any specific items to be cut. ...

God bless our power company

We turned over our children to a foundling home today, the payments on our second car have fallen on the way.

We pawned the family silver, we're taking laundry money husband has second job and work till soon beginning of 235th 21st bus 21st bus 21st bus

We both stopped smoking cigarettes - there's no more cocktail-hour - we scrimp on buying groceries and tried to save the power.

Little Johnnie has a paper route and adds his weekly tips to the family's hoard of pennies - complaints don't cross his lips.

I keep the neighbors' children to make an extra buck - it made me sad to see the bank come repossess our truck.

It certainly is degrading with no money in your jeans, we do not entertain at all - our diet's mostly beans.

They repossessed the family home for non-payment of rent and so we're in a vacant lot - it's cozy in the tent.

They came and got the washer cause of payments we can't make - I'm forced to take the Monday wash clear down to City Lake.

Our Bessie had a broken arm, which we were forced to set, the doctor would not come for free - not even on a bet.

Our dog is in the Dog Pound (our children how they weep) cause at 12 o'clock next Wednesday GUEST WHO gets put to sleep?

Our family shoes have worn out, which isn't very neat as we stand there in the snowbank, with the rags tied to our feet.

We've consolidated all our bills into one big whopping loan that'll take 100 years to pay - while trimming to the bone.

We don't know where to cut next - it's aggravating still to cut down on these items, just to pay our VEPCO bill.

I'm not insinuating that our troubles are because of VEPCO's current policy - THE FUEL ADJUSTMENT CLAUSE.

Part of my VEPCO payment - this thought does still atop supports two big reactors in Virginia's earthquake zone.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Your number's up

By Harvey J. Ridinger
Field Representative

Social security student beneficiaries are being notified now that their monthly checks will stop if they don't complete and return a required school enrollment report.

Reporting forms are being mailed to the more than 850,000 students 18 to 22 whose monthly social security checks currently total $1.7 billion a year.

This spring, for the first time, school officials are being asked to verify on the form that the student is enrolled on a full-time basis.

If a student fails to return the form, or the form comes back without the necessary school certification, the student's monthly checks will be stopped.

Students 18 to 22 may qualify for social security payments if a parent is receiving retirement or disability benefits or has died after working long enough under social security. Those students are required to report on their school enrollment status twice a year.

The Social Security Administration is tightening up on those reporting requirement because some students either are not returning the forms at all or they are stating they are in school when they are not. Payments to students who are not eligible cost taxpayers millions of dollars a year.

Students will have 60 days to complete and return the reporting form.

If a student does not return the form, or fails to have the school verify enrollment as required, social security checks will be suspended and the student's eligibility for previous payments will be investigated.

If a student received checks for months he or she was not a full-time student, then those benefits must be repaid.

Any student who needs help in completing the form or has questions about it should contact the nearest social security office. The Norfolk Social Security Office is located at 200 Granby Mall in the new Federal Building, Norfolk, Virginia 23510. It is on the sixth floor. The telephone number is 441-3401.

TIDEWATER COMMUNITY COLLEGE-VA. BEACH

Today College Counts

By D. William Bridges
Director of Continuing Education

TCC spring festival is coming

You are invited to attend the first Tidewater Community College-Chesapeake Campus "Community Spring Festival" on Saturday, May 12 (rain date May 19). The event will be held on campus at 1428 Cedar Road, Chesapeake from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m.

The purpose of the Spring Festival is to bring together area citizens, civic organizations, church groups, city office and agency personnel, and college staff in a day of displays, booths, entertainment, games, tournaments, competitions and demonstrations of arts and crafts.

Community and civic organizations are invited to set up booths to acquaint visitors with their activities. Individuals who are artists and craftsmen are invited to set up booths demonstrating and/or selling their products. Anyone who is interested in arranging for a booth or display can contact the college Office of Continuing Education, 547-4515, extension 49 for more information.

The Spring Festival will be a cooperative effort of City of Chesapeake citizens and the Chesapeake Campus of Tidewater Community College. There will be a variety of activities available for all ages.

Applications to participate in the Spring Festival (for booths, displays, or demonstrations) will be available through the Office of Continuing Education after March 26. Dave Smith, college faculty member and Chairman of the Community Services Committee, is responsible for planning the Spring Festival and arranging for booths and displays. For more information, he can be reached at 547-4515, extensions 33 or 54. The committee will take applications for booths and displays on a first-come basis and reserves the right to limit the number of similar booths and displays.

Church and school groups are invited to inquire about reserving a booth or display space at the Spring Festival. Various organizations will be contacted in the near future to arrange entertainment for the day.

Current plans include singing groups, square dancing, demonstrations, local bands, pony rides, and other dancing demonstrations. There will be field games such as sack races, volley ball, horse shoes, softball, and an egg toss.

Plans include gardening displays, craft displays and demonstrations, contests in typing and shorthand, tournaments in checkers, backgammon, football, and horse shoes. The campus will invite fire and police department personnel to display equipment. There may even be a pet show and possibly a dog obedience demonstration.

Plans are being formulated now for the events of the day for the "Community Spring Festival." There is still time for changes and additions to the program of activities.

If you or your organization find an area of interest in the Spring Festival, contact the Chesapeake Campus-Tidewater Community College at 547-4515, extensions 49, 33 or 54. We will add you to the mailing list for Spring Festival booth and display applications.

News deadline for the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN is 5 p.m. Friday for the following Wednesday's edition.

Articles must be legible, preferably typewritten, double-spaced on standard sized paper.

Pictures must be sharp, clear and accompanied by complete information. (All persons in pictures must be identified.)

There is no charge for news articles or pictures.

Pictures cannot be returned unless special arrangements are made.

Students to choose colors, nickname for Green Run HS

When Green Run High School opens next fall, will the football team play without uniforms? Will the cheerleaders lead cheers that don't include a school nickname? Will the colors of the band uniforms and the drill team's pom-poms be neutral? No!

Answers to those questions are scheduled to be settled when 14 students — representing the six secondary schools that will send students to Green Run next year — meet to determine what the school's colors and nickname will be.

The students, selected by the student bodies of Kellam, Kempville, and Princess Anne high schools and Brandon, Plaza, and Princess Anne junior highs, will meet at 7:30 p.m., April 4, at Plaza Junior High.

The student committee represents proportionately the number of students each school is expected to send Green Run High: Kellam will send four; Kempville, three; Brandon Junior, three; Plaza Junior, two; and Princess Anne senior and junior highs, one each.

The committee will be directed by Jerry Deviney, supervisor of student activities of Virginia Beach secondary schools, who is responsible for ordering football and cheerleader uniforms and a variety of athletic and other equipment, all of which have to be in the school's colors.

TCC visitors

Ms. Townsend's fifth grade students from Kingston Elementary School were recent guests of the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College. The class visited the geology and physics laboratories for science demonstrations. None of the Virginia Beach fifth graders enrolled for the upcoming spring quarter, but judging from their interest in the subjects, they may begin any time.

Evening programs offered at P.A. Business College

Princess Anne Business College will offer five evening programs beginning Tuesday, April 3. The programs will run on 12-week quarters, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 6:15 to 9:30 p.m.

Program offerings include the following: Clerical Office Assistant, 3 months; Special Training for Advancement, 6 months; Receptionist, 9 months; Accounting Clerk, 9 months; and Executive Secretary, 12 months. Single subjects and brush up courses will also be available.

Registration for evening classes will be held at the college located at 2924 N. Lynnhaven Road until April 6. For further information call the Admissions Office at 625-5891.

FC senior wins $100 in state art competition

Amy Gerhauser, a senior at First Colonial High School, has won $100 for her sculpture "Faceted Torso" which she entered in the first Virginia High School art competition sponsored by the VPI Art Department in Blacksburg.

Amy's hydrostone cast sculpture was one of five student art works selected from among 131 entries. Five, honorable mentions were also selected.

The hydrostone sculpture medium involves making a clay model and molding it with latex. The latex mold is then cast in plaster of paris which is allowed to harden and then carefully chipped away to remove the clay, but retain the interior mold. The plaster of paris and latex mold is then filled with hydrostone liquid which hardens to become the final product.

Amy is the daughter of Fred and Helen Gerhauser of Doncaster Road, Virginia Beach, and a student of art teacher Lou Lowenthal. She is currently working on a larger hydrostone sculpture entitled "Faces." Amy plans to further her art career by studying at Old Dominion University.

Pembroke Meadows students create posters for National Wildlife Week

Pembroke Meadows Elementary students really got into the swing of National Wildlife Week, March 18-24. Nearly 200 of the students created posters in recognition of the federation's efforts to conserve wildlife in Virginia and the U.S.

The poster contest, involving all levels from kindergarten through seventh grade, was the brainchild of Pembroke Meadows science teacher Kitty Watts. Through the school's SCA, Miss Watts encouraged the students to participate, and 198 posters were entered in the contest.

The SCA also asked merchants from nearby Pembroke Meadows shopping center to donate prizes to the winners. Those merchants participating were the Bee Hive Book Store, Colony Beach Florist, REVCO, The Creamery, and Pet Love pet shop.

Judging the student posters were Roy Black, president of the Virginia Wildlife Federation, Sharon Renn, art teacher at Pembroke Meadows, Barbara Allison, the coordinator of Project ICE (Individual Concern for the Environment) in Virginia Beach schools, and Bob Palombo, secondary science curriculum assistant.

Those students whose posters were judged best were: (Grades K-1) Nathan Shurman, 1st place; Lori Esch, 2nd; Kelly A. LaGraca, 3rd; and Karen Heine, Shawn Moore, and Brad Marx, honorable mention. (Grades 4-5) Denisa Weber, 1st; and Penny Harbin, honorable mention. (Grades 6-7) Dan Shifflett, 1st; Cathy Bryce, 2nd; Dan Zanadil, 3rd; and Michele Lewis, Mindy Stein, and Rachel Johnson, honorable mention.

The Tidewater Dinner Theatre

Proudly presents

Comedy by THOMAS HEGGEN and JOSHUA LOGAN
(Based on the Novel by THOMAS HEGGEN)
March 13 - April 22

Mister Roberts is one of the most hilarious stage successes to come out of World War II. This outstanding wartime comedy is the blistering, yet tender, saga of the men on an old bucket of a Navy cargo ship.

The cast includes Richard Seitzberg as Lt. J.G. Roberts, Alan Sader is the hard-bitten sea-bully who hates college men like Roberts, Scott Brown will portray Insign Pulver, the brawling lazy officer who shares Robert's quarters, Dan Smith is the clear-headed ship's doctor and Judy Verby — the only woman in the cast — an army nurse who comes aboard for a brief visit, much to the delight of the wild crew.

'Light Up the Sky' to open April 6 at Little Theatre of Virginia Beach

"Light Up the Sky," a comedy by Moss Hart, opens April 6 at the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach. Performances are scheduled for Fridays and Saturdays, April 6-7, 13-14 and 21-22 at 8:30 p.m. A matinee will be performed on Sunday, April 8, at 3 p.m. Tickets are $3.75 for adults and $2 for students. Reservations may be made by calling the theatre box office at 428-9523.

The Moss Hart comedy offers a witty offstage view of the tribulations involved in the out-of-town tryouts for a play entitled "The Time is Now," prior to its opening in New York. The "play about a play" is set in the Ritz Carlton Hotel in Boston.

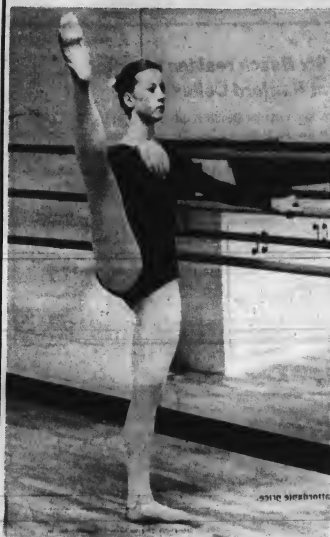

"Light Up the Sky" opened on Broadway in 1948 and met with both critical and popular acclaim. The little theatre production is directed by Ken Fraser.

Jane Dewberry plays the star of the new show, and Vi Ragan is cast as her mother. Sam Hakim appears as the director. Mac McManus is the play's producer and Ruth Sherman appears as his wife. Dave Jones plays the star's husband. Appearing as the young unknown author is David Palmer. Fran Peterson is cast as an experienced dramatist. Also featured in the cast are Janet Whitbeck, Al Chewing and Paul Berryman.

Stage manager is Jennifer Kreger. Set construction was headed by Glen Whitlock and Sam Ferrell. Set decoration is by Smitty and Kay Matson. Karen Lindblad handles props and Craig McManus is in charge of lighting. Costume design is by Fredda Evans. Liz Sills is advisor to the director.

Little Theatre of Virginia Beach is located at 24th Street and Barberton Drive.

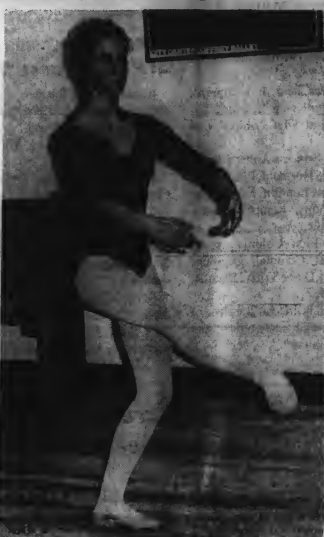

Virginia Beach Conservatory of Arts awards annual ballet scholarships

The Virginia Beach Conservatory of Arts has announced that it has awarded scholarships to the following Tidewater dancers who danced at the recent auditions:

Jody Norris and Melinda Sullivan received full scholarships. The other thirteen dancers received partial scholarships: Karen Addison, Kathy Baiker, Candy Bretsch, Mary Barrett, Christine Beach, Jo Ann Colbus, Robin Dailey, Terry Earley, Sheila Francis, Rita Hinton, Leslie McArthur, Jennifer Owens, and Jennifer Scott.

Ms. Dorothy Fiore of New York conducted the auditions, which are open to all Tidewater dancers and are awarded on a yearly basis.

Mary Barrett, age 13, received a partial dance scholarship at recent auditions held by the Virginia Beach Conservatory of Arts. She is a senior dancer with the Virginia Beach Community Ballet Company and lives on 45th Street in Virginia Beach.

Jody Norris, age 16, has been awarded a full scholarship to the Virginia Beach Conservatory of Arts for the upcoming year. The senior dancer with the Virginia Beach Community Ballet Company lives in Bird Neck in Virginia Beach.

Children's pet show sponsored by library

The Virginia Beach Public Library System will present its annual Children's Pet Show on Sunday, April 1, at 2 p.m. at the Great Neck Branch Library. This program is held each year as the opening activity for National Library Week, which is April 1-7. The rain date for the pet show is Sunday, April 8 at 2 p.m.

The pet show is for children ages five through fourteen. All pets entered in the show must be on a leash or in a container. Children entering with their pet must be able to hold the pet by themselves throughout the judging period. Parents will be asked to wait in a viewing area.

Judging will be divided into the classifications of cats, odds and ends, small dogs, medium dogs and large dogs. Entries will be judged in categories such as funniest, most unusual, longest ears, shortest legs, noisiest and many others. All participants in the pet show will receive ribbons.

There is no preregistration for this event. Children will receive an entry number upon their arrival at the library and judging will begin promptly at 2 p.m.

The Great Neck Branch Library is located at 1251 Bayne Drive in the Hilltop area of Virginia Beach.

Further questions on this program may be addressed to Robbin Farrar at the Great Neck Branch Library at 481-6094.

has a girls house - illegally and expects a congregation of 5,000 in a year. Bozarth is also afraid that the church will bring in people with a drug problem.

Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy Jr. said that the house was operating in violation of the law and the question was whether council would allow it to continue. "If you give them six months, in effect you give them the house."

City planner Robert Scott, in answer to a question from council, said that a use permit would be required for a group home in just about every zoning classification.

William R. Wood of Kempsville Colony, said people are "fed up with spot zoning." He said that the church now operates a Bible School and Book Store, and that residents have been "led to believe (the church) was buying the Presbyterian Church to expand the girls home and to treat drug-related problems as well." He said the church asked if citizens would oppose the construction of dormitories.

Heywood Strange, associate administrator of Rock Church, said the Presbyterian Church property will be used to alleviate parking and for a ball diamond for the school.

Councilman Reid Ervin said that the neighborhood problem can't be ignored. He said, "I don't think anyone had any idea that you would grow the way you have. It's a different ball game. Council went along because we thought it was to be run by you."

Gimenez said that the church has had rehabilitation centers in Norfolk and at the Beach but that "the greatest success has been experienced when the children are near the church."

Councilwoman Barbara Henley said the problem was that the property was not big enough for what the church was doing.

Jim Gimenez said, "In every community it's the same thing. Where do we go?"

McCoy said that the church has outgrown the community and that it was unfair to say that the government does not help. Church property is held tax-free, he said.

He said the subject came up before Christmas giving the church enough time to make other arrangements.

Council denied the permit by a vote of 8-2. Councilman Clarence A. Holland was absent.

Voting for denial were Councilmen R.L. Riggs, George R. Ferrell, John A. Baum, J. Curtis Payne, and Reid Ervin, Councilwomen Meyera Oberndorf and Barbara Henley, and J. McCoy. Voting against denial were Donald Merrick and Mayor Patrick L. Standing.

Notice is hereby given to enforce responsibilities in that by April 11, 1979, in relation to environmental the City of Virginia Beach, review, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the City of Virginia Beach may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (A) that the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer of the applicant; or (B) that applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD at 701 East Franklin Street, Richmond, Virginia 23218. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after April 18, 1979 will be considered by HUD.

The scope and activities involved in the Housing Rehabilitation Program entails providing community development target area lower (low and moderate) income residents with low-interest loans and/or grants for 1) the payment of water and sewer line and tap fees; and 2) housing rehabilitation that will bring target area substandard housing conditions up to the quality of the City's Minimum Housing Code standards as established by the Department of Permits and Inspections - Housing Division.

The City of Virginia Beach will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under Title I of the Housing and Community Act of 1974, reauthorized by Congress and amended as of 1977. The City of Virginia Beach is certifying to HUD that the City of Virginia Beach and George L. Hamby, in his official capacity as City Manager, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to

The City of Virginia Beach has prepared an environmental review record regarding the above project for which the release of funds is sought. This record may be reviewed and copies obtained thereof at the Office of Community Development (in the Commonwealth Attorney's Building) from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Notes from the shelter industry

Land costs continue to skyrocket as local regulation increases

By LIN J. COOPER
Director of Communications, Tidewater Builders Association

HUD has come up with a few well-chosen words on land costs. The department says local governments can go a long way toward curbing the soaring cost of land by easing zoning restrictions and eliminating unnecessary regulation. The conclusions come after a year-long study by the Department of Housing and Urban Development task force on housing costs, and they have applicability to Virginia Beach and Chesapeake.

Raw Land Costs More

The study revealed that the price of land in some urban areas has increased 100 percent between 1970 and 1974, while in rural areas the price tag tripled during the 10 years from 1967 to 1977.

Chesapeake has seen prime single family developable land increase three and a half times since 1970; the amount of increase in Virginia Beach has been even more dramatic.

The causes for the increase in the price of land are many and varied and could easily fill another column, another week. What is of more interest for this story are the increases in land development costs.

Developed Land Costs More

In 1949 only 11 percent of the cost of a new home went for land and land development. Today that figure stands at 25 percent.

One villain has been the increase of regulations over the past 10 years resulting in delays while the builder applies for permits and awaits inspections. Between 1967 and 1977 the time needed to develop home site lots increased 13 months or 64 percent. Delays cost developers additional overhead cost for financing and add $1410 to $2100 per lot to the price the consumer pays.

Rules governing streets, sidewalks, driveways, water and sewer systems, are among the most costly. And the developer, says the HUD task force, "is often subject to a host of fees and assessments which have been steadily increasing over the past few years."

For instance, Virginia Beach imposes requirements on subdivision streets than exist for Virginia state highways.

In Chesapeake, most subdivision streets are required to be built to state standards, but in some instances the city requires curb and gutter where the state would not. Chesapeake has also seen the requirements for sidewalks go from none required in 1970 to sidewalks required on both sides of every new street including cul-de-sacs today. Drainage requirements in the city now typically cost between $1000 and $2000 a lot, which can amount to as much as sewer and water tap costs combined. This is a tremendous upgrading in costs since 1970 and includes the piping of perimeter ditches, the elimination of inside lot ditches, and the increased use of pipe and catchbasins. While these requirements may be good in themselves, the fact still remains that they cost money and, ultimately, that cost is paid by the new homeowner. And the new homeowner ought to be in possession of enough information to ask himself, "Is this really necessary? Is this really desirable?"

Another study of 87 communities by the General Accounting Office showed that standards for streets and related site improvements could increase the cost of a house by as much as $2655; requirements for 150 and 200 foot wide lots further increased site improvement costs; requirements for dedicating land for parks and schools cost up to $850 per house; and municipal fees ran as high as $4265 per house for such items as local reviews, permits, inspection, and utility connections.

Virginia Beach already has the third highest lot costs in the nation. It costs the developer, and of course in the end, the homeowner, $9912 to develop the average $14,000 lot in Virginia Beach today. That amount is exclusive of the cost of the raw land.

Growth Control Costs More

Zoning ordinances and no growth policies adopted by communities who want to keep out the newcomers once they've realized their own dream are driving up housing costs and sometimes backfire as the local economy stagnates, forcing residents to leave in search of jobs.

An econometric model prepared by the National Association of Home Builders estimated that $3300 could be added to the price of a typical home and an estimated 4800 local jobs lost during the first two years of a San Diego County, Calif. proposed growth plan that would restrict new housing to designated urban areas served by existing facilities including schools, highways, and water and sewer connections. Traditional single family development would not be allowed until all the designated urban areas were developed.

Other zoning ordinances restrict the sites for multi-family housing which could be developed for families of low, moderate and middle income.

The American Bar Association reports that 99.2 percent of the undeveloped land in the New York metropolitan areas zoned for residential use is restricted to single-family housing. In Connecticut more than half of all vacant land zoned for residential use is for minimum lots of one to two acres.

Limitations on the capacity of sewers and roads or utilities stop growth in certain areas and drive up the price of usable lots. In Montgomery County, Md., where a moratorium covering large areas of the county existed for several years, a quarter-acre lot with a hookup sells for more than $40,000 today, in contrast to the $10,000 to $12,000 it went for in the early seventies.

All of these examples are food for thought for Chesapeake and Virginia Beach residents.

New vegetable varieties prove worthy of all-American selection

By CHARLES R. O'DELL
Extension Specialist, Department of Horticulture, VPI & SU

—Editor's note: The following is excerpted from the March edition of The Vegetable Growers News, which is published monthly by the Virginia Truck and Ornamentals Research Station and the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University Cooperative Extension Service.

There are many new vegetable varieties listed in the new 1979 seed catalogs. Six of the new varieties have been awarded the All-American Selections (AAS) award which means that they were grown and evaluated at 27 trials in all corners of the United States and Southern Canada and found to be the best in their class, surpassing the performance of previously top rated vegetables in side by side comparisons.

The six new varieties include a hybrid cucumber, Saladin, a hybrid kohlrabi, Grand Duke, a new edible podded snap pea somewhat similar to snow peas called Sugar Snap, a sweet yellow pepper named Dutch Treat, a new winter or storage squash named Early Butternut Hybrid and a second winter squash named Sweet Mama Hybrid having drumshaped, dark green fruit averaging two to three pounds.

Of these six, the two most unusual are probably the kohlrabi and the edible snap pea. While neither of these may find a large volume market potential at the outset, they may find ready acceptance in farmers' markets and roadside stands. If nothing else, the consumer might be invited to try the taste of these in order to convince him of their merits.

If you have never tried kohlrabi, don't be put off by the odd name. It is an ancient and honored member of the cabbage family grown for its swollen stems which resemble above-ground turnips. The bulbs of Grand Duke can be peeled and sliced thin for dips, coarse grated for salads, or diced for cooking like turnips. The flavor is reported to be mild, sweet, and crunchy with no hint of toughness. Ordinary kohlrabi, if stressed by dry weather, will grow slowly and produce spindle-shaped bulbs but the hybrid vigor of Grand Duke helps carry it through spells of adverse weather to produce perfectly round bulbs, three to four inches in diameter.

Grand Duke was bred for quick maturity to be ready for eating 45 to 50 days after seeding. Seeds can be planted while the soil is still cold and will sprout in about a week. Two crops can be grown from one seed. Late summer plantings for fall harvest will mature in cooler weather when sweetness is intensified in the bulb. The fall crop seed should be started about two months before hard ground freezing is expected to occur. For spring crops, seed may be sown moderately early at the same time you would seed carrots. A final remark about Grand Duke hybrid kohlrabi is that the small inner leaves above the bulb are reported to have a flavor similar to kale or collards and are very nutritious.

The second unusual vegetable in the AAS list for 1979 is the edible podded snap pea called Sugar Snap. Market gardeners and roadside operators who sell snow peas for stir frying or steaming will find their customers pleased with Sugar Snap. The author tested Sugar Snap at Blacksburg in 1978 and found that this edible podded pea is crisp, sweet, and very succulent and that it remains in prime eating condition for several days. Sugar Snap does have a distinct appearance and flavor.

The round pods have very thick walls and can be eaten at fully mature sizes when the pods are up to three inches in length. However, the mature pods do require stringing. This is easily accomplished while snapping the pods into bite-size pieces. Both top and bottom strings can be zipped off with one continuous motion.

about a week. Two crops are possible with Grand Duke kohlrabi in Virginia. Late summer plantings for fall harvest will mature in cooler weather when sweetness is intensified in the bulb. Vines of Sugar Snap are tall and supports are highly recommended. Where cool growing conditions encourage vine growth, plants may reach a height of six feet or more. For most of Virginia, four feet probably will be the average height of the spring planted crop. About 70 days is required to reach maturity from seeding in the field. As with any peas, early plantings are the most productive. The Sugar Snap variety has been reported to withstand freezing temperatures down to about 20° F.

Unlike the more common varieties of peas, the variety Sugar Snap should not be overcooked. Only lightly steam or quickly stir fry in oil to retain crispness. Overcooking will definitely make pods come apart. For this reason, they cannot be canned but they are very easy to freeze.

Although space does not permit describing the other four AAS vegetable winners for 1979, they are featured in many seed catalogs. They, too, deserve consideration by Virginia growers looking for something different for their markets.

All ages can enjoy pleasures of gardening

No child is too young to experience the pleasure of gardening, says a horticulture specialist.

But gardening projects should be geared to a child's age level and capabilities so there is a good chance of success.

The best lessons are learned by doing, and sowing a few seeds or setting out some plants can give children the feeling they are helping create the family garden.

As soon as they show an interest, encourage youngsters to have a small garden plot of their own. Help them choose vegetables or flowers that have easy-to-plant seeds and mature quickly so they won't have to wait too long to see the results of their efforts.

One good way for young people to learn about horticulture is through 4-H gardening projects and activities. The national 4-H gardening program, supported by Ortho Division, Chevron Chemical Company, and conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service, helps 4-H members 9-19 acquire the knowledge and skills they need to plan and care for a vegetable or flower garden, lawn or commercial horticultural crop.

The program is educational and fun for girls and boys no matter where they live. Even apartment-dwellers in urban areas can participate by caring for houseplants, planting a container garden or raising vegetables in a shared community plot.

To recognize outstanding young gardeners, Ortho Division of Chevron provides eight national scholarships of $1,000 each, and 18 sectional trips to the 58th National 4-H Congress in Chicago Nov. 25-29. One 4-H member in each state receives a $50 U.S. savings bond, and four 4-Hers per county can earn medals of honor.

Awards are arranged by National 4-H Council, a not-for-profit organization serving the 4-H program. Winners are chosen by the Cooperative Extension Service. For more information on the 4-H gardening program, get in touch with your Virginia Beach extension agent.

Introduce children early to the pleasure of gardening. Raising vegetables in a backyard plot or flowers in a window box can be fun and educational for young people.

Miniature log cabins displayed at library

The Oceanfront branch of the Virginia Beach Public Library is currently displaying a set of handmade miniature log cabins.

The miniatures were made by Mrs. E.M. Gray of Virginia Beach and the miniatures depict various log cabins and their furnishings. Mrs. Gray began the miniatures to help her children to understand life in frontier days.

The display will continue for several weeks at the library and is open to the public for viewing during library hours.

The Oceanfront Branch Library is located at 1811 Arctic Avenue. For further information contact David Palmer at 428-4113.

ASTUTE BUYERS

The man or woman who reads their community newspaper from cover-to-cover each issue is not only a well-informed person on local events, but his or her knowledge through this reading habit makes them become the most astute buyers in this community.

SNAPPER Facts: Functional design; sensible price.

The rear engine design of a SNAPPER rider provides unrestricted visibility, less fatigue from engine heat, exhaust and noise, and a smoother cut resulting from less mowing of grass in front of the cutting unit. With a short wheelbase, less weight on the front tire and no gears in the steering mechanism you get immediate response steering for cutting in tight places.

Add in: On-the-go adjustment of cutting height and speed; the floating cutting unit which minimizes scalping and damage.

Before you buy a rider, compare the quality and performance features of a SNAPPER. You'll find SNAPPER is worth more because it does more. And, its price is competitive with other quality mowers.

• Your well-battered toast and toasting someone's health are closer than you think! The expression comes from an old British custom of placing a piece of toasted bread at the bottom of the common beer pitcher. Traditionally, the last drinker got the well-soaked toast.

• More and more Americans are toasting with wine these days. Wine consumption has more than doubled in the last 10 years in the U.S. In 1977, we drank 1.8 gallons per capita and projected figures for 1980 say 650 million gallons of wine will be produced domestically and abroad. California is the world's leading wine producer, followed by Italy, France and Portugal.

How to get more out of your lawn through proper cultural practices

By RICK BEARD

Caring and maintaining a lawn is not an easy task. Season after season, year in, year out, your lawn needs continued attention to maintain vigor and good looks.

Your lawn needs additional plant nutrients each growing season. Weed seeds can travel great distances and often lie dormant in your lawn until the right moment. It's your continued attention that will keep your lawn looking good all year long. The following cultural practices should be able to help you maintain a more beautiful lawn:

Watering: If you have a sufficient supply of water and have time to use it correctly, you should be able to keep your lawn green all summer. It's a matter of when to water and how much at one time. The most common error committed by most people is light and frequent irrigation. Too little water often encourages a multitude of problems such as a shallow root system, or a decline in the overall vigor of your grass. Unless you are watering the surface soil to keep new seed moist, you should never water by hand. Holding the hose in your hand is a waste of your time and water, as the soil cannot absorb concentrated watering fast enough, and you are not watering deep enough. Water long and slowly with a good sprinkler.

No one can give you an exact schedule to follow. The need for watering depends mainly on your soil and, of course, the weather. The best thing to do is water your grass for telltale signs of wilting. Irregular patches (bluish-green to purple) during the hot part of the day. "Footprinting" when you walk across your lawn.

The most accurate way is to look at and feel a sample of soil taken with either a soil probe or by cutting out a wedge about four inches deep in the ground. Damp soil is darker and feels cooler than dry soil.

If your lawn turns brown, it may be because your grass has shut down its activity until a water deficiency becomes corrected. Then, recovery may take up to three weeks, or until new leaves have grown. Extended drought can be a tricky situation. If you expect to have a green lawn throughout the summer, you must make sure your grass gets enough water throughout the drought (watch out for municipal watering bans). During a severe drought, we adjust the fertilization program. We also watch out carefully for insects. Insect damage is especially important to control during a drought because the grass is not growing and cannot recover as it would normally.

Rainfall is no guarantee. Light showers merely wet the surface. Short downpours do the same. Most of the water is lost in runoff before it can soak in.

How much water? A lawn will use two or more inches of water per week in hot, dry weather — a fraction of that when it's cool and more humid. If you decide your lawn needs water, you should put enough on to wet the entire root system. Clay soils take 1½ inches of water. Loamy soils take ¾ of an inch. Sandy soils take 1/2 inch. A good way to tell how much water you're putting on is to set up a straight-sided container in your sprinkler pattern.

The best time to water is when you can fit it into your schedule. If you can, avoid late afternoon or evening irrigation. Grass that stays wet for a long time favors development of diseases. However, don't avoid watering in the late afternoon if this is the only time you can water. When your lawn is dry, the important thing is to water.

Mowing: Proper mowing is essential for a good looking lawn. Or, to put it another way, improper mowing causes more problems than anything else. There are two common errors: The lawn isn't mowed often enough, or the lawn is mowed too short. These errors reduce the vigor of your grass and cause poor root development. When this happens, you're most likely to have problems with weeds, insects, diseases and stress injury.

To keep your lawn at its best, don't remove more than 1/3 of the grass blade at one time.

When to cut your grass: The first thing to do is forget any preconceived schedule. Most people think that cutting once a week is sufficient all season long. Instead, let the growth rate of the grass be your guide. In the early spring, the grass will need cutting more than once a week. Then, as weather conditions slow things down, once every week or ten days may be adequate. The secret is not to cut off more than 1/3 of the grass blade in one mowing.

Select the proper mowing height for your lawn: Tall fescue (Kentucky 31) should be cut at three inches. This is usually the highest setting on most rotary mowers. You can measure your cutting height best on your driveway. The distance between the blade and the pavement. Sharp blades: A sharp mower will cut the grass blades off cleanly, rather than shredding them. Shredding will cause your grass to discolor at the tips. Rotary mowers should be sharpened several times during the season.

Thatch: Thatch is a layer that forms between the soil surface and the green grass. While it contains some living grass parts, the majority is an accumulation of the dead grass stems and roots that are resistant to decomposition. Tall fescue has little or no thatch problem. A common misconception is that uncollected clippings contribute to thatch. This is simply not true. Remaining clippings return valuable nutrients to your lawn.

Overseeding: Overseeding tall fescue lawns (with Kentucky 31) is generally needed every year and is very important to a good tall fescue lawn. Breaking the soil surface greatly increases chances for new grass establishment. The best time to overseed tall fescue is mid to late September. Apply seed at the rate of four pounds per 1,000 square feet (eight pounds for bare spots). Light, frequent watering is suggested anytime you seed but is not as critical when temperatures are cool and rain is frequent. Overseeding tall fescue lawns in the spring is not as desirable as in the fall.

Mosquito control considered for rural areas

The City of Virginia Beach is working toward uniform taxes by expanding mosquito control throughout the city.

City Manager George L. Hanbury told council Monday evening at an informal session that mosquito control is being considered for the rural areas. A meeting has been scheduled for March 29 at the Creeds Elementary School at 8 p.m. to discuss the matter with residents of Pungo and Blackwater who are not in a control district.

Taxpayers in mosquito control districts are charge extra for the service.

Hanbury said that expansion of control through the whole city would be beneficial and bring the city one-step closer to a uniform tax rate.

The City of Virginia Beach will foot the bill for increased water rates during the period from April 13 to July 1.

The City of Norfolk will impose a 4.2 cents per 1000 gallons rate on April 13, but City Council has decided to delay passing the increase to its customers until July 1, the start of the new fiscal year. The tab, paid from Utilities Department funds, will come to $64,000.

persons over 60."

"We make them aware of the times they eat while on the telephone or while watching TV," Ms. Campbell continues. "They offer alternatives to each other. When someone loses 2 or 3 pounds they get a chance to tell about it. We recommend losing no more than two pounds a week. The average participant has lost seven to eight pounds by the end of the class."

Looking after your weight goes beyond eating habits though, Ms. Campbell concludes. You don't have to jog, she says, "There are informal ways to get exercise, like not parking in the nearest parking space, or taking two flights of steps instead of the elevator. A lot of it boils down to becoming aware of your own activity."

Dune protection ordinance approved by City Council

Planning Commission and City Council for a use permit. The ordinance also provides for exemptions.

City Manager George L. Hanbury, at council's informal session, said that the city's concern "all along has been to preserve the dunes." Administrative actions in this respect need to be codified. "It's not our purpose to take anybody's property without compensation."

Hanbury said that the only properties "which we see now" in this category are lots in the Chesapeake Beach area.

Ervin said that some of the land which may be involved — is under water and by state law belongs to the state.

Hanbury said that only about three miles of beach would be affected by the ordinance.

Councilman George R. Ferrell charged, "You're taking people's property. That's what they're doing in Russia. The people where I live don't want to buy the beach front."

Hanbury said the state has missed out on several millions of dollars in federal funds because it has not passed a dunes protection law. He said with the ordinance the city may now apply for the funds.

Opposition to the ordinance claimed the 500-foot protection area was arbitrary and that landowners would be deprived the use of their property.

Pleas were made to defer the ordinance until it could be changed.

James Kaiser, representing 1400 North Virginia Beach Civic League members, said the league favored a strong ordinance. It's not true, he said, that all landowners were opposed. A majority of a sample telephoned were in favor of a dunes protection ordinance.

Henry Morgan, an attorney, said there were some loopholes in the ordinance. He also presented council with legal precedent which supports the city's right to pass an ordinance without enabling legislation from the state. His suggestions to change the word "should" to "shall" were later accepted in the adopted version.

P.G. Harris, president of the Tidewater Builders Association, said the amendments were "crying out for deferral" so the City Council can have time to study various proposals.

Speaking in support of a dunes protection ordinance, he said that builders have been inappropriately characterized as being opponents of dunes protection legislation. Actually, he said they are in favor of local control. "The ordinance we propose is more constructive."

The builders wanted to eliminate the creation of an "arbitrary" areas or district to address primary dunes only by exacting definitions, to eliminate the conditional use permit procession favor of the existing Development Standards Ordinance, and to provide guidelines for an appeal process to Planning Commission and City Council.

He said that use permits should be considered only in projects of considerable size and that standards should be provided where there are no primary dunes.

He also asked council to take into consideration the large fiscal responsibility of compensating owners for land for which they have no use.

The Sandbridge Civic League endorsed the ordinance.

Curtis Basquet, coastal engineer with the Norfolk District Corps of Engineers, read a statement from Col. Douglas L. Hallen, district manager, supporting the ordinance.

He said that flooding in the Bay areas is not significantly different than flooding on the ocean front and that "man-made structures" only lead to trouble.

Robert Jay Smith, president of the Chesapeake Beach Civic League, said the league unanimously endorsed the ordinance. "It's needed tonight, not tomorrow or next week." He said the TBA request for a deferral "is nothing more than delay tactics...widely used to kill (legislation)...The same techniques were used by the TBA to kill 403." He said the conditional use provision is needed for a just interpretation of the ordinance. He presented a petition containing 321 names of supporters of the ordinance not included in a previous petition containing 931 names.

Dean Williams said there was "no way the city will be liable for much money. You may be talking about underwater property but the Code covers that; it is state property...The people who oppose (the ordinance) had two years for input...Let's keep it Virginia Beach, not Virginia Bulkhead."

Residents of Baylake Pines and Baylake Beach also urged adoption of the ordinance.

Charles Traub III, chairman of the Resource Management Committee of the Virginia Wildlife Federation, said the ordinance is a positive step toward wise use... "It's unfortunate the General Assembly did not see fit to enact (legislation) on a state-wide basis...It is prudent we guard our assets." He said that the ordinance was regulative and not prohibitive, and that decisions should be in the hands of decision makers not in the hands of administrators.

Michael E. Barney, representing the Croatan Beach Corporation, was opposed to the ordinance and especially criticized the definition of a primary dune. The ordinance restricts construction that would alter any dunes, he said.

Joe Lyle, representing the Virginia Beach Board of Realtors, said that realtors did not fall into the category of profiteer or obstructionists. He said he was not opposed to a dune ordinance but to the present ordinance.

He said that the bay and ocean beaches should not be considered the same and that it was arbitrary to apply the same setback for all the beach front. He said that the ordinance invited court actions.

"What is the real purpose? Is it to stop development or foster flood control?" he asked.

Edwin Linsley Jr. said that the city's reliance on permitting a policy permitting bulkheading at the six-foot contour line has worked well. The city has placed itself in a dangerous situation in that it fosters the impression that the ordinance will guarantee protection. "If you have a storm, persons may sue the city for damages, he said."

B.F. Wagner, representing himself and six other Chesapeake Beach residents, charged discrimination.

Robert J. Roskavitch, attorney representing Capital Investors, a company that owns property on Chesapeake Beach of which Linsley is one of the principals, said the ordinance was arbitrary and discriminatory, that the 500 foot zone should not be applied equally to the Bay and Ocean front, that the wording was vague and broad.

Herbert Kramer, of 4802 Oceanfront, owner of several lots on Croatan Beach, said he was "not sure what is intended by the ordinance. He said the owner is left with uncertainty whether he can build on his property. He said the ordinance should be worked on carefully before it damages the value of oceanfront property."

Voting for the ordinance were Councilmen Donald Merrick, R.L. Riggs, J. Curtis Payne, John A. Baum, and Reid Ervin; Councilwomen Meyera Oberndorf and Barbara Heley; Mayor Patrick L. Standing and Vice Mayor J. Henry McCoy.

Councilman George R. Ferrell voted against the ordinance and Councilman Clarence A. Holland was absent. Holland had asked that the vote be deferred so that he could vote on the question.

Trash schedule changes

The City of Virginia Beach is planning to change the trash collection schedule in the area between Laskin Road and Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Residents will get an added bonus with the change -- they'll be switching over from Monday and Thursday collections to Tuesday and Friday collections.

The Monday-Thursday people, remember, are the ones who miss collections on Monday holidays.

Whey makes its way into the American diet

What do the following typical grocery items have in common: ice cream, bread, crackers, vanilla wafers, pizza, soup mix, gelatin mix, frozen fish and chips, hot cocoa mix, cheese spread, frozen waffles and cake?

They all contain whey. Yet, even though whey is found in a wide range of products, it is still a mystery to many people. When they read "whey" on a nutritional label, they often automatically assume it is not a natural product, but an "additive" or "chemical."

This assumption is a mistake, according to Dr. Reed Lambert, a nutritionist with Foremost Foods Company's Research Center in Dublin, Calif. "Whey is a natural food containing most of milk's nutrients," Lambert explains. "It is used as a replacement for nonfat milk or as a protein supplement in many food products."

Whey is a co-product of cheese processing. Of the milk used to make cheese, only about 10 percent ends up as cheese. The rest separates into the milky liquid called whey. The water is then evaporated from the whey, leaving a powder that looks much like bleached flour.

"Because it is a natural derivative of milk, whey contains many of milk's important nutrients, such as protein, riboflavin (b2), niacin, and lesser amounts of vitamin A, thiamin (b1), phosphorus, magnesium and sodium," Lambert noted. "Whey is also a good source of calcium, the principal nutrient that millions of Americans still lack in sufficient quantities."

On nutritional labels, whey is most frequently listed as either "whey," "dry whey," or "modified whey." Dry whey, as well as all other whey food grade products, has had the water removed by evaporation. Some modified wheys have had some of the milk's minerals or salts removed to make them more compatible with certain food products. Others have increased protein concentration levels to provide increased nutrition.

"Whey is modified in much the same way milk is altered to make butter or cheese," Lambert explained. "No matter what form it comes in, it is always a natural milk product."

"In addition to its nutritive value, whey is also the most economical dairy product available for use in food products," Lambert continued. Nonfat dry milk (NDFM), for which whey is often substituted, costs approximately 75 cents per pounds under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's price support program. Whey, which is not government price-supported, costs an average 14 cents per pound currently.

However, Lambert explains that, "Because of the different levels of protein in whey and nonfat dry milk, a better way to compare their costs is by figuring the cost per pound of protein, keeping in mind that there is little difference in the protein quality between the two. Using this method, then, a pound of whey protein still costs less than half that of a pound of nonfat dry milk protein."

Because of this significant cost savings, food processors are turning more and more to whey products to maintain nutritional quality and to help hold down their ingredient costs. This results in lower food costs for consumers. In the past 10 years, total U.S. whey powder production has more than doubled from and estimated one billion pounds in 1965 to more than 2.3 billion pounds in 1976. As the country's largest processor of whey products, Foremost Foods Company's Industrial Foods Division leads this production.

In the future, consumers can expect to see whey listed even more often on their food labels, according to Lambert. Already, food researchers have developed several new uses for the product. Scientists at the Department of Agriculture's Eastern Regional Research Laboratory have proven that whey-enriched pasta is almost as nutritious as milk. Pavel Jelen of Canada's University of Alberta has concocted a heat-coagulated whey substance which can serve as both cracker spread and meat extender.

Other innovative whey recipes include Michigan State University's O-way, a protein liquid meal combining whey and orange juice, and a whey sherry, invented by Father E. R. Engel of Palmer, Alaska. There is even a whey fruit sherbet under development.

"Increased cheese consumption, rising food costs, and better utilization of whey in both established and new products will all lead to more food products containing whey."

Tax tables reflect amounts

For about 96 percent of taxpayers, Congress has designated a minimum amount of income that is not subject to taxation. This amount is called the zero bracket amount. The zero bracket is automatically reflected in the Tax Tables.

Congress also has allowed $750 for each exemption. For taxpayers who can use the Tax Tables, the exemption allowance also is computed into the tables.

The zero bracket amount is based on a taxpayer's filing status as follows:

- Married filing joint return.....$3,200
 - Qualifying widow(er) with dependent child...$3,200
 - Single.....$2,200
 - Unmarried head of household.....$2,200
 - Married filing separately.....$1,600
- If you are single, with no dependents, you automatically are allowed $750 for your exemption and $2,200 for your zero bracket amount for a total of $1,950, the minimum amount at which most single taxpayers are required to file a return.

In addition, there is a law that temporarily allows a general tax credit. This credit also is computed into the Tax Tables. Therefore, you will notice in the Tax Table for a single individual that a tax liability is not imposed until the individual's income is $3,200. However, you are still required to file a return if your income is at the minimum level for your filing status.

Some part-time workers due refunds

Certain workers who had low incomes last year and Federal tax withheld from their salaries may be eligible for tax refunds. But, these workers must file a Federal tax return in order to get their refunds, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Often taxpayers do not file because their low earnings fail to reach the level at which the law requires them to file a return. Students, retirees and homemakers working a few hours a week, and other part-time workers, are generally in this category.

Basically, the income requirements for filing are:

—Single taxpayers who made less than $2,950 in 1978 are not required to file a Federal tax return.

—Singles 65 and older who earned less than $3,700 don't have to file.

—Married couples under 65 years of age must have earned a combined gross income of $4,700 before they must file.

—Married couple in which one spouse is 65 or older must file if they earned $5,450. They must file a return if both are 65 or older and they made at least $6,200 last year.

Part-time workers can determine whether they have a refund coming by checking their Form W-2, Wage and Tax Statement.

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE

Prepared by the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, the national society of life insurance professionals who have earned the CLU designation by meeting high educational, ethical and experience requirements.

Q. I've got a one-in-a-lifetime opportunity for a great investment. I'd like to take out a loan on my insurance policy, but first I'd like to know if my beneficiaries will suffer if something should happen to me before I repay the loan.

A. Your beneficiaries would receive less. The amount you have borrowed, plus any unpaid interest on the loan, would be subtracted from the sum paid to your beneficiaries. The amount subtracted would repay your debt to the company.

Dead Defects

When you buy a home, remember that the deed to the property may not assure full ownership. At best, this document only transfers the ownership of the seller to you as buyer—no matter how limited it may be.

In addition, a deed may be defective and create expensive difficulties for the buyer—as a purchaser learned in an eastern state.

Approximately six years after McAuliffe's completing purchase, this buyer discovered that the description of his property was incorrect in the deed. As a result, his real estate overlapped four feet onto adjoining land.

It was apparent that a legal proceeding was necessary to correct the deed and an attorney was retained to handle the matter in court. Fortunately, the buyer had obtained owner's title insurance at the time of his real estate purchase. Under the owner's title coverage, the corrective work was paid for by the title company to prevent financial loss for the insured.

Beach Navyman caps 'success story' career

By LON CABOT

Special to the Virginia Beach Sun

March 31, the final chapter of a Navy success story comes to a close in the gymnasium of the Little Creek Amphibious Base. Master Chief Boatswain's Mate Carl Maxie Brashear, the Navy's first black diver and the first black man to earn the title "master diver," retires after 32 years of naval service.

What makes Carl Brashear's career an unusual success story is that he achieved his greatest ambitions in life after surmounting a handicap which might have destroyed other men...the loss of a leg.

"It took more willpower than I ever thought I had to accept the fact that I had lost a leg. Once I accepted that reality, I knew I would win the fight to become a master diver," reminisced Brashear recently.

Carl Brashear's Navy career began like many others. After deciding his job as a gas station attendant in his hometown, Elizabethtown, Ky., "wasn't the kind of future I wanted," Brashear joined the Navy in 1948.

"I had no idea back then that I would some day become a diver," he says today with a smile. "I went to boot camp at Great Lakes and then reported to Key West, Florida, and began my career as a steward."

Brashear worked as a steward only briefly and then transferred to a beachmaster unit in Key West, where he worked as a deckhand and seaman. "I helped beach the old seaplanes they had back then and did a lot of swimming," he said.

Two years in Key West and nearly four years serving aboard small aircraft carriers in Norfolk preceded Brashear's assignment to the Navy's Salvage Diving School in Bayonne, N.J.

"Completing that school was an accomplishment in itself," noted the amiable master chief petty officer. "In those days, black sailors were not readily accepted into the diving field."

For the next six years, Brashear served as a salvage diver and boatswain's mate at commands in Virginia, Rhode Island and Guam. In 1960, he entered the Navy's First Class Diver School in Washington, D.C., where he recalls, "I didn't get too far. I dropped out because the academic workload was too much to handle with my limited educational background," he said.

Serving one year aboard a San Diego-based submarine tender, Brashear reported to Pearl Harbor, where he entered and graduated from the Navy's Second Class Diver School. After a year aboard a Pearl Harbor-based salvage ship, he returned to First Class Diver School in Washington, D.C. Six months later he graduated third in a class of 17.

"I took courses through the Navy to boost my educational background after I failed the school the first time," said Brashear. "When I went back the second time, I was ready for the mathematics and science the curriculum involved."

Brashear served a year aboard a Norfolk-based fleet tug before reporting to the salvage ship USS Hoist in 1965.

In March 1966, while Brashear served aboard the Hoist, his career as a diver almost ended. As a boatswain's mate and acting master diver for the command, Brashear was assisting in recovering a nuclear bomb lost at sea after two planes collided over the Mediterranean.

During the recovery effort, a stern line of a landing craft broke, slinging a pipe attached to a steering mechanism across the Hoist's deck. Brashear managed to push a shipmate out of harm's way, but the pipe smashed into the back of his own leg.

After five months and seven operations, medical personnel amputated his left leg four inches below the knee.

"It's something you never really get used to," explained Brashear. "I guess you could say that after a while I developed a 'grin and bear it' philosophy. But since I lost my leg, a day hasn't passed that I haven't wished I had it back."

For most Navy men, the loss of a leg would have ended all hope of returning to the vigorous duties of a boatswain's mate and diver. Carl Brashear only became more determined to make his dream of being the Navy's first black master diver a reality.

He began an extensive therapy program at Portsmouth Naval Hospital in Portsmouth, Va. His new leg in place, Brashear climbed two flights of stairs several times a day, carrying 100-pound barbells.

"The medical personnel at Portsmouth were amazed that I was as determined as I was to walk again," says Brashear. "All I knew was that I had to prove I was still capable of carrying out the duties of a diver."

Shortly before discharge from the hospital, Brashear took his diving gear and a photographer to the destroyer, and submarine piers in Norfolk.

"First I used a deep-sea rig in about 30 feet of water, I promoted to master chief boatswain's mate.

Since his advancement to master diver, Brashear has made at least four descents into deep water every six months to maintain his diving certification. He works out daily and adds proudly that he has never used the fact he is an amputee to avoid any unpleasant task that's come his way.

Brashear's story has been told repeatedly since he lost his leg. He's appeared on the television show 'To Tell The Truth,' been featured in both Navy and civilian-sponsored movies about overcoming handicaps, and has had his story told in numerous newspapers and magazines.

"I've given retirement a lot of thought," said Brashear. "I'm a little sad about it, but I guess when you're stuck with something as long as I've stuck with the Navy, you're going to have regrets when you realize it's time to leave."

While he's retiring from the Navy, Carl Brashear has no intention of bringing his diving career to a halt. He says he's had several job offers to work in diving salvage with local shippers.

"It isn't definite yet, but I'm pretty sure I'll be doing the same job as a civilian that I've been doing for the Navy," he says happily. "I just haven't decided where I'll be working yet."

Brashear served his last four years of active duty at Norfolk area naval commands, including the Naval Safety Center; Shore Intermediate Maintenance Activity (Little Creek Detachment) and the salvage ship USS Recovery. He presently resides on Hialeah Dr. in Virginia Beach.

Carl Brashear's retirement will not mark the end of an active career but the dawn of still another.

The best tribute to the seasoned naval veteran may well have come from himself when he said: "Carl Brashear is someone who believes from experience that you never give up and that there is no such thing as the impossible."

Carl Brashear, the Navy's only one-legged diver and the first black master diver in the Navy, runs the final stretch of a two-mile jog at the Little Creek Amphibious Base in Norfolk. Brashear, who resides in Virginia Beach, jogs and lifts weights regularly. "The longest I've run since I've had my artificial leg is five miles," he says.

swam 250 yards in scuba gear and then made a shallow water dive in a lightweight diving rig," recalled Brashear.

The photographer captured all Brashear's activity on film. Aftird disqualification from the Navy's diving program was imminent, Brashear forwarded photos of himself in action to Washington in early 1967.

"Even with documented proof that I could still dive, the people in Washington wouldn't believe I was capable of serving as a diver," he said.

After hearing of the disbelief that prevailed among the medical personnel in Washington, Brashear convinced officials from the Bureau of Medicine to let him "audition" at the Navy's Deep Sea Diving School in Washington, D.C.

"I had to do things that I had never seen done underwater," recalls the native Kentuckian. "After diving in every kind of rig imaginable and after swimming to depths I'd never been to before, I finally convinced the medical people that I was still qualified to be a diver."

Brashear's dogged determination to remain a diver drew a flurry of criticism from various medical boards, but the sharpest comment he'll always remember came from a senior member of the last medical board he appeared before.

"One of the senior officers on the board asked me if I really wanted to remain a diver," recalled Brashear. "I told him, 'yes.' Then he looked me in the eye and said I was 'one damned stubborn chief petty officer.'"

Brashear laughs when he recalls the story, but his mood turns somber when he adds, "I guess if it hadn't been for my stubbornness, I wouldn't be here today."

Duty with shore and ship commands as a diver and boatswain's mate followed Brashear's acceptance into the diving field as an amputee. In 1970, he climbed another rung on his way to the top when he was advanced to master diver. Then, in 1972, he was

High school students visit NAS Oceana

Forty-one Naval Junior ROTC students and their escort, retired Navyman H.H. Troupe, all from Lake Taylor Senior High School in Norfolk, toured Naval Air Station Oceana in Virginia Beach on Thursday, March 22.

While at the air station, the students toured Fighter Squadron 171, Attack Squadron 42 and ate lunch in the Enlisted Dining Hall. They also had a good look at several jet landings and take-offs from the veranda of the base control tower building. At VF-171, the cadets were given a look inside the cockpit of an F-4J Phantom II Navy fighter jet as well as a good overall explanation of the functions of the aircraft. In the squadron's ready room, the students saw a movie about the Phantom jet and the F-14A Tomcat.

The Lake Taylor students were shown slides on both VA-42 and the aircraft this squadron flies, the A-6E Intruder. They too had a look inside the Intruder's cockpit and an overall explanation of this all weather multi-purpose attack jet.

Troupe has been teaching Naval Science at Lake Taylor for the last seven years and actively pursues photography as his hobby. He retired from the Navy in March 1975 after having completed 26 years on active duty and four years in the Fleet Reserve. Upon completion of his Navy career, Troupe held the rate of Master Chief Operations Specialist (OSCM).
